P R E F A C E .

I N publishing this volume I am fulfilling the task to which I held myself bound as the Academy's Todd Professor [see Introductory Lecture, pp. 5, 34.]

My primary aim has been to furnish students of Irish with a fairly readable text-book, so as to prepare them for the further study of the language in the more difficult texts. To that end I have analysed the words as far as possible, for the method of printing which runs the words up together as in the MS., though no doubt defensible enough from the scientific side, is a serious obstacle to a beginner.

My second consideration was to furnish material of a human interest, which could be read without exciting in the mind of the reader a strong desire to confine it to the domain of the learned; for it is to be observed that, like every other mediæval literature, Irish contains much that is not fit for general publication.

And the third aim I had in view was the study of the language of these texts, not from an etymological, but from a philological standpoint. To this end I have investigated, as in my edition of the Vie de St. Aaban, every word every time it occurs throughout the whole of the matter here printed, as thoroughly and equably as I could. I have sought to elucidate these LB. texts from the MS. itself, and to set forth the practice of the scribe without admixture of other MSS. The Glossary contains only the words in these texts; it is not a digest of material obtained from works already printed. Such digests are highly desirable, but it was not my purpose to prepare a work of the kind, which would, indeed, have swollen this book to an unwieldy extent; the quotations I have given are only intended as illustrations of the use or form of the words of my texts. During the preparation of this Glossary I have read over the whole of the Four Masters and the volumes published by the various Irish Societies (Celt., Oss., Archæol.), with a view to illustrating the language of the Homilies; and here I have to acknowledge the courtesy and liberality of the Rev. Mr. Stevenson, of Bandon, in the loan of a large collection, made by him, of words occurring in Irish printed literature, and from which I have obtained many a valuable quotation.

I regret that I have not found it possible to include in the present volume the Appendix and Notes. Those who have prepared a similar glossary will realise the amount of labour involved in its preparation, and the impossibility of effecting more in the time at my disposal.

No one can be more conscious than myself of the imperfection of my work, nor more desirous of having it corrected where it is wrong. For all instructive criticism I shall be grateful: to any other I am quite indifferent.

ROBERT ATKINSON.

THE PASSIONS AND THE HOMILIES

FROM

LEABHAR BREAC.

IN Irish, as in other studies, the real order in which to proceed is from the known to the unknown. Were Modern Irish a thing of certain and regulated usage, I should hold that a thorough knowledge of the modern tongue should form the indispensable basis of every attempt at further study. But whether for good or for evil, this is well-nigh impossible. What then is the next best step? Here, too, it seems to me a matter hardly admitting of dispute, that the right material to handle with the most hope of success is the ecclesiastical portion. The words really have a fairly known meaning, of which the student can get a grip, and the matter is by no means without its share of human interest. Words of questionable meaning give scope for a varied and sanguine ingenuity, but much study expended on them is only a waste of time. It is beginning at the wrong end. Works like the famous Amra, the Dialogue of the Two Sages, &c., and much of the Early Hymns, belong as yet to the luxuries or superfluities, not to the necessities of study. The real and permanent foundation is the ecclesiastical gloss. It is not for nothing that Ireland was called the Island of Saints. No problem could well be more interesting than the whole question of the introduction of Christianity into the British Isles. At whatever time effected, the process of conversion must have been rapid, and its influence enormous, for at a very early period we find Ireland full of scribes, not probably possessed of any deep learning, but still illumined by whatever light was in the air at the time. The Irish scribe translated and paraphrased all that he could lay hold of, edifying or interesting, and of course, as was natural, his attention was turned largely to the religious element which so deeply entered into his life. As the foundations of Irish Grammar lie deep down at the very roots of the old glosses of the ninth century, so the foundations of Irish Lexicography rest amid the thousand-and-one ecclesiastical literary records—the translations, the paraphrases, the homilies, the lives of saints, the adaptations, the expansions, and abridgments of medieval hagiography and Church history.

CONTENTS OF LEABHAR BREAC.

But before proceeding further, I have deemed it well to prefix a brief account of the contents of the MS. from whence the texts following are taken, viz. the passions and the homilies.

The Leabhar Breac is a MS. about five hundred years old, and is now in the Royal Irish Academy. A facsimile, published by the Academy in 1876, has made its study possible to a wider circle of workers.

The style throughout is in general regular and easy, and even on that account alone the book furnishes perhaps the best material for early study of the language. The texts are many of them either translations from the Latin, or based upon Latin documents still accessible, so that they do not demand any great waste of ingenuity to discover their meaning.

Speaking roughly, the MS., which consists of one hundred and forty leaves of the largest folio, many very closely written, with double columns on each page containing in some cases over eighty lines each, may be divided into three portions, as follows:—

- [A.] Passions, Homilies, &c., ending with the Felire.
- [B.] Religious history, &c., ending with stories of Philip and Alexander the Great.
- [C.] Homiletic matter, ending with Cormac's Glossary of Irish words.

The following detail will show the position of the texts I purpose to give. The MS. begins with—

- [I.] 1 a 1. The Passion of Christ's Image.
- [II.] 4 a 38. Some details of the history of Pope Sylvester (incomplete).
- [III.] 7 a 1. Fragment of the meeting of Paphnutius and Onophrius.
- [IV.] 7 β 1. Passion of Marcellinus.

Next follows Moelruain's Rule of the Culdees [9 β 1]—[12 β 28], published by Reeves in Trans., R. I. A., vol. xxiv., p. 200. On [13 α] begins the genealogical record of the Irish Saints, continuing down to [24 α], where the homiletic matter, which occupies fifty consecutive pages, begins, viz. :—

24 β 1. Populus qui sedebat, &c. [Life of St. Patrick.]*

29 β 51. Betha Coluim Cille. [. . . Colum Cille.]*

[V.] 34 α 19. Césad Stefain. [Passion of St. Stephen; mainly Latin.]

[VI.] 34 β 35. [Finding of Stephen's body.]

[VII.] 35 β 26. Sermo ad reges.

[VIII.] 40 α 26. Domnach na himrime. [Palm Sunday.]

[X.] 45 α 7. De jejunio Domini in deserto.

[XI.] 48 β 18. In cena Domini.

[XII.] 52 β 11. De die Pentecostes.

[XIII.] 56 α 1. Imdibe Crist. [Circumcision of Christ.]

59 α 16. De virtute S. Martani. [Life of St. Martin.]†

61 β 22. Betha Brigte. [Life of St. Brigit.]*

[XIV.] 66 β 1. Omnia ergo quæcumque vultis, &c. [Charity.]

[XV.] 68 β 50. Do'n almsain. [Alms.]

[XVI.] 72 α 1. Milia milium ministrabant ei, &c. [St. Michael.]

Then, after a page of litanies (of Mary, Jesus), we have the Felire of Oengus,‡ which occupies thirty-two pages of text, from 75 α to 106 β .

Next come a few short pieces, with some homiletic matter.

[XVII.] 107 α 1. On the Transfiguration. [Mostly in Latin.]

[XVIII.] 107 β 57. Do'n aithrige. [Repentance.]

108 α 58. Explanation of the colours of the Chasuble.

But the main content of this section [B] is the Biblical history, which occupies fifty pages, from 109 to 160, when the Passions commence :—

[XIX.] 160 α Passion of our Lord.

[XX.] 170 α 21. Ero mors tua, o mors. [Christ's descent into Hades.]

* These three lives were edited, text and translation, by Stokes, in his Middle Irish Homilies, Calcutta, 1877.

† This was published by Stokes in the Revue Celtique (II., p. 384).

‡ Published by Stokes in the Trans., R. I. A., 1880.

Next follows the connected series of Apostolic Passions :—

- [XXI.] 172 β 41. Passion of Peter and Paul.
 [XXII.] 175 β 1 ,, Bartholomew.
 [XXIII.] 177 a 49. ,, James.
 [XXIV.] 178 β 35. ,, Andrew.
 [XXV.] 179 β z. ,, Philip.

Ending with a brief genealogy, &c., of the Apostles, [180 β 44.]

After some other notes we get—

- [XXVI.] 181 β 46. Passion of Longinus.
 [XXVII.] 183 a 24. Procept na Machaabdai. [The Machabees.]

This, however, unfortunately, is only a fragment, the end being lost in the chasm following 184. After a poem and some notes on Samain (All-Hallows), the MS. follows up with the Passions:—

- [XXVIII.] 187 β 44. Passion of John the Baptist.
 [XXIX.] 189 a 32. ,, The Seven Sleepers at Ephesus.
 [XXX.] 190 β 1. ,, St. George.

The Biblical narrative is now resumed on 194, with an account of the incidents subsequent to Christ's resurrection; after which follow two homilies:—

- [XXXI.] 198 a 22. On the Epiphany.
 [XXXII.] 201 a 1. On St. Michael.

Next follows the Epistle of Jesus on the observance of the Lord's Day, 202 β 25, which breaks off abruptly in the chasm after 204.

Then comes in, abruptly, with the loss of the commencement, the profane history of Philip and Alexander the Great,* from 205 to 212; the next seven pages [213 a 26] to [219] being occupied with a wonderful Rabelaisian story, the Vision of Mac Conglinde, well translated by Mr. Hennessy in Fraser's Magazine of Sept., 1873, but without text.

The next section [C] begins with a page [220] taken up with St. Patrick, his contemporaries, and coarbs, followed by the history of

* Portions of this were published by Dr. K. Meyer in a Leipzig Dissertation, 1884: and others by Prof. Geissler in the Gaelic Journal, vol. ii., and in Irish Texts, Dublin, 1884.

Christ's Cross, which occupies seventeen pages, from 221 to 236 a, where are given some incidents in the life of Colum Cille.*

Next come the old Hymns—'Altus prosator,' 'Audite omnes,' the (gapped) copy of the Amra of 'Colum Cille,' 238^c, and of 'Senan,' 241 a; the 'Lorica of Gildas,' 241 β, and a few miscellaneous entries.

The MS. now provides a section of homiletic matter, as follows:—

- [xxxiii.] 243 a—246 β. On the Ten Commandments.
 247 On the Canonical Hours.
 247 β 54. Sermo Synodalis in singulis synodis (enuntiandus)
 a parrochianis presbyteris. [in Latin.]
 [xxxiv.] 248 a 45. The Lord's Prayer.

* This text, of which Stokes seems to have not known, gives several various readings:—

(1.) The passage describing Colum Cille's request is thus given in the Felire notes (June 9):—

bás aithrige, 7 bás gortai, 7 éc ináite. arisgranna nacuirp triasin sentai. hunde eúacte.	death in repentance, and death of hun- ger, and death in youth (for hideous are the bodies through old age) . . . ?

where St. adds in note, "this corrupt and (to me) unintelligible passage stands thus in Laud 610 (Mr. Hennessy's copy): triasin sendadaig sentuinde eunaiedhe."

This does not make matters much clearer. But the text in 236 β 20, has none of this unintelligible matter, and reads as follows:—bás oilithre, ar ro-sanntaiges hí as mo áitiu, 7 bás gortai, 7 éc hi n-áitiu, ar it granna na cuirp hí sénn-taid, "death of pilgrimage, for I have wished for that from my youth, and death by hunger, and death in youth, for in old age bodies are ugly." And this, I believe, will explain the corruptions: sanntaiges, with the common change of v for a, and d for g, and the sendataig preceding, was written sentuinde; eunaete, is then to be divided thus: e im aete = é i m'áite, "I desired it in my youth"; corresponding to the as mo áitiu of 236 β.

(2.) Another interesting point is the addition in 236 β 48 to the excuse alleged by the cook, when asked what he put in the pottage: viz. acht mi-na thi as iud iurn in aighin, no as in crand, &c., 'there is nought save pottage unless it come from the iron of the cooking-pot, or from the mixing stick.'

(3.) And a third point is the curious variation in the explanation [236 β 39] of the three chairs: "I, said Colum Cille, am the glass chair, from the abundance of my affection; for dearer to me are the Gaedil than the world's meu, and the race of Conall than the Gaedil, and the family of Lugaid than Conall's race," &c.

	251 a 1.	De figuris et spiritualibus sensibus oblationis sacrificii ordinis.
[xxxv.]	251 β 38.	Domine, quis habitabit, &c.
	253 β 43.	The Vision of Adamnan.*
	256 a 44.	Portion of Creed.
	257.	Christ, the third person in the Trinity. [Lord's Supper.]
[xxxvi.]	258 a 11.	On Fasting.
	258 β 8.	Visio quam vidit Adamnanus.

After a few miscellaneous entries we get a copy of Cormac's Glossary, from 263 a to 272 a; which is followed by a few pages of Irish history, relating to the life and times of St. Cellach, and some notes, 277 a 26, on the consecration of a church; and the MS. ends with a late and mutilated account of the passion of Christopher Dog-head, and a still more mutilated and incomplete account of St. Bernard's colloquy with the Virgin Mary, begging her to tell him the story of her Son's Passion in all its detail, that he might narrate it to his Christian companions, who wished to hear it.

From the above brief analysis will be seen at once the general contents of the MS., and the portions printed in the following texts (the latter being numbered in the margin).

Of these, the Passions are given in two divisions, first, the general passions, and next, the apostolic; the sources of the narrative being discussed in the Notes appended to the translation. The Homilies then follow in the order of the MS. as set forth above.

Circumcissio de qua hic memoratur unum est de generibus baptisimi Ueteris 5660 Instrumenti. Genera enim baptismatis sunt sex in Ueteri Testamento, quibus Noui baptismata figurabatur:—quorum primum genus est quando spiritus Domini super aquas ferebatur, et diuisit aquas ab aquis;—secundum genus est diluuium in tempore Noe, quod significat mortificationem omnium peccatorum in diluio baptismi;—tertium genus est aspersio sanguinis aquæ in Egipto, quo liberatus est populus Israeliticus de Egiptiaca seruitute, quod significat corpus et sanguinem Domini nostri .i. Christi, per quod spiritualis populus de tenebris peccatorum liberatur, unde ipse ait, qui manducat corpus meum et sanguinem meum bibit, ipse in me manet et ego in illo;—quartum genus est transitus rubri maris populo liberato et Faraone submerso, quod significat transitum uniuscuiusque [per bab]tismum, diabolo suggestionibus (.i. insidiis) suis dimerso;—quintum genus est sanguis uacæ rufe trium annorum, quod significat sanguinea opera in trino homine mortificata;—sextum genus est ipsa circumcisio de qua nunc narratur.

Ritus autem et religio circumcissionis, Deo patre iubente, a beato Abraham patriarcha [sumpsit] exordium; a quo etiam ut die circumcissionis nomen paruulis aptaretur exortum est, quia et ipse, cum a Deo circumcissionis testamentum acciperet, eadem die prorsus nominis augmentum promeruit. Uair cid Abraham fen in tan arroét demin forgell ind imdibe o Dia, tuccad tuilled anma fair .i. Abraham. Uair tri hanmunda ro-thecht fair, amal aisnedes Pilisio ic trachtad libair Ióib .i. Queritur, quare Abraham primus circumcissus est? ideo scilicet quia promissum est ei de semine eius nasciturum esse saluatorem qui nos per baptismum ab omni peccato liberaret. Ideo autem Abraham circumcissus est ut, quia perfecte Deo in mente credidisset, in corpore signum circumcissionis acciperet, et indicium castigandi eos ab omni inquinamento carnis et spiritus, qui ad hoc semen et ad hanc fidem pertinerent. Nonaginta autem et nouem annorum erat Abraham quando carnem circumcidit preputii sui. Ismahel autem decimo tertio anno etatis suae circumcissus est, quod etiam Arabes qui ab eo instituti sunt custodiebant. Multarum amplius gentium, et maxime que Iudae Palestineque confines sunt, usque hodie populi circum-*
 5705 ciduntur; et precipue Egypti Idumei Amonite et Moabite et omnis regio Sarracinorum que habitat in solitudine. Et in eadem die circumcissus est Abraham et Ismael filius eius et omnes uiri domus eius, tam uernaculi quam empticii, pariter circumcissi sunt. Isac autem primus octaua die
 5710 circumcissus est; primus enim Abraham post circumcissionis imperium natus est; et nec immerito, quia non secundum naturam sed secundum mandatum Domini natus sit, preceptum circumcissionis primus impleuerat; ipsa autem circumcissio octaua die fieri precipitur, sic enim in lege scriptum est: infans octa dierum circumcidetur in uobis, masculus

 5725 promissionem in qua erat per castitatem placandum. Uile autem membrum circumcidi precipitur;—primo, ut libidinis ardorem in ipso etiam coitu temperet;—secundo, quia quod uelari debet circumcidendo corporis honestatem non subtrahit.

In the Irish text, as printed, I have in general omitted the Latin intercalations ; but in order to facilitate further study by the theologians to whom, no doubt, these texts will be of interest, the Latin passages are given in place of, or along with, the English translation. Where the Latin, however, was left untranslated by the Irish scribe, or was necessary to complete the sense, I have left it in the Irish text, save in a few cases which have been transferred into the Appendix.

I have not been anxious to give a slavishly literal translation of the Irish text ; but I have not passed over any real difficulty of which I was conscious. The notes and glossary will help in cases of doubt. I have collated all the texts I knew of, but not with a view to more printing : I have only given what seemed to me useful in explanation of the printed text. To the same end I have quoted in the notes the text of the Latin (real or presumable) original only when the comparison or contrast seemed to me helpful, in cases of difficulty or difference of reading.

Into the discussion of the relations of these Irish translations to extant versions in other languages I have not entered, through considerations of both space and time. It is nearly certain, however, that the whole of the texts here printed are versions made directly from the Latin, though it might not be without interest or value to investigate the possible relations of these Irish versions with those extant in the Romance languages.

TRANSLATION.

[I.]

[THE first of these 'Passions' itself tells the source whence it was taken, in the brief Prologus, viz., Libellus Anustasii archiepiscopi Alexandriae urbis. The whole account is found in Surius, "De probatis Sanctorum historiis," &c., Coloniae Agrippinae, Anno MDLXXXI., vol. vi., p. 237, where the title stands thus:—Libellus Athanasii Episcopi Alexandrini, de Passione Imaginis Domini Nostri Iesu Christi, in Beryto urbe Syriae crucifixae: qui in septima Synodo aecumenica, Actione 4, unde nos eum descripsimus, citatur, et Athanasio tribuitur; quod non parum facit ad libelli auctoritatem. A reference to Mansi, Concil. tom. xiii., col. 580, brings out the following circumstances:—The paragraph containing the Epistle of Athanasius follows immediately on another headed, 'Ex miraculis sancti martyris Anastasii,' &c., which accounts for the appearance of Anustaisius in the Irish text (20), instead of Athanasius. Then, a few lines before our Libellus, we find, "Iohannes . . . dixit: ex praedictis satis clarum existit, sanctorum imagines etiam miraculis clarescere et medelas facere. Petrus sanctissimus Episcopus Nicomediae dixit: affero diui Athanasii in hanc sacram synodum librum quem (si iubetis) legemus"; whence probably the confusion in the Irish text (16), "then arose Nicomedia, the archbishop of the metropolis."

I do not, of course, know to what particular mss. the Irish writer had access in translating his account of this Passion; but it can hardly be doubted that some copy of the account of this Seventh General Council lay before him.]

THE PASSION OF THE IMAGE OF CHRIST.

There is a royal city in Asia called Cæsarea Cappadocia. Once on a time came the sages and holy seniors and faithful overseers of Asia, and very many Christians of all the East, to this city, Cæsarea; and also other noble crowds came from every quarter to the same city. It was for this purpose that the faithful of Asia Minor in general assembled, viz., to hold a synod and council to strengthen and fortify the faith and belief of the Church of the living God. After holding the synod, as we have said, and after fortifying God's Church that shall never fade, there arose amongst them wonderful discussion and questioning as to the blood and water that issued from the side of the image of Christ. Great was the error and vast the perplexity about it among them all in the aforesaid city, Cæsarea in Cappadocia; and it was chiefly for this that the assembling together of the holy archbishops took place—to investigate and find out what was that blood and water that came out of the side of the image of Christ. And while they were there thus in one place, each speaking to his fellow as they were wont, there arose in the presence of all [Peter, of] Nicomedia, archbishop of the metropolis, who was there present (chief of) the holy synod, and he spake with a loud voice, so that all heard him:—"O holy fathers," said he, "and noble, learned sages, if it were your will, I would solve your question from the book written by Anastasius [Athanasius], archbishop of Great Alexandria, in reference to the question and discussion among you anent the blood and water that came from the image of Christ." The whole synod replied and said:—"Very glad and willing are we that it should be read, and that we should all hear it from thee." Then the bishop brought forth the book, and read the title in the presence of everyone; and they all with one accord listened to it then. Finit Prologus.

This now was the preface and beginning of the story, as written by Anastasius [Athanasius], archbishop of Alexandria, concerning the passion and suffering of the image of Christ, Son of the living

God—how that image and form was crucified and suffered in the city called Berytus in Syria, in the time of Constantine the Young and his wife Euone: then was done this wonderful deed, than which before nor since was never miracle greater or more wonderful;—for as heaven shook and trembled at the suffering of Christ in the first passion, and gloom and darkness came over the sun and the moon and all the stars of heaven, when the foundations of the great deep were shaken, and a mighty, wondrous earthquake sent forth the dead alive upon the earth;—thus it was done also in the second passion of this holy image of Christ, the Son of God.

Then spake Anastasius [Athanasius]:—“Listen and be silent, and believe and love the things I disclose to you, and take them to you with the ear of your heart and of your mind, with right and complete faith, and with a pure heart. This now is the beginning of your story:—There is a certain city in Syria called Berytus, near Antioch the Great, between Tyre and Sidon, and an innumerable multitude of people are therein: nor is this great number surprising, for it had the honour of being the metropolitan city when this event took place in it. A certain Christian man of the people of Jerusalem happened to be dwelling near the synagogue of the Jews, who were in the town, for they were all Jews that dwelt therein at that time. One of the people of the town gave a house and dwelling to that Christian of Jerusalem in return for rent and money given him. In this way the Christian dwelt there, having in his possession an image of Christ without the knowledge of the Jews (the story of this image and its origin, who made it, or out of what it grew, are not told here, but in the latter end of the book). The Christian then removed into the little dwelling which he had bought from that Jew, taking the image with him, none knowing that he had it, or indeed that he was a Christian; and on his entering the house he placed the image on the wall near which was the head of his bed. Of this fashion was the image: of equal height, size, and breadth with Christ himself; for Nicodemus, a secret friend of Christ, had moulded this image in the shape of Christ, to be with him for worship, since he could not have his fill of the worship of Christ himself, with whom he dared not speak nor converse openly through fear of the Jews, as we shall tell in the sequel. Now, when the Christian had been a long time in that house with his family, he felt it too small for him, so that he sought and found a place larger than it in the town. Thither he removed with all his property, except the image only :. but it he forgot through the providence and permission of God, and not for disrespect or dishonour to it, but owing to the secret counsel of God he forgot it ; for it was God's good pleasure to disclose his wonders and miracles to the faithful and pious, for condemnation and vengeance on the impious and unbelieving. There came a certain Jew into that Christian's little dwelling, and abode there ; but he knew not that the image was there, for he had not looked towards the place where the Christian had it secretly in his house. It happened now that the Jew was one day banqueting, and he called to him a tribesman and confrère to drink with him. As they were making merry and were joyful over their drinking, the guest raised his eyes, and saw the image of the Lord where it stood in secret near the wall. Immediately great anger seized him, so that his eyes blazed in his head ; he gnashed and bared his teeth on his companion, and said :—" How is it that thou, who art a Jew, hast with thee the form and image of Jesus of Nazareth ? " Then he uttered great abuse, with heavy, awful imprecations on the ever-living Saviour ; such, in sooth, were the extent and violence of his abuse and blasphemy against the true God, that neither the ears nor the heart of the righteous nor of the faithful could listen to the evil things he said through envy and jealousy of Jesus, nor could it be written nor set down on paper, nor would the Church tolerate its being written. The Jew, who had invited that malevolent and accursed guest to his feast, would fain have appeased and contented the wretched and diabolical man, but could not ; so, as was their wont, he took to pledging himself by the most awful mysteries, that he had never seen it before, and that he had not known till now that it was in the house. The guest was for a long time silent ; but after deciding on the plan that was in his mind, he betook himself to the place where were the learned of the priests and the chiefs of the Jewish people, and said to them :—" Know ye that there is an image of Jesus of Nazareth secretly with such and such a Jew of your own people ? " On hearing that, they at once said to him :—" It is not in the power of any man in the world to do what thou sayest, nor can it be true." But he averred with a great oath :—" I saw it myself in that house, and I will show it to you." 100

When they heard that, they believed it was there, and were indignant at the matter. It was then eventide, and the night was falling on them, so they kept silent till the morning. But on the morrow, when morning dawned, the priests and leaders of the Jewish people, with everyone, old and young, all came together, and took the man who had laid the charge to the house of the possessor of the image, rushing hurriedly thither in a body. When they learned that what had been said to them was true, and had themselves seen the image, they made violent attacks and hurled fierce abuse on the man with whom it was found, inflicting intolerable suffering and tortures on him; then they thrust him out of the synagogue and out of the town, after scourging him till they left him half dead outside. Next they flung the image out on the ground, and said :—" An opinion has come to our ears and a great counsel to our hearts : as our fathers did much of mockery and ridicule to Jesus of Nazareth, and inflicted on him many varied tortures, let us do likewise to that image." Then they spat upon the face and countenance of the Lord's image, and smote it on the face with their hands and fists, saying with one another :—" What our fathers did to Jesus of Nazareth, the same and the like let us do to that image." Innumerable were the gibes and mockeries they launched against that image, and said again :—" We have heard, and seen it written, that they put big iron nails through his hands and feet on the cross; and we, too, though we are younger than the folk who crucified Jesus, will not leave undone to this image any whit of what they did." So they crucified it, as had been done to the Lord, thrusting sharp iron nails through its feet and hands, as had been done at the first Passion. More and yet more were they stirred with the gall of their bitterness and animosity, as if it had been Christ himself. " We have heard," said they, " that our forefathers gave Christ a drink of vinegar, bitter and of evil taste, from the end of a rod : let us do the same to it." Then they put the bitter draught to the mouth of the image. Nor even yet were the cruelty and savagery of their hearts allayed. " We have heard," said they, " that our elders put a 105.

crown of thorns on the head of the crucified, and that they smote him on the head with a rod": so one of them smote him thus. "We have learnt," said they, "that our fathers wounded the side and flank of Jesus; as for us, none shall see that we do less to this image than the folk before us did to Jesus of Galilee." So at their bidding, one among them, who had a spear, quickly brought it, and they bravely wounded the side of the image therewith. Now, when they had consummated this dreadful crime, there befell a marvellous wonder, never before that surpassed or equalled; for, from the wounded side of that holy image, there came out suddenly blood and water at the spot of that great wound. Aye, and as it befell of old, that at the crucifixion of Christ the elements shook, so it happened now: as heaven rocked of yore, and the elements shook and trembled in the first Passion, so was it done then through the power and permission of God; for not only were the visible elements shaken, but the grades of heaven shook at this great and insufferable crime done on the image of Christ.

Then Anastasius [Athanasius] put up earnest prayers, giving much praise to the Lord of the elements for that great miracle done to the image, saying:—"Eternal and everlasting glory to Thee, O Christ, with the Father and the Holy Spirit! for who is like unto Thee? and what other God can do mighty and marvellous miracles in heaven and on earth but Thou, O wondrous Mediator between God and man, of one substance and (one faith) with the Father, Redeemer of the world, Saviour of all goodness, well-spring and source of all kindness and mercy! Who can tell Thy humility and lowliness, O Jesus? for though Thou art the true God of heaven and earth, Thou didst take on Thee human flesh to save mankind; and that flesh was crucified in an awful, hideous death by the unbelieving, in whom was no fear nor dread. Who can tell the vastness of Thy patience, O Saviour? for when Judas came to give Thee up after selling Thee, Thou gavest him a kiss; * Thou didst heal the ear of Malchus, servant of the high priest, that had been cut off by the sword of the Apostle Peter, as Thou wast led to Thy death and sacrifice as a gentle sheep. How great is Thy compassion, O Christ, only hope of the world! for when Thou gavest Thyself on the cross, as an unspotted offering to the heavenly Father, Thou didst pray for the people who crucified Thee, saying, 'O heavenly Father, forgive them what they do, for they know not that it is evil'; for our salvation Thou didst take humanity upon Thee from the unspotted Virgin; for us and for our salvation Thou didst suffer the cruel death of the cross; Thou, of one substance and one age with the Father and the Holy Spirit; Thou, the One impassible, invisible, didst suffer for us in our humanity; and we have crucified Thy image! Glory and honour to Thee, Christ, Son of the living God! As Thou hast manifested to us these great miracles, be Thou merciful to us, and receive our faith, for we believe with all our heart and strength and mind. We all flee and come to Thee; and do Thou take us to Thyself, O Christ, Son of God!"

When they had said that and many other things, they uttered heavy and mournful cries, and wept bitterly and earnestly before God. Then all the host of the Jews, old and young, came to the holy church that was in the same city, Berytus, where was that noble, reverend saint, the man to whom God had given to be metropolitan of the chief city, the archbishop and head of the faith of all the town; and when all, gentle and simple, had come thither, they bowed down in his presence, and made their confession to him, acknowledging all their grievous sins and their transgression, and proclaimed their ill-doings aloud with humble voices, in the presence of the holy senior. Then he asked:—"What is the truth and what is the origin of this your story?" So they showed him the holy image, and told him of all the wonders and miracles that God had done by it,—how it had been wounded in the side, and there had issued water and blood from it; and how that blood and water healed people of every sickness and disease throughout Asia Minor. They told him everything fully, according to order. Then the holy senior asked them:—"How was it found? Did anyone give it you, and where was it till now?" "A certain Christian," said they, "forgot it in his little house, where he abode in the neighbourhood of the synagogue; for, when he went to another house to dwell there, he took with him everything he had, save the image." Then said the holy sage:—"Let the man be sent for." So they sought him out, and brought him to the presence of the metropolitan, who asked him :—" Whence came that holy image to thee ? where didst thou find it ? and who made it ? " The Christian replied, saying :—" Nicodemus, a secret friend of Jesus, who came to Him by night, made this image, in the shape, height, and size of Christ Himself, and kept it by him to worship, so long as he was alive. At his death he gave it to Gamaliel, the teacher of Paul the Apostle. Gamaliel, at death, gave it to James, who gave it to Simon, who gave it to Zacchaeus ; (Judas, the son of Simon, son of Zacchaeus [?]),—and it was with this Zacchaeus, father of Simon, father of Judas, that the cross was found. The image went thus from one good man to another till the time of the sacking of Jerusalem by Titus and Vespasian, forty-three years after the passion of Christ. So we gather from this that the image was made two years before the crucifixion, for the vengeance on Jerusalem took place forty-one years after the crucifixion, as is said in the ' book of the vengeance ' itself, so that this holy image was made two years before the passion of Christ. Now, when the beginning of the siege came to the city of Jerusalem, an angel of the God of heaven came to all the faithful and pious, and to the disciples of Christ in the city, bidding them leave the city, and flee to the kingdom of King Agrippa, where they would be free from fear, as he was a friend of the Romans, and had received his kingdom from them. When, therefore, the Christians left Jerusalem, with their furniture, as the angel had bidden them, and went to the land of Agrippa, they took the image with them, along with everything else they had ; and the image remained in Syria till to-day ; and I," said he, " brought it with me to this land, for my father and mother, at death, gave it to me." This, then, was the way that it came from Jerusalem to Syria.

When the holy metropolitan heard that true tale, great joy and gladness came upon him, so that he turned his face to the Jew, and said :—" O Israelite, turn speedily to God, to the Father of all living children, and worship together with us the Son of the heavenly Father, and the Holy Spirit, who giveth life and enlightenment to every soul, and pay quickly the vows due from thee." When all the people had heard that utterance, they cried out with a loud clear voice :—" We believe in God the Father, that He was increate ; and in the first-born Son, whom our forefathers crucified ; we believe also in the Holy Ghost,—Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the One True God Almighty.” After they had said that, they bowed down in the presence of the righteous metropolitan, and besought to be forgiven and healed of their sins. So the holy senior ^{2 r 21} began to teach and instruct them for a long time. Those who before were without baptism in the Christian faith now came and were baptised of him ; and he enjoined a fast of three days on the catechumens. So they prayed the holy sage to consecrate the whole synagogue in honour of the Redeemer. This they agreed to ; and large though it was, it was consecrated, and they were all baptised and blessed therein ; and Berytus, with its districts and peoples, also came under baptism. Thereafter power was taken by them over all their people, that the high-priest of the Christian faith should consecrate and build church and temple in the name of Christ, and in honour of the martyrs whom their fathers had put to death, for the old sages who lived before that time did little of these things. Then the senior did so gladly. And great joy and delight were felt in the city and the whole country for the salvation of their body and soul, for their liberation from the devil, and for their reception into the eternal kingdom.

Now, there grew up thereafter a great question and dispute with the holy sage, day and night, what should be done with the vessel that held the blood of the Lord, and what regulation should be made thereon. This, then, was the decision they came to,—that all the churches of the world should share in the Lord’s blood for their salvation : so there were made many glass vessels, into each of which was put a little of the blood and water ; and he sent his people with this throughout Europe and Asia, with orders to show all the miracles and wonders that had been done by it in the city, Berytus. So they departed, and showed these things to everybody in every place whither they came. Thus the glass vessels were distributed by the holy man, with the blood and water from the side of Christ in them ; the whole narrative being written out by them to set forth plainly, in their own dialect, the grace and miracles of the image to every church in the world.

Then the senior asked a common boon of all the churches to whom this salvation was brought, viz., that they should honour the feast of the Lord's image every year in the month of November,—the ninth month with the Jews, the eleventh with the Latins,—on the 5th of November, as they honoured Easter, or Christmas, or Whitsuntide, with reverence and joy. Finis. Amen.

[III.]

[The incidents here narrated in condensed shape are given in Surius, vi. 1174, and in the same sequence, the story following on in unbroken connexion, in spite of the Irish translator's finit, amen (358). The whole may be found in Combefis, Sancti Silvestri Romani Antistitis acta antiqua probatiora: Paris, MDCLIX. The two accounts of Surius and Combefis have many differences. The Irish text does not agree perfectly with either; but it can hardly be doubted that the original of the Irish was some Latin version of a Greek text not greatly differing from that given by Combefis. In the notes, C. denotes the Latin version found in Combefis. The following brief account is given in the Liberian Chronicle: ed. Lipsius (Chronologie der Römischen Bischöfe, &c.: Kiel, 1869), Beilage 1., p. 278:—"Hic exilio fuit in montem Seracten persecucioñ Constantini concusus et post modum rediens cum gloria babtizauit Constantino Augusto quē curauit Dominus per babtismum a lepra." Lipsius, op. cit., p. 260, quotes the old acta Silvestri and the Liber Pontificalis as furnishing the material of these marvellous incidents.]

Sylvester was a righteous, patient bishop, pupil of the high-priest Cyrinus, from whom he learnt from the beginning of his life; thus he got his knowledge and piety, for Sylvester was charitable and hospitable from the beginning of his life. Now there came an honourable and pious man named Timotheus, from Antioch to Rome, as a guest of Sylvester. He began at once to magnify the word of God, though at that time the persecution of the Christians in Rome was great. Pleasant and welcome to Sylvester was what Timotheus did, for many of the Romans turned to the faith and belief through the teaching of Timotheus. But when Tarquinius, the prefect of Rome at that time, heard how his people were turning to the faith through Timotheus, he had Timotheus seized and put to death after his capture. But Sylvester took up the body of Timotheus by night and buried it near the apostle Paul. Then Tarquin laid hold of Sylvester, for he thought that Timotheus had wealth, and he said to Sylvester:—"Unless thou give me all the wealth of the vile Timotheus, and unless thou thyself do sacrifice to my gods, thou shalt be tortured with varied tortures." Sylvester replied to him:—"Because thou callest 'vile' the holy martyr of the Lord, whom in his innocence thou hast slain, thou thyself shalt be dead this night." So he ordered Sylvester to be seized, and heavy chains to be flung on him, and had him cast into the lowest hold of the prison. After being thus cast into prison, Sylvester began to praise God without pause. But when Tarquin the prefect was eating his food, the vengeance of God came upon him,—a fish-bone stuck in his throat, so that he died thereof, as Sylvester had foretold him. Then the prefect was carried to his grave, with loud wails and heavy sorrow, while the Christians took Sylvester out of the prison with great joy and gladness; so confidence came to the Christians then, but mourning and dejection to the Gentiles.

After that all the people of Tarquinius came and received the faith and baptism from Sylvester. In the thirtieth year of his age he took deacon's orders from the pope Miltiades. God gave him great grace, so that he was not dearer to the Christians than to the Gentiles. He never committed any sin by cause of pride; for though the food of his body was upon earth, he was in heaven as far as his faith and will and whole nature were concerned. Now this was his description; an angelic face, pleasant, well-formed words, holy conduct, a pure body, excellent knowledge, courageous faith, patient lowly hope, lawful charity, steady counsel to everyone; full of the holy Spirit was he.

After the death of the holy bishop Miltiades, Sylvester was unanimously chosen in his place; he kept refusing everybody on the score of his youth, but this plea was not accepted, and he was ordained in all honour. So he daily taught in perfection the people over whom he was set by the permission and power of God. After he had been appointed to the headship and bishopric of Rome, as we have said, there arose a question, and difficulty and dispute, between the Greeks who were in Rome and the Latins; the Latins did not eat food on the sabbath at all, but fasted thereon; whereas the Greeks ate food on that day, after the use and wont of the Jews for the maintenance of their sabbath day. Sylvester ordered both parties to pay honour and respect to the Thursday as they did to the Sunday; for it was on a Thursday that God first placed his body in the mystery of the bread and wine, and on that day he went to heaven in his ascension. He recounted to them every miracle that was then done, and enjoined a fast on the sabbath; for on it Christ's body lay in the grave; on it the apostles and disciples of God fasted; so he bade them also all fast according to their ability.

Now there was at that time a fearful dragon on Mount Tarpeius, near Rome. The pagans had built a fair, well-constructed temple on that mountain; and their magicians and consecrated virgins came each month according to their order, bearing vessels full of offerings to the dragon. The breath and exhalation of the dragon poisoned all the air over Rome, so that an intolerable plague arose and great suffering among all the Roman people, through the poison and devilish power of the dragon. Now when that plague and great martyrdom got power and strength over Rome, through the persecution of the devil, the pagan people who were arguing and striving with Sylvester came to him, and together addressed him thus:—"Arise," said they, "in the name of thy own God, and go to the place where the dragon keeps, and pray him to remove his plague and vengeance from us at least one year; and after that we will believe in Christ, provided that we have learnt his power and might." So Sylvester and all the people fasted a three-days' fast, that God might take away that plague from all the people. Now after the [last] day of the fast, the apostle Peter appeared to Sylvester in a vision by dream, and said to him:—"Take some of thy brethren with thee, and go to the dragon's hole, and there make offering and sacrifice to Almighty God; and when thou art come to the cave of the dragon shut the door of the cave on the outside, and say, as thou art shutting it, 'thus saith the apostle Peter, never more do thou open the door of this cave, nor do hurt to any, while the world lasts.''' He did all as he was bid, and the people were delivered from the poison and plague of the dragon thereafter. But when the pagans, and hitherto worshippers and servants of the demon saw how the door had been shut upon him, and that he had no means of doing harm, they all came and were baptised by Sylvester, and believed and worshipped the one unchangeable God. Finit. Amen.

Constantine, son of Helena, was emperor in Rome and over the whole world at that time: stories of him are told now. At that time was made a common proclamation throughout every quarter of the world by order of Constantine the high emperor of the world, Sylvester being abbot of Rome when this proclamation was made. This was the resolution and decree made by Constantine: to compel and induce all the Christians to the worship of idols, and images, and demons. Now when Sylvester, the heir of Peter, heard of this proclamation, he retired with his people to Mount Soracte, near Rome, and was there in secret till God gave judgment on him.

Very many of the Christians died through that proclamation; but God wrought marvels, and gave assistance to the Christian Church of the time, as He ever does, and even voluntarily offered His own body to the earth. In like manner, at that time, He provided against the oppression of the Church, by sending a pestilence and great plague on the emperor Constantine,—a heavy indescribable leprosy, with lumps breaking out on his body like hillocks, and large ulcers throughout his body, and black, stinking animals with claws coming out of him, so that he became a bald leper, lamenting and wailing, with his whole body full of scratched sores. Then were assembled together his physicians, and magicians, and wise men, his sages and idolatrous priests, and all his people, for his cure and restoration to health. Now this was the advice that all those crowds made to him in the one place and with one accord: to make a fish-pool [piscina] in the temple of the idols, and to fill the pool with the blood of young, innocent children; and to bathe in it when it was heated, for thus he would be made whole;—this was their advice to him. So the attendants and faithful people of the king were sent through all the cities, and peoples, and districts of all Italy, to gather the children, and shed their blood into that fish-pool, in order to restore the king, as had been prescribed. Then there were collected by them three thousand little children from every quarter, till all that number was brought to Rome. After the children were all assembled together, a special day was appointed for their massacre; and when they were all in the one place, ready for death, the king with his hosts came to the temple of the idols to slay these children. Then came all the mothers of the children, with their hair tossed all about their heads, their eyes red, their breasts and bosoms naked, wringing their hands, weeping piteously, and being filled with the bitterness of intolerable cursings. But when the king heard these loud outcries, and the wild beating of hands, he asked:—"What mean these grievous cries and lamentations?" On the cause being told him, his heart went out to the women, and great pity and compassion took him, so that he wept bitterly, with a flood of tears down his cheeks, and he spake with a loud, clear voice, so that all heard him:—"From the womb of a woman I came forth, and no son of woman shall be slain by me, without cause of sin in him; for better and more suitable for me were it, myself to go to death on behalf of the multitude, than for a multitude to die for my sake, even though my health should be restored thereby." So Constantine forbade that great cruelty of the idolatrous pontiffs, and of the savage, sinful priests, who had given him their counsel. After thus saving the children, the king ordered them to be given back to their mothers in all safety, adding:—"The folk who came to me with bitter, sad, and downcast hearts, let them be sent home joyous, happy-hearted; and let there be given them," said he, "provision of gold and treasure, and well-formed, evenly-built chariots, with swift-running horses; and let not woman nor child of them go without abundance of horses, and food, and clothing," &c.

On the very night these innocent children were saved from death, the king beheld a vision in a dream,—Peter and Paul coming to him, and saying:—"We are Peter and Paul, two apostles of God; we have been sent by God to thee to give thee counsel whereby thou shalt find health for thy body and thy soul. Send out messengers for Sylvester, the bishop who is on Mount Soracte, in flight from thy persecution ; bring him to thee with honour and dignity, and listen to his counsel and his teaching ; and he will show thee the fish-pool and fountain, from which thou shalt arise sound both in body and soul, and afterwards shalt dwell in heaven for evermore, for thy favour to the fair youths." Then the king arose from his sleep, and saw near him the physician who was bringing him the herbs of healing and medicaments(?) for his wounds, and the king said :—"Go thy way, for no earthly physician shall put hand to my healing ; but Almighty God shall be my physician." So saying, he sent messengers to Mount Soracte, and had Sylvester brought to him with great honour and respect. When the king saw him, he rose up before him, and bade him welcome, saying, with a loud voice :—"I give thanks to Almighty God for thy coming." Sylvester replied, and said :—"O Constantine, great emperor, peace and victory to thee from heaven." "I beseech and implore thee," said Constantine, "to tell me truly, have ye certain gods called Peter and Paul?" Sylvester answered :—"They are not gods at all, but servants of the true and one God Almighty, whom we honour, who made heaven and earth, and all that in them is. They are the chiefs of the apostles ; they were from the first in the number of the saints and the righteous ; from them the Church received the New Testament in the beginning, and they are now in heaven, the friends of Almighty God." "I beseech thee, O Sylvester, to tell me what is the shape of their form ; and it is for this reason I ask thee, to find out whether it was they who came to me last night, and said that God had sent them to me." Then Sylvester bade a deacon of his people fetch the images of the apostles ; and when they were brought forth, the emperor looked at them, and said :—"These are, in truth, the countenances and faces of those whom I saw in my dream, and who bade me send for thee to the cave on Mount Soracte, and that I should also give ear to thy words and thy teaching ; and tell me what I shall do now?" "If thou believe in Christ with all thy heart, I will tell thee." "If I had not believed with all my heart, I would not have sent messengers to fetch thee at all." Sylvester replied :—"Fast, now, this week, and put away from thee thy royal bed and thy purple raiment, and get thee to thy lowly chamber, and put around thee the humble garb of penitence, viz., sackcloth, made of goats' hair, and prostrate thyself with thy face to the ground, and do heavy, grievous penance, for through ignorance thou hast slain the saints and servants of God ; and let there be quickly published by thee this week throughout all the world a plain proclamation, to destroy all the temples of the idols, and to cease paying sacrifice to them ; and free the poor and the needy debtors from the royal tax, and set free all whom thou hast in prison and in bondage ; and bring back to their own possessions again all who are in exile and wandering, and bestow abundance of food on God's poor and needy throughout the week, giving to everyone who has need, and to everyone who asketh aught of thee." So Constantine did everything as he had been commanded ; and he was baptised at the end of that week. Now, when he went into the water to be baptised, there came suddenly an indescribable brightness and an intolerable glare, with the rays of the sun upon him, and a loud, distinct voice came down into the water while he was therein. When the king arose out of the water, he was wholly clean in body and soul ; and pure as was his body from leprosy, his soul was yet purer from sins ; and he was arrayed in a garment of white linen thereafter. Then the royal Roman people shouted aloud with great clamour, and said with one accord :—"It is the one true God, Christ, the Son of God, who hath restored the Emperor Constantine, son of Helena." Then this order and proclamation was made by the king, that everyone who did not believe in Christ should be expelled from Rome, or should be put to death therein. In that year there believed of them twelve thousand, besides women and children. Constantine, indeed, issued this order and decree to the Roman people, on the first day after he had received baptism, that whoever should blaspheme Christ or the Church should be deprived of his wealth, and himself be then driven into exile. After that a fair and well-built church was erected by Constantine for the people of God and for his own servants in his royal palace that he had ; and he honoured the Christians beyond any other man.

Now, when the news of her son's belief in Christ was told to Helena, the rightful queen, who was at that time in Jerusalem, there assembled all the multitudes of Judea to Helena, and they lied to her, and prayed her not to allow her son to believe in Christ, saying that 'it was fitter to follow and observe the old law of Moses, the son of Amra.' So Helena sent to Rome a letter addressed to her son Constantine, bidding him renounce Christ and the faith he had accepted, and believe in the one true God alone, the God of the Jews. When the king heard this, and when he saw the . . .

[I have inserted this fragment because it formed portion of the story continued in the following Passion of Marcellinus, as is shown in the MS. of the British Museum, entitled the "Leabhar Breac" (Egerton, 91, fol. 62, recto). Part of the same story, but not of the same version, is found in Egerton, 92 (fol. 12, recto), from which I have added here the connecting link wanting in our MS.

The story of the meeting of the monks Onophrius and Paphnutius in the desert is given in Acta SS., June 12, vol. ii. 522 : cf. also, Migne, tom. lxxiii. 211, Vita S. Onophrii Eremitae.]

. . . on thee, and the fame of thy piety shall go through all the world. After that I bowed down before him, and wept long and earnestly ; and I begged him in sadness not to send me away from him. "Not so, my son," said he ; "it is the will of God ; do thou depart to-morrow precisely." On the morrow we divided what there was of small seeds, and he gave half to me, and we both wept ; and he came with me a short distance. After prayer, and blessing me, he turned back from me ; and I knew not where I would come to ; but I turned my face westwards to the setting of the sun. To tell what befell me of hardship from beasts, from mountains and hills, from rocks and heights, from journey and sickness and hunger, I will not undertake, for I could not narrate it all ; but God directed me hither, and stopped me here, where I found yonder palm-tree, which then was but small, and a small plain around the palm, with a stream of pure water trickling down from the rock above it. After fervent prayer to God, I abode there; and it is now sixty years since I saw or spoke with any man, save thee alone now, and I know that it is for this God has brought thee to me, to bury me, for I perceive that thou art a servant of God;" then adding, "but it is nones now," he came out with tottering strength, and took with him the full of a little jug of that water, and did his afternoon prayer, as he was wont, as likewise did I myself. After that I brought out my four cakes—for they still remained unbroken with me—and whatever I ate of them, much or little, they still remained whole; and I gave him then one of these cakes; but, at the sight of it, he said:—"This is angel's food; I am not worthy to touch or taste it." And when he took note of it, he would not taste it at all, through his respect for it and through his humility. Afterwards he arose, and brought seven palm fruits and a handful of large, sweet roots to me, with a jug of pure water; but as he did not eat the cakes nor the wine I had, so neither did I taste them, while we were together. After performing our vespers and complines, he placed a small armful of long grass under me, and he himself settled his left elbow and his head against the wall of the cave; and the cave seemed to me to be lit up till the morning, after saying our prayers; and we spoke no word more till terce on the morrow; but after the service on the morrow . . .

(“After terce on the morrow, I gave him the viaticum; and he went to heaven. After that, Paphnutius went out of the desert, God having performed many wonders and miracles for him, so that he spread the faith of religion and belief in the Trinity throughout Egypt and Africa, and at last, after converting many various tribes of the Egyptians and Africans to the divine faith, reached Rome, where he made his way to Diocletian, the sinful, corrupt, unbelieving Roman emperor.”)

PASSION OF MARCELLINUS.

[Concerning the events narrated in this passion, there is room for difference of opinion. There can scarcely be any doubt that Marcellinus did apostatize under the influence of the great persecution: cf. Catal. Liber., p. 277, ed. Lips., "De qua re ipse Marcellinus ad sacrificium ductus est ut turificarit"; cf. Lipsius, p. 246, and AA. SS., April, iii., p. 415, Legenda Aurea, ed. Græsse, p. 271.]

Now, when the Emperor Diocletian heard the fame of the piety and knowledge and faith of the Abbot Paphnutius, and when he heard, also, that it was he who had turned Tansis [Thais] away from her whoredom, as well as of the other great miracles that God had done by him in Egypt and in Africa, and when he further heard of his coming with a view to teach him, he knew that there was no other cause of his coming but for martyrdom. Thus, when he learned of his arrival in Rome, great fear and terror seized the Emperor Diocletian thereat. And when his arrival was made known to the Romans, who had heard before of his wonders and miracles, the Christians went secretly to bid the saint welcome; and he healed people of every disease, and cast down many idols and images in Rome, and taught the word of God therein, so that many thousands of the Romans believed on him. When Diocletian learnt of the great increase and impulse given by him to Christianity, he sent forth cruel, idolatrous messengers to seek him; but every troop of these cruel, sinful men that came to seek him accepted the faith on his teaching, and were baptised by him in the Christian belief. At this the king was angered, and had him seized in Rome, in the midst of his admirable instruction to the people; and along with the Abbot Paphnutius was seized, at the same time, everyone who had believed before, and they were all brought into the presence of the emperor. But when he had come with his people to the royal palace, a great earthquake took place, accompanied by an adverse, fiery wind that shook the whole palace, so that a large part of it fell on the head of the king's folk, and there died of them one hundred and six. Then fear and intolerable terror laid hold of the king himself, and they were all silent after the death of his people for the space nearly of three hours; after which the anger of the emperor waxed greatly, and there were slain great numbers of the Christians, and the Abbot Paphnutius was seized; but, such was his holiness and nobility, they did not dare to put him to death, but they struck his right eye out of his head, and cut out his right haunch under him, not daring to kill him, as we said. Marcellinus was Pope of Rome at the time, and by him the Abbot Paphnutius was healed. Eutychi[an]us, further, was abbot at the time when came Gaius [after that, and] Marcellinus afterwards.

Tales of Marcellinus are now told.—When the Emperor Diocletian heard of the Abbot Paphnutius being cured by the Pope, he became greatly enraged against Marcellinus and against the Christians in general; so that a great and unspeakable persecution was set on foot against the Christian Church in the time of the Abbot Marcellinus; and such was the severity of this persecution, through the anger and might of the unjust emperor, that there died of the Christians six thousand, between men and women, in the space of forty days. Aye, and the fear of that heavy persecution affected even Marcellinus himself, so that he worshipped the idol through the instigation and advice of his people and attendants. The Christian Church was greatly disturbed and agitated at this, so that the bishops of the east of Europe all assembled to Rome about this matter—from three-cornered Spain on the west, and from Sicily in the south, and from Magna Graecia, over the Tyrrhene Sea, to the north, and from every land in general, so that nearly all the bishops of Europe came to Rome on account of the worshipping of the idol by the abbot, the head of the Church of God at that time. The size of this assembly may be judged from this, that there were three hundred and twelve bishops gathered together at the one time; and though at the time there was a great persecution of the Church of God, yet they were not hindered from all coming to Rome to cause repentance in the Abbot Marcellinus, and to learn about him. Diocletian heard nothing of their coming; and it was through the

might of God that he knew not ; for, had he heard, he would have slain them all. This great miracle was done two hundred and eighty-three years after the passion of Christ. Now, when they were all assembled from all parts to Rome to hear of this matter that had befallen the Church, they performed divine service with sighs and tears and great lamentation ; and then, with bowed down heads, eyes red with weeping, and hearts a-quiver, in all timidity, and with the honour due to a father, they asked of Marcellinus :—“ What is this, lord ? Is the story true that is being bruited about the four ends of the earth, that thou, who art the heir of Peter and head of the Christian Church throughout all the world, hast bowed down and worshipped the idol, as we have heard ? For on this account we are now come, in all this multitude, to find out the truth of this story.” Then a great and marvellous light flashed over the face and countenance of the Abbot Marcellinus ; and he wept aloud fervently with his face to the ground, and all the bishops with their faces to the ground. Then he arose along with the rest, the light yet playing on his face ; and after they had been silent a short while, Marcellinus thus spake :—“ The tale ye have heard is true. I have worshipped the idol through fear and temptation ; and now do ye pass judgment on that, for I am prepared for confession and penitence, on any judgment that is passed upon me ; and pass it at once, now that ye are all together in one place ; for it is God who hath brought you together, from every quarter, to free me from the demon.” The bishops answered him, and said that they would not give decision nor judgment on the heir of Peter, on the head of the whole Church of God, for his nobility. “ Even though thou hast denied,” said they, “ as thy master, the Apostle Peter, denied ; but no other apostle passed judgment on him—for who would have dared or would have watched to give judgment on him ?—so that he himself gave judgment, as saith the apostle, ‘ he went out and wept bitterly ;’ i. e., after Peter had thrice denied his Lord, he went out, apart from the apostles, and wept in bitter grief, shedding tears of blood ; but none passed sentence on him, save himself and God. We, too,” said the bishops, “ will pass no judgment on thee ; but we will leave it to thine own breast with thyself to decide what sentence thou wilt pass. Weigh well, therefore, and see what is fitting for thee to do." When he had heard those words, and their determination that they would not sentence him, he pronounced his own sentence and penance in the presence of all, saying:—"I, Marcellinus, the heir of Peter, for the crime and sin of idolatry that I have committed, and for the depth of my misery and ill fate, pronounce my exclusion from this great apostolic seat; and I declare him to be accursed and excommunicated for ever who shall bear my body to burial whensoever I die: and let not this be infringed." This judgment he passed on himself before the bishops and the men of every grade there present of the Church or the laity, and in the presence of Paphnutius, the holy abbot, who was there after his escape, maimed and with but one eye. After passing that judgment on himself in the manner we have narrated, Marcellinus rose up quickly, with the purple light on his face and the swift tears flowing down his cheeks, and spake with a loud voice, as he stood there in the royal palace, among all the sages we have enumerated:—"Wait ye now here a short space till I return to you." Then they were all silent for awhile about that; and he went away suddenly, with firm and hasty step, and a few of his people along with him; and they knew not as yet where he was going. But he went straight to the king's palace, where sat Diocletian the emperor, with the chiefs of the idolatrous kings round him; and he stood in the midst of the palace, with the spiritual light on his face. At the sight of him great silence fell upon the emperor with his chief men around him. Then Marcellinus spake aloud, in the hearing of all:—"I am a Christian. I declare and confess and acknowledge the name of Christ. It was for no honour to thee, nor to the demons thou worshippes, that I bowed down before the demon whom ye adore, but through the instigation and advice of my attendants and my people. I tell thee now that it was not of heart or mind that I did aught pleasing to you; and here I am openly, in the name of Christ, without denial or flight." ~ All were silent till he had finished all his speech; and then the king said:—"Since thou art a Christian, as thou sayest, we will give thee also the honour and dignity we give to other Christians." Then Diocletian bade his people take him and behead him. This was done; and Marcellinus was beheaded, and his body was cast out; so that he lay thirty days without burial, as he himself had said.

When, then, the news came to the bishops and the synod in general, they gave thanks to Almighty God, and departed each to his own home and abode; and after that Marcellus was immediately ordained by the Romans as abbot in his stead. The body lay thirty days and nights unburied, after Marcellus' ordination, and at the end of that period the Apostle Peter came to him in a dream, and said to him, as he was fixed in his abbacy there:—"Sleepest thou, Marcellus?" "Who art thou?" he asked. "I am Peter, the chief of the apostles;" adding, "why is it that my body lies yet unburied by thee?" Marcellus replied:—"Long ago, my lord, was thy body buried, with honour and great respect." "But the body of Marcellinus, my father, who shed his blood openly, and went to martyrdom for the sake of Christ and the Church, why hast thou not buried it? Hast thou not read in the Gospel the word of Christ, where he said, 'he that exalteth himself shall be humbled, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted?' But did not he humble himself, when he passed sentence on himself, that his body should not be buried, after saying that he was not worthy to have his body laid under ground after the deed he had done? Go, therefore, quickly, and bury him near me; for they whom martyrdom did not separate shall not be separated by difference of burial or honour, either in heaven or on earth." Then, in the morning, Marcellus arose and told the tale to all; and after that, Marcellinus was buried at the feet of the Apostle Peter, as he himself bade; and this took place two hundred and eighty-seven years after the passion of Christ.

[XXVI.]

PASSION OF LONGINUS.

[There is a copy of this passion in Eg. 91, fol. 13 ; but it is much blurred. It ends abruptly on 13 verso. There is another copy (paper) in Egerton, 136, p. 85, breaking off abruptly also towards the end (797). Cf. the account in AA. SS. March, ii., 384 ; Leg. Aurea, p. 202 ; and for the name Cennturus (672), the centurio of Matth. xxvii. 54, see Thilo, Cod. Ap. N. T., p. 586.]

When Christ was being crucified by the Jews, one of the soldiers, who was at His crucifixion, called Cennturus, and also Longinus, came and brought a long spear in his hand, with which he wounded Christ in His side, and split His heart in twain, so that blood and wine came out. Then great darkness covered all the face of the earth. The sun was darkened ; the rocks were rent ; and the graves were wide open. When, therefore, Longinus saw that great miracle, he forthwith believed in the one God, Jesus Christ ; and he cried with a loud voice, saying :—“ In truth, this is Christ, the Son of God ; this is He of whom the prophets and patriarchs prophesied that He would redeem the seed of Adam ; and now, for their sake, He hath gone to a lowly death.” Thereafter Longinus quitted his worldly military service, and wept bitterly, doing earnest penance to God ; and God pardoned all his sin. Thenceforward he was charitable, merciful, abstinent, and prayerful ; and he was admired by the apostles in his teaching in those cities, in Caesarea and in Cappadocia. After that, he lived twenty-eight years in the life of a monk ; and his miracles brought many, through his teaching, to the faith in God.

Now the fame of Longinus spread through all the world for charity and humility, gentleness and patience. But when he was perfect in these deeds, the Prefect Octavius heard of his fame and life and great dignity ; and he ordered Longinus to be brought to him that he might converse with him. On his coming, Octavius asked him his name. “ I am called Longinus.” “ From what country art thou?" "From Essuria [Isauria], a land in Asia Minor." "Art thou free-born or serf?" "I was a servant of sin at first; but God, by baptism, saved me from that sin, and will now redeem me by my going to martyrdom for the sake of my soul." "Why hast thou come into these lands?" asked the prefect. Longinus replied:—"I was in military service from the beginning of my life till the crucifixion of Christ; for it was I that wounded Christ with a soldier's spear in His right side, so that His heart burst. But I repented of that deed; and God pardoned me my sins. I besought my brethren after that to let me go and serve Christ. They gave me leave, but plundered me of all my wealth, save a little that I gave to God's poor. I prayed the Lord then to soften His heart towards me; and God saved me from my sins." "Thus, then, thou art a man honoured and esteemed by God," [?] said the prefect; adding, "but leave off that teaching now, and offer sacrifice to our gods before thou art put to the torture." Longinus answered:—"I cannot serve two masters. As God Himself said, 'opposed are services paid to two'; for my God, indeed, is a God of peace and love, of lowliness and mercy; but thy gods are movers of every ill, and disturbers of every good thing, and the ruin of everyone in general. I cannot serve your false gods, and leave my own God." "It comes to this, then: thy God is good, and ours are bad?" "It is so." "But how, then, could paganism raise its head in the world above Christianity, if the latter is better?" asked the prefect. "Knowest thou not," said Longinus, "seeing that paganism is opposed to Christianity? For paganism drives out knowledge and upholds ignorance, discourages temperance, stifles opinions, blinds the eyes, corrupts chastity, hates the poor, imagines evil thoughts, collects false reports, denies the truth; aye, through paganism everyone becomes rude, furious, and ignorant. Now, if thou art willing, I will tell thee some of the blessings of Christianity." "Thou hast said quite enough; and rude and unfounded it is. But rise, now, and give sacrifice to the gods; and thy God will pardon thee, for He knows that necessity is laid upon thee." "Better, in my judgment, would it be for thee to believe in Christ than to honour the dumb, rude gods whom ye honour. How can one call them gods who are no gods, but deaf and dumb idols, the works of the hands of sinful men?" "Let his teeth be knocked out of his head, and his tongue cut out, since he will not honour the gods," bade the ruler. Then it was done to Longinus according as the prefect had commanded. Longinus, for the love of God, endured it like a man, saying, in a loud voice, to the king:—"If ye, indeed, believe in these gods, that they are true gods, give me leave to cast down their altars and to break their images, and let them save themselves if they can." "Why is it that Christ has not come to deliver thee from the tortures thou hast got, and no harm has befallen me from Him?" "Permit me to break thy gods; and I will believe in them if they hurt me; and do thou believe in the one God if they cannot." "Settle it among you!" said the king. So Longinus began and broke the idols and the altars deliberately; and the demons fled out of their places. Then the fiend entered into the prefect, and another into the noble Afradotium; and from that out the demons took possession of the unbelieving officers of the prefect; so that fury and madness filled the king, with all his servants; and the demons spake through their mouths, saying to the king:—"Why hast thou brought this holy man to us to drive us out from our abodes?" The men came with the demons after that, and bowed down to Longinus, saying:—"We know and understand now that thou art the peculiar servant of God. O Longinus, be merciful to us and save us, for the sake of Everlasting God." Then Longinus addressed the demons:—"What brings you into these idols?" "We found the stone images," said the demons, "without the sign of the cross on them, and without being named in the name of God; and offerings were made in our name to us by men, so we dwelt in those places and spots thereafter; for where Christ is not honoured, nor the sign of the cross, there is our dwelling for ever; and we pray thee," said the demons, "not to send us out of our abodes and our places. Then said Longinus, as all the people stood round him on every side: "If it be your wish, I will expel all those gods out of you, so that they shall be laid under my feet." Then the people cried aloud:—"Thy God is the one Almighty God; and we beseech thee, O servant of God, not to let the demons into the city, but to deliver us from the evils they cause." Now, when he heard these words uttered by the pagans, he raised his eyes to heaven, and said:—"O Lord and

Ruler of heaven and earth, be merciful to these wretched men, and, through Thy great loving kindness to me, expel these demons from them for my sake, and deliver them, as Thou didst deliver the seed of Adam, by suffering death on the cross on their behalf." "May God do so!" said the people. Then the demons gave utterance to a shrill cry, and went out of the city; so that the people were saved thus through the charge of Longinus. And great joy was felt in all the city; many believed on God; and afterwards they kept with Longinus as long as they lived, till the devil entered again into the Prefect Octavius, and instigated him to set on foot a persecution against Longinus, whom he commanded to be brought before him. And when he came, the king said:—"Thou hast agitated the city, and driven it away from worshipping idols; and if the Emperor Nero hear of that, he will enslave us all, and deprive us of our wealth and riches." Then came the powerful man, spoken of before, Afradotium, out of whom the demon was cast down, to the place where was Longinus, and spake to the king:—"Why art thou arousing against us the holy man who delivered the city and us all from the might of the demons?" "It was through his wizardry that he saved our people." But Afradotium replied:—"It is certain that there is no deceit nor art of wizardry in him, but the worship of the one Almighty God." Then Octavius gave orders that Longinus should have his tongue cut out again, that he might speak no more. "I give thanks to God," said the martyr, "that along with us is another fighting for Christ." When they cut out his tongue, Longinus groaned, and heaved a deep sigh, and prayed the Lord for vengeance on the ruler for all the injustice he had committed. Thereupon the ruler became blind, and his bowels and entrails were twisted. After that, Afradotium said:—"O Lord, Thou art true; and Thy words are true; give help to me, and save me from the power of the devil. And the king said to Afradotium:—"Pray Longinus for me, that he would beseech the Lord on my behalf, for what I have done to him was unjust." "I tell thee," said Longinus, "beware of hell if thou doest ill to the servant of God; for God is unconquerable, as it is manifest to-day, seeing that my tongue speaks no worse now than before it was cut out." The king spake then to Longinus:—"True it is; I am blinded and tortured in my entrails." And Longinus replied to the king :—" Have me beheaded ; and thou wilt get the mercy of God after my death. Thou shalt be free from the enmity of Christ ; for it is not the will of God to grant thee deliverance till I have been beheaded by thee ; for Michael, along with the angels of heaven, is above my head, watching for my soul to carry it into the kingdom of God." After thus urging that he should be beheaded, Longinus remained for the space of an hour in prayer ; and then he was beheaded with the sword ; and he sent his spirit to heaven in company with a choir of angels and archangels. Then the king came at once in his blindness to the body of Longinus, and prostrated himself by the side of the body with great sorrow, and said :—" O Lord, great is the evil I have done to Thee in slaying Thy blameless servant." So, after much remorse and earnest repentance to God in that fashion, his eyes were restored to him ; and he served God, from that onwards, while he lived. Longinus was buried afterwards with due honour from all ; and he did miracles and great marvels after his death. Finis.

PASSION OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

[A copy of the Passion of John the Baptist is contained in Eg. 91, p. 46 ; but it is not the same as ours. But in the Yellow Book of Lecan, p. 848, we have a copy made from the same original as the Leabhar Breac, though with some variations, given in the notes. For the story, cf. the Legenda Aurea, p. 566 ; and AA. SS., June, iv., 687 ; and for the story of the Two Monks, &c., ibid., p. 716.]

There was a certain cruel, pitiless man in Jerusalem, in the land of Judaea, viz., Herod Agrippa, son of Aristobulus, son of Herod, son of Antipater, son of Herod of Asculon. This Herod was from the lands of India. By him the holy martyr, John the Baptist, was beheaded. And this was the cause of the death of that just man. There was a famous judge in Herod's own kingdom, a faithful man, who used to pass just judgments, and who made peace between all peoples and tribes, telling them their rights and their laws. Philip Labarchend was his name; a famous man, who was wont to speak the truth and to check falsehood; of great carefulness and stern rebuke, giving lawful judgment to all men. Ardaïs was the name of the city in which he dwelt. He was a man of great wealth and fortune; but there came upon him a disease, of which he died. He had a famous, comely wife named Herodias. In truth, scarcely was there to be found her equal in the world for form and eloquence and good manners. Herod was deeply in love with her, even in the lifetime of her husband, Philip. It often crossed Herod's mind to take her from him, had not Philip been the stronger. At all events, when it came to the knowledge of the King of Asculon, in the lands of India, viz., Herod Agrippa's own brother, Philip, son of Aristobulus, son of Herod, son of Antipater, that the noble lady, Herodias, was free to marry, he came hastily with a great multitude, to the place where the queen dwelt, and carried her off with him to the royal city, Asculon, where he lived with her a long while full lovingly. But the demon of jealousy and envy entered the heart of Herod, when he heard how the woman, whom he had so much loved, had been carried off from him by his own brother; and the demon left him no peace, fanning the flame of love in his heart. So, at last, Herod assembled a great multitude, and proceeded to Asculon, as if he were on a royal tour, till he reached his brother's house. Philip rose up, and went out to meet Herod, and welcome him. He kissed him, and had the royal apartments prepared for him. Then they ate food, and drank choice wine, till they were satisfied; and when they had eaten, King Herod rose up sorrowfully, and a huge crowd of armed men with him, as he had charged them beforehand; and he came in this fashion to the apartments of Philip and his wife, Herodias. At that moment, Herod had no weapon, save a big switch, with which he was wont to drive away dogs and jugglers [?]. When Herod entered the chamber, he took his seat in the royal chair, that was all begemmed with precious stones over it, and ornament of gold thereon. In this chair sat Philip, and at his shoulder his wife, Herodias. Herod was angered at the sight; and raising his hand, struck his brother a savage blow on the crown of his head with the switch that he had in his hand. He then pulled him out of his seat, and, sitting down beside the woman, gave her a kiss. That night he slept with her in his brother's bed, and, on the morrow, took her with him to Jerusalem and to the land of Judaea, where he lived with her full lovingly thereafter. When John the Baptist heard that tale, he was grieved and angry at Herod's having this concubine with him; for they were near relatives, were John and Herod;—Cassandra, daughter of Gomer, being the mother of Herod and Philip; while Elizabeth, another daughter of Gomer, was the mother of John the Baptist. John, therefore, bade Herod put away from him that sinful woman; and he often came from the deserts of the river Jordan, to warn and advise him to that effect, so that she was the first concubine who was 'cried down' throughout the world. As for that John, indeed, he was the first martyr, the first hermit, the first monk, and the first faithful, righteous man in the world except Abel, the son of Adam; for before John, it was he who pleased God in his virginity and in his martyrdom. Now, John lived a solitary life in the deserts of the river Jordan. Slight was his care for his body in the matter of food or clothing. Leaves of palm-trees and branches of olive-trees were the clothing he wore mostly around him; bitter herbs of the desert and fruits of various trees were the food he chiefly ate, and his drink was brackish water. He slept alone among the numerous beasts; and they harmed him not; but he taught the beasts of the desert and all the animals: though it was not for their benefit that he did this, for they were not rational, but because he found no men to teach, and that he might not himself be without meditating on God for ever in his mind. A prophet was this man John among prophets, hermit among hermits, confessor among confessors, virgin among virgins, apostle among apostles, while he was in the number of the apostles; for it was of John the Lord gave the great testimony when he said:—"Among the sons of all women there hath not been born a son greater nor more famous than John."

Well, Herod came to the land of Judaea after that; and a great feast was made for him by his princes and chiefs thereafter. Now, Herodias, wife of Herod, had two daughters, named Salvisa and Neptis. Many wondrous arts they knew,—one in singing and music, in pipes and instruments of all kinds, viz., Neptis; the other, Salvisa, in juggling and feats of leaping and active exertion. Herod brought them to the royal house, and bade them exhibit their skill to amuse the multitudes, that they should produce joy of heart and gratification of wish in the kings and chiefs of the children of Israel and all the land of Judaea. But the women said that they would not exhibit their sports till their demand was complied with. “It shall be so,” said the king. So they bound upon him, in presence of all, the granting of their boon. Then they exhibited wondrous arts with labour and skill; and the princes and chiefs praised them mightily. When they had ended their amusements, they went to their mother, Herod’s wife, for counsel as to the boon they should demand of the king. “Require the head of John the Baptist, and take no other boon but that,” said their mother; “and let it be brought, like food, on a wide dish, from the prison in which he is kept, to you into this place;” for Herod had put John into this prison, awhile before that, through the queen’s instigation. So her daughters went and demanded of Herod the head of John the Baptist. This request was grievous to Herod; and he said that ‘he would rather give them the greater part of his kingdom and lordship than that head;’ but they would take nothing from him save the performance of his promise to them. So it was granted them: John was beheaded, and his head carried on a dish on the head of one of the women into the king’s palace. Herod was much grieved at the matter, for he was afraid of the people for this crime of the murder of John. After this, the head was taken to Herodias; and the disciples of John begged his body for burial; and on its being given them, they buried it in all honour, with hymns and canticles and praise of God, and with deep sorrow in their hearts. But Herodias interred the head secretly from the friends of John.

Now, a long while after, there came two holy monks from the East of the world to Jerusalem, to fast in the name of the Lord. On their way an angel of God met them, and said to them:—“There is a certain house in Jerusalem, where the head of John the Baptist lies hidden underground; and I will show you the place where it is; take ye it away with you.” The monks came to Jerusalem to the place of which the angel had given them instruction ; and they took up the head, on which there was no change of colour or of form, but it was as though it had been that hour cut off, after having lain in secret for long. The monks placed the head in their book-satchel, to carry it away with them to their own country. The name of the place where John was beheaded was Acherunda, in Arabia ; and Sebasten was the name of the hamlet where they buried his body. As the monks were going their way towards their fatherland, there met them a certain man on the road, a famous smith, who had left his own country from want and poverty : upon his neck the monks put their satchel, containing the head of John. Then the monks went to another city on their road, and abode therein that night. But John came that night in a dream to the smith, and said to him :—" I am John the Baptist, and it is my head that is in the bag on thy neck ; rise, and leave the monks, and take with thee the head ; and thou shalt get food and raiment through it." So the smith arose, and left the monks, taking with him the bag and the head in it, and went on to the city called Simissena, where he dwelt a long time. Great honour was paid him there ; and the people loved him, and believed in him afterwards. And the smith made a golden shrine about the head, with an indestructible lock on it, so that it could not be opened save when he wished. At length the smith died, and left its heirship to a trusted sister of his, a faithful widow. She also died, leaving the shrine to her heir ; but a man named Etrosius came into possession of the shrine with the head ; and many miracles and wonders were done for him by virtue of his possession of that head, in the healing of diseases and plagues among the people. So the miracles and wonders of John the Baptist were disseminated throughout the whole world. This circumstance became known in reference to that man ; and he was cast out of the city. And in his stead there came another holy man, called Marcellus, into the house where the former had lived. In that house lay the head of John hidden under ground. In the night, then, John came to Marcellus, and informed him of the presence of the head under ground therein, showing him the exact spot where it was, and bidding him take up the head. When, therefore, Marcellus heard that, he told it to the bishop of the city, who was named Laurabanus, and was also the lord of that city, Simissena. So the townsfolk came together, with the bishop, and removed the head from the cave where it lay, singing psalms and hymns in its honour; and all the people praised it when they saw one miracle after another each day performed by it, i.e., by the head of the virgin and holy martyr, &c.

PASSION OF THE SEVEN WHO SLEPT IN EPHEBUS
150 YEARS.

[For an account of this story see M. Baring-Gould's Curious Myths, p. 93, where will be found some details as to the circumstances of its origin, &c. Surius (iv., p. 386) has printed the tale in the form as given by Gregory of Tours (De Gloria Martyrum, i. 95), and by Simeon the Metaphrast; cf. Migne, Patrol. Gr., tom. xcv., p. 429; and Ley. Aurea, p. 435. Another copy of the Irish text is contained in Egerton 91, fol. 32, verso β.]

There was once a cruel, merciless king over the world, called Decius. In his time was a great persecution on the Christians, in ordering them to do sacrifice to the gods. Now there were in the king's house at that time seven men of noble birth, named Achellius, Eugenius, Stephanus, Probatas, Sambatus, Ciriacus, and Maximianus. When this band of men saw the unbelief and many vices of Decius, and that he honoured the deaf and dumb idols as the living God, and compelled others to honour them, the grace of God came upon that seven, so that they believed in Christ and were baptized, other names being given to them in their baptism, viz., Johannes, Serapion, Dionisius, Constantinus, Marcianus, Malcus, Maximianus. At that time Decius came to Ephesus, and ordered everyone to be immediately slain who should take upon him the name of Christ.

The king did sacrifice to the gods, and all followed his example, so that the stench of the offerings went up throughout the whole city. When those seven saw that, great fear and horror seized them, so that they wept and were in great sadness; they put up prayers, and cast ashes on their heads, and besought God fervently that He would not abandon His people in this persecution that was on them. Then the ministers of the persecution came and reported to the king, how everyone had worshipped the gods, except the seven of his attendants, of those who were dearest to him, around the son of the prefect, Maximian. The king was angry at this, and ordered them to be brought before him. So they were brought in chains unto the king, with the traces of sorrow on their countenances, and ashes on their heads. As they were at prayer, the king looked upon them, and said:—"It seems to me that ye have been deceived, so that ye approach not your gods, nor do sacrifice to them; I swear by Apollo, that ye shall expiate with many tortures your rejection of the gods." Then these holy men said to him:—"We are ready to die for the sake of the One God Almighty, who made heaven and earth and sea. But as for your gods, they were made by cunning hands, and there is no power in them for anything, and the people who worship them will go to everlasting ruin." At this the king was enraged, and said to his servants:—"Pluck out their hair with pincers, that they may do penance for the crime they have committed; then take them to the royal house, to be in honour as before, for it is not fitting to inflict torture on their shapely bodies." Then their chains were struck off, after the king had given them orders to go to Ephesus, "and abide ye there, till I come to you." [Then he proceeded] to another city. And each one of them divided out to the poor what he had of gold, and silver, and raiment, save a little; and then they went into a cave on Mount Cille, taking with them some little money, to buy food for themselves. Malcus was the name of the servant, who used to go from them to buy food, and to hear news about the unjust emperor. While these holy men were in the cave, engaged in earnest prayer, the emperor came to Ephesus, and asked his parents about Maxim. They said that he was in a cave on Mount Cille, and that it was easy to bring him thence, if the king wished. (Malcus carried this report to his companions, and great fear seized them, so that they bowed down their faces to the ground, and betook themselves to united sighing and prayer; and when God heard their service, He had mercy on them, so as to keep them from the injustice that was coming upon them; for He called their souls to Himself, while they lay on the ground as though they were asleep.) Then the king's wrath was aroused, and he said to his attendants:—"Go ye and close the door of the cave, so that those men may not come out to war against our gods, and themselves to die." When the king's people went to close up the cave, two Christian men named Theodorus and Hiaiben [Reuben] went before them: these men did not dare openly to worship Christ through fear of the king, but they wrote on tablets of lead the story and adventures and names of those holy men, and put these tablets inside of the door of the cave without the knowledge of anyone, in order that when it should please God to disclose the deeds of his soldiers there should be found on the tablets an account of everything they had suffered through magnifying the name of God. After them came the king's people, bringing heavy stones with them, with which they blocked up the door of the cave, saying:—"Die of hunger there, or let each of you eat his fellow!"

Some time afterwards the Emperor Decius died, and subsequently Teothais [Theodosius], son of Arcadius, got the kingdom. It was in his time that the creed of the Sadducees gained ground, viz., the denial of the resurrection, for they said there would be no resurrection of the dead hereafter. The mind of the Emperor Theodosius was disturbed through that, and he besought God to show him what he should do about it.

Now, at that time there was a wealthy man in Ephesus, whose servants were keeping watch over his flocks in a hamlet on Mount Cille, and that man said to his servants:—"This is a good place for our cattle, so make cattle-sheds here for them." The shepherds accordingly proceeded to collect the stones lying on the mountain to make the walls around the cattle; and at last they came to the door of the cave, where they found heavy stones; these they carried off with them for their sheds, but they did not go inside into the cave. Then the Lord sent again the souls of those Seven into their bodies, and they arose and conversed with each other; and it seemed to them that it was not more than one night they had been asleep. Fair were their bodies, and their garments quite whole. Then they addressed Maleus:—"Take money with thee, and go into the city, and buy us food, and find out what decision the Emperor Decius has made in reference to us, for we are prepared to die acknowledging God's name sooner than we would offer sacrifice to the gods." He took with him the money, which bore the name of Decius inscribed. When he reached the city, he found the sign of the cross on the city gate; at this he was greatly astonished, and said to himself:—"Why, was it not yesterday that I came out of the city? Doubtless the mind of the Emperor Decius has been subdued, since the city gate is fortified with the sign of the cross." As Maleus entered the city, he heard everybody adjuring by the name of God, and further, he saw them entering into the church throughout the city, and renewing it. He was greatly surprised thereat, and said:—"It seems to me that I have entered into another city." When he reached the market-place, he would have exchanged his money for food, but everybody's gaze was fixed on the coins. "See," said they, "this man has found a treasure, as is plain from the coins, for they were made in the time of Decius." Maleus kept saying to himself:—"What do they want with me? Is it a dream that I see?" Then he was laid hold of by them and taken before the bishop, who was named Marinus, and before the governor also. The latter said to him:—"From what land art thou come hither?" "I am from Ephesus," said Maleus, "and is not this Ephesus? for it is in my recollection that I have not been absent from it more than a few hours." "Whence hadst thou these coins?" asked the governor. "I brought them from the house of my father and mother." On being asked who they were, Maleus gave their names, but even that was no more acceptable. "Tell us the truth," said the governor; "whence hadst thou this coin that is of the time of Decius long ago? for it is more than a hundred and fifty-two years since Decius died; if thou speak not the truth, thou shalt be punished for it." Maleus was in great distress, and said:—"I wish to learn from you, by the living God, where is the persecutor of the Christians, the Emperor Decius who was in this city? or does the holy bishop, Marinus, yet live?" "Decius is dead long ago," said they. When Malcus heard that, he addressed the holy bishop:—"It seems to me, that it is not more than one night I and my brethren have been asleep; but as I see that long periods of time have passed during which we have lain asleep, no doubt it is God who hath awaked us from the dead, that the men of the world may know that there will in truth be a resurrection of the dead in the glorious judgment-day. Come with me, that I may show you my brethren who have arisen along with me." Great wonder was felt by the bishop and the governor at that tale. But Malcus (went and) told all his brethren everything that had befallen him in the city; and went in afterwards into the cave, where he found a case, and two silver locks on it. So he came out quickly, and summoned the people; then he opened the case, and found therein two leaden tablets, with the following words written thereon, 'passion of those holy Seven,' as we said before; so then they believed that everything which Malcus had told them was true. After that they entered into the cave and found the holy men seated in an angle of the cave, their countenances shining as the sun.

PASSION OF GEORGE.

[This, of course, is the St. George who is better known by his connexion with the dragon in the familiar legend. That portion of the legend is not contained in our MS., but it is given in Egerton, 91, fol. 11, which begins, however, differently from our MS., as a homily on the text, "Deus querit eum qui persecutionem patitur, iarradid Día in nech fodaim ingreim 7 treablaid ar Dia." a text written by Solomon under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, to comfort the martyrs who persevere, &c. The narrative then begins with the incidents related in the Legenda Aurea of de Voragine, ed. Graesse, p. 259, of which a translation will be found in Mr. Baring-gould's Curious Myths, p. 297; the Irish version in Eg. being somewhat shortened of details, as in the father's expressions of grief and the colloquy of the princess and St. George: a monster infests the city Silene in Lybia, and the princess is to be sacrificed to it, when St. George appears and sets her free; he then by his preaching converts the city, and its king builds a beautiful church in honour of Mary and St. George [Sanc Scoirsi in Eg.]; at the foot of the great altar there comes forth a spring of clear water by which all diseases are healed. At that time, Docianus [Eg.] was emperor, &c.; where our MS. begins the martyrdom (1110); the accounts, however, are not identical, especially from 1348. A copy of the Eg. version is also contained in the Book of Fernoy [R. I. A., p. 44].

Cf. Symeon Metaphrastes [ii. 142], in Migne's Patrol. Graec., tom. xev.; Surius, ii., 897.]

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." The Holy Spirit, the third person of the noble Godhead, co-eternal and consubstantial with the Father and the Son—it is that Spirit who revealed these words, "precious," &c., through the mouth of the royal prophet, David, the son of Jesse, de cuius laude dicitur, inveni David filium Jesse, virum electum secundum cor meum. It is that David who made the thrice fifty praises [the 150 Psalms] to God. Psalms autem in quo hic versus scriptus est, ex persona aegrotantis Ezechiae canitur; allegorice autem hunc per totum Psalmum inuictorum martyrum verba referuntur. One of the expressions of that psalm is (especially) suitable for the praise of the Lord's martyrs, viz., what the prophet says here, "precious," &c. Uere pretiosa et felix est mors quae Christi mortem imitatur, &c. (1098-1101.)

Many persons in the Old Law and in the New Testament have gone to precious martyrdom for the Lord, as did the noble reverent martyr, St. George, whose festival and commemoration take place at this time and period, viz., on the twenty-third April [a.d. viii. Kal. Mai.], according to the day of the solar month, &c.

Something is told of the martyr's adventures and of his conflict: how he conquered the unbelieving tyrants of the world, and how he suffered martyrdom for the Lord, at the hands of the unbelieving ruler, Datianus, who at this time had power over the four quarters of the world. By him proclamation was made for all the kings to come together into one place. When the seventy-two kings came, Datianus took his seat on the royal throne, with his princes and prefects and innumerable multitudes round him. Then Datian ordered every torture to be put forward that everybody might see them, and declared that ' whoever should exhibit resistance in sacrificing to the gods, his tongue would be cut out, (his eyes) put out, and his ears stopped up; his cheeks be torn off, and his teeth struck out of his head; his brains should be scattered, his fingers mangled, his legs and every member broken.' As for many of the Lord's believers, when they saw the tortures awaiting them, so much terror filled them, that not one confessed he was a Christian at all. And when countless numbers had flocked together from every quarter, the holy servant came also, the bright star George, a Cappadocian by birth. This was but natural that he should come; for he was the leader of a vast multitude; and this was the way he came, with gold and much treasure to the king. But when George beheld the king with his hosts worshipping the demon and blaspheming Christ, he gave all his gold and treasure to the Lord's poor; then he flung off his garment, saying:—"The devil hath blinded this people, that they receive not the Lord." And he cried aloud in their midst:—"O ye kings, lay aside your contentions and your threatening, for they are of none effect against any man; and call not them gods, who are no gods at all, but the works of men's hands." When the ruler heard his voice, after a silence, during which he looked attentively at George, he addressed him thus:—"Man, thou hast not challenged us alone, but all the gods, who bestow favours on men, and who uphold the earth and rule this life. But yet, tell me from what city thou art, or what is thy name, or what the cause of thy coming hither?" "My name among men is George, a Christian; of Cappadocia my race. Many were under my authority, and now I serve Christ; but thou shouldst be ashamed, O king, for no gods are they in whom thou believest, but blind and dumb idols, the works of the hands of men." Then the cruel king became enraged, and ordered him to be raised aloft and his flesh flayed from him with sickles; and after that he was to be taken down, and salt rubbed about him, and finally to be wiped with sackcloth. Then the king caused spikes to be driven through his feet, so that the blood flowed like water from a fountain. Next he had an iron hammer driven into his head, so that the brains came out through the martyr's nostrils. When the ruler saw that none of these pains affected him, but that his mind became only the more firmly fixed on God, he ordered him to be put into prison. When he was in the prison, George gave thanks to the Lord, who had given him his life and victoriously strengthened his members against the demon. Then a bright light shone into the prison, for the Lord opened the prison doors in the night, and spoke to him : " Be of brave heart, George ; thou shalt not be forweared, for I am with thee. I swear by myself and by my angels, that there never was before thee, nor ever after will be, a martyr more renowned than thee ; for thou shalt suffer great torture at the hands of the seventy-two kings, during the space of seven years, but none of these inflictions shall do thee hurt. Thou shalt die three times, and thrice I will raise thee to life again ; and at the fourth death I will come to thee, and thou shalt go with me into peace. Fear not, therefore, for I am with thee." So the Lord ascended again to heaven with his angels, after blessing George, who ceased not praying until morning ; and his heart was glad, for the Lord had appeared to him. The next morning the ruler ordered the servant of God to be brought from the prison, and when George came out, he said these words : Deus in adiutorium meum intende, &c. So when he came to the ruler, he said to him :—" Thou holdest with thy master, Apollo, but I am with my Lord Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the human race." Then the cruel king ordered him to be beaten with a hundred strokes across his back and forty over his belly, and to be cast into prison with fetters on his feet. And afterwards the king sent letters over all the world, to this purport : " If there be any magician who can annul the magic art of the Christians, let him come to me, and I will enrich him and make him second to me in my kingdom." This letter was read throughout the world, and came to the ears of a magician named Anathais. He presented himself before the king, who said to him in great welcome : " What means hast thou of driving out this man's magic art ?" Then Anathais, in reply, requested a bull to be fetched for him, and when it was brought, he sang incantations in its ear, so that it burst into two fragments. So the king rejoiced at this, and said : " Of a truth thou canst overturn this man's magic art." " Wait awhile," said the magician, " and thou shalt see this wonder," as he united again the pieces of the bull that had been burst asunder. The people were astonished at the acts of the magician, and the king summoned St. George, to whom he said : " It is for thy sake I have sought this magician, that thou shouldst drive out of him his wizardry, or that he should ruin thee." Then St. George, looking at his opponent, spake thus :— " Do thou quickly what thou art seeking to do, for I perceive that thou shalt yet receive on thy body the marks of the Lord." Anathais at once took a goblet into his hand, and after invoking the names of the demons over it, presented it to George, bidding him drink it up ; but it did him no harm. Then the magician said : " I have yet one expedient, and if thou art not harmed by it, I will believe in the crucified Christ ;" so saying, Anathais presented a cup of liquor to him, over which he had invoked the names of demons mightier than the first. But it availed just as little, and the magician cried out aloud : " O George, lamp of truth, for the sake of the crucified Christ, the Son of the living God, who came from heaven to earth and redeemed all who were in the power of the devil, deliver my soul, and give me the token of Christianity, that I may merit entrance into paradise." When the king saw what had happened, he ordered Anathais to be taken outside of the city and beheaded, but sent George back to prison, till he should consider how he would torture him. On the next day the king had prepared a great wheel with sharp spikes and two-edged swords in its midst, on which he ordered George to be flung. At the sight of this, the martyr at first began to reflect how he might be delivered from this wheel, but then shaking his head in repentance at that thought, " Fie on thee, George !" said he ; " remember the time when Christ was crucified between the two thieves. Hear me now, O God ! make haste to deliver me from the diseases on every side, for in Thee my soul confides." When he had finished his prayer he was cast into the wheel, so that his body was rent asunder into ten bits, and he gave up the ghost. Such was his first death.

Then the ruler lifted up his voice, and said : " Ye see, all ye kings, that there is no God but Apollo, with Hercules, and Neptune, who dwell in heaven, and from whom all power is derived to kings and authorities. Where is the God of George, the crucified Christ whom the Jews crucified? and why cometh He not to deliver him from my hands?" Then Datianus ordered the martyr's bones to be thrown into a pit, that none of the Christians should carry off aught of his members or of his relics, nor show them honour; after which the king retired to his palace with his vassals, and sat down to meat. But the Lord surrounded the pit with a cloud, and there befel a great thunder, with an earthquake; and then the Archangel Michael came and stood on the brink of the pit; and when he had gathered together the bones of the holy martyr, the Lord breathed life into them again. His re-appearance astonished the king greatly, and he said: "That is George." "Nay," said others, "but someone who resembles him." Then said the servant of God: "I am indeed George who was slain by thee." When Anathais, the master of the soldiers, saw how George had risen, he believed in Christ with all his household, and cried aloud: "O George, servant of God, even we also believe in Christ." When the ruler heard that, he ordered them to be decapitated. Then he caused molten lead and iron to be poured into the mouth of the martyr: it became as though it were but cold water. Next sixty sharp-pointed nails were driven into his head; but they were thrust out again by the will of the Lord, so that no blemish was found in the holy head. Then he commanded him to be suspended upside down, with stones round his neck, and a great fire under him; but none of these things harmed him. Then the tyrant caused to be brought forward the form of a brazen ox, with sharp spikes of iron in its interior, into which the martyr was thrust, so that dust and ashes(!) might be made of his limbs; but St. George continued giving thanks to God, who granted him endurance. And at night God appeared to him, encouraging him: "Be brave and fear not these tortures, for I will be with thee; thou hast died once, and hast risen; yet a second time thou shalt die, and I will bring thee to life again." So the Lord blessed him and went up to heaven; but George ceased not in his thanksgiving, for he was joyful at having seen the Lord. On the morrow, when the day dawned, Datianus ordered St. George to be brought before him, and when the king Magentius saw him, he said to him: "O servant of God, grant me this one request, and I will believe in Christ." "Say what thou desirest," said George. "There are fourteen thrones here, made of fruit-bearing trees; cause them to take root in the earth, and be laden with the fruit suitable to each one of them." Then George bent his knees for the space of an hour, praying that the fourteen thrones might be broken up; and the dry boards took root, and put forth fruit according to their kind. But Magentius said: "Let us give thanks to Apollo, and Hereules, and the other gods, for their might and power are shown forth in these dry trees." Then he ordered George to be bound and an iron scythe placed over his head, by which he was sawn asunder, and so he died. This was his second death.

After death the ruler had him cast into a brazen cauldron filled with pitch and lead: fifteen cubits high rose the boiling thereof. And when the king was told how the flesh and bones had melted like water, he ordered him to be buried, cauldron and all, so that no relic should be taken by the Christians. But the Lord from heaven bade the Archangel Michael pour out the contents of the cauldron and collect the ashes. Then a great light shone on them, and at the voice of the Lord the martyr at once arose from the dead, and entering the city, began to preach. Once more he was brought before Datianus, but he persisted:—"Thou art on the side of Apollo, thy god, but I hold with my Lord Jesus Christ." Afterwards one of the vassal kings, Tranquillus, said: "We have here a leaden casket bound with iron, and no one knows who was buried therein; if thou canst resuscitate that folk, we will believe on thee." "Nay," said the servant of God, "I know that God will do that for me, and yet thou wilt not believe; but, for the sake of those who will believe in Christ, I shall do what thou askest. Go now, all ye kings, and bring whatever ye find of bones and ashes in the tomb." They did so, and brought them into his presence. And the servant of God bent his knees for the space of two hours, and offered up prayer; then came a great cloud with thunder and an earthquake; and a light and a great brilliancy shone over the ashes of the dead. Having finished his prayer, he spake aloud: "Arise in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and stand upon your feet!" So there arose five men, and nine women and three children. And when the king saw that, he called to him one of the men and asked him : " What is thy name ? " " Job. " " How long hast thou been here ? " " Five hundred years. " " Is it Christ ye worship ? " " Nay, for He was not born after the flesh at that time. " " What then was the object of your worship ? " " Do not ask me to tell it, for I am ashamed to say ; for I believed Apollo was my lord, the blind, dumb idol, who hurts all souls ; and it is on account of worshipping him that I was cast into a dark, narrow place, where are fiery streams and undying worms. Hear me now, O ruler ! whosoever believeth in Christ in this life, and severeth himself from sins, he shall be brought into a pleasant place hereafter. " " Man, thou art mad, " said the ruler. But the resuscitated person looked at George, and said : " O lamp of truth, O shining star, I beseech thee to have mercy on me, and on all who are with me, and give us the token of Christianity, that we may not go into the same dark place. " Then George, seeing the man's faith, struck the ground with his right foot, and a fountain gushed out, of many colours ; and he baptized him at once in the name of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, saying : " Go with my blessing ! " The man disappeared, and was seen no more. . . . Next the king said to his servants : " Seek ye out a woman, a poor widow, who has no food in her house, and bind George in her house. " On coming thither, George asked her to bring him some little food to eat, but she replied : " O servant of God, I have no food. " " What god dost thou worship ? " " I worship the great gods, Apollo and Hercules. " " Right then is it that food should fail thee. " When the woman saw his face like that of an angel, she went out to beg food for him ; and he sate all the while keeping the house, when lo ! the beam of the house grew up fifteen cubits over it, and bearing its fruit ; and an angel came with food to him, so that he ate. The woman on her return saw to her amazement the dry beam laden with blossom and the table spread with food. She knelt down immediately and prayed him to heal her blind, deaf, and dumb son, of whom she could get no good, but he was a disgrace for anyone to see. And when George saw her faith, he took up the child on his knee, and breathed into his eye, and it opened immediately, and he saw somewhat. " My lord, open now his ears, and heal his feet. " But he said : " Nay, I prefer his remaining in that state till the day when I shall send him to speak a message to Apollo." Soon the ruler ordered George to be brought into the palace, and candles to be put under his hips and his sides, so that his flesh blazed like wax ; and he cried aloud to God, and gave up the ghost. This was his third death.

His remains were taken to the top of a mountain by the king's command, that the beasts and birds should devour him, and no relics be left for the Christians. When he was laid thus, the Lord came with his angels, and cried to him, saying : " George, servant of God, arise from thy sleep ! " George arose immediately, and the Lord went to heaven. Then George came down quickly from the mountain and called after the soldiers. When they saw him, they knelt at his feet, saying : " George, servant of God, give us the token of Christianity ! " So he struck the ground with his right foot, and there came a fountain of living water out of it, with which he baptized them. Then they entered the city along with him, and said to the king : " Thou art on the side of Apollo and the gods, but we hold with the Lord Jesus Christ. " But the tyrant spake to St. George : " By Apollo, and Diana, and the mother of the gods, be persuaded by me. " George replied : " I will do thy will. " So the king was glad, and kissed his head ; but the saint did not allow him, saying : " Because I am going to make offering to the gods, you kiss my head ; but I will go back into the prison till I worship thy gods. " " Nay, it shall not be so, " said the king ; " but thou shalt go to the palace to my queen, Alexandra, and thou shalt repose there. " On his arrival at the palace, he bent his knees and remained in unceasing prayer till morning. When the sun shone on the morrow, the king summoned George into the temple of Apollo ; whereupon the saint bade all the people and the priests of the gods be called together, to see him sacrificing to Apollo and the other gods. Amongst the rest who came was the woman whose son he had healed of blindness. She brought her son with her, and her garments were rent and her hair dishevelled, and she cried aloud : " Woe to thee, St. George, for going into the temple of Apollo to sacrifice to him ! Thou hast raised the dead, thou hast healed lepers, and the blind, and men of every hurt ; thou didst cause the dry trees to bear fruit, and didst cover my table with every good thing!" But he called her and bade her set down her child on the floor; and he said to the child: "In the name of Jesus Christ I bid thee rise!" And he arose at once and walked about, and speech and hearing were given to him; then he came and bowed down to kiss the feet of the man of God. And the saint said: "I bid thee, little child, go into the temple of the pagans, and say to Apollo: 'Come quickly from the place where thou art, for George, the servant of God, calleth thee.'" So the boy went and cried: "O blind and dumb idol, without voice, or hands, or feet, thou curse of souls, believe now, the servant of God calleth thee." The idol came without delay and said: "O Jesus of Nazareth, Thou hast drawn all men to Thee; Thou hast made thy kingdom known unto all; Thou hast sent against me the child who is not more than two half-years." Then he stopped at the feet of the saint, who asked: "Art thou the God of the pagans?" "Knowest thou not that I am?" "I know thee not." Then said the idol: "By the God who is in heaven, and by every elemental force, did my power extend over thee I would destroy thee now!" "O thou hurt of Christians, thou shalt go into the depths of earth, and shalt remain there till the day of judgment," said the saint, as he stamped with his foot on the ground, which opened and swallowed up the idol into the hell where lies his father, the devil. Then arose a great cry as high as heaven among the heathens at the defeat of their idol, and among the Christians for the victory won by God and St. George; but the ruler said to the servant of God: "O accursed brood and lying race! ye promised to do sacrifice to the gods, but in reality thou hast hurled them down to hell, and thou wouldst fain send me too thither!" Then he departed to his palace, and said to his queen, Alexandria: "George, of the race of the Christians, has taken our life from us." But the queen replied: "Hear me, my lord; the God of George is powerful, and great are His deeds; He will destroy thy kingdom and rule." Then the tyrant grew wrathful, and said: "Woe to me, Alexandria, for what has happened to thee, to be pleading on behalf of George, for I see that his evil deeds are confirming themselves in thee." Then he laid hold on her, and handed her over to his officers, ordering her to be hanged up by the hair of her head, her body to be made naked, and to be beaten with staves till her bones were visible. But none heard her voice (in complaint) at that; only she raised her eyes to heaven, and said to George: "Pray the Lord for me, for I am in great suffering." So with the prayers and exhortations of the saint she entered into the victory of martyrdom, on the 14th day before the kalends of May (April 18th), after these great deeds. Then the ruler said to St. George: "Because thou hast destroyed the queen, ye are really attempting our destruction." And all the kings said: "Listen to us, lord! We say that George, of the race of the Christians, as he does not honour nor listen to our gods, should be beheaded with the sword." So George got the sentence of martyrdom from the ruler, and went to carry out his will; and when he came to the iron door of his prison, one foot outside and another within, he said to the executioners: "Wait a short while till I offer up prayer! Seven years have I been under the judgment of these seventy-two kings: I beg thee to leave to me one hour for prayer." Then he looked up to heaven, and prayed:—"O Almighty God, who didst of old, at the request of the Prophet Elijah, send down the fire so that it destroyed the thrice fifty; so now, O my Lord Jesus Christ, let fire come down from heaven, and destroy Datian with all the kings that are with him!" The fire came immediately, and destroyed them all, to the number of five thousand. When George had reached the place of decapitation, he said to the executioners:—"Wait awhile till I pray for those who have believed heretofore and who will hereafter believe in Christ; for the souls of the people desire the partition of my raiment among them, and it is likely there is not enough in my body and my garments for them." Then he raised his eyes to heaven, and prayed:—"O my Lord, O God of heaven and earth, grant me this request, that all may believe on Thee who are witnesses of my passion; and grant, O Saviour of the world, his desire to everyone who has the wish to honour and glorify the relics of my body. Grant me also power to assist everyone who, in his hour of death, calls to mind thy servant George; whether it be health of body or soul they desire, bestow it on them, for I know how frail men are!" And when he had ended the prayer, all said "Amen!" But the Lord spoke to him out of a cloud:—"George, thou servant of God, enter into the kingdom of my Father! I promise thee by myself, whoever receiveth a hair of thy garment, or maketh a church in thy name, and shall be mindful of my name, whatever thing he shalt ask of us both, I will give ear to him." So the Lord stopped conversing with him, and he said to his executioners:—"Come and complete the work given you to do!" Then he bent his knees in prayer, and was beheaded thus, and there came out of his body water and milk. This was his fourth death.

And then came a bright light and a great shower, so that the earth could not bear it, nor could any look on that light which played round the martyr's corpse. St. George completed his martyrdom on the eighth day before the kalends of May, on a Friday, with confession to the Lord. Three thousand nine hundred believed on Christ through his teaching. His relics are still held in honour and reverence. And though great are his honours now, he shall have greater honour in the day of judgment, when he shall shine as the sun, in the unity of the holy and righteous men of the world, in the unity of the nine grades of heaven that have not transgressed, in the unity that is higher than every unity, the unity of the Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

We implore the mercy of God through the intercession of George, that we may all reach (heaven) and deserve it, and dwell therein, for ever and ever. Amen.

PASSION OF STEPHEN.

[I have not seen any other copy in Irish of this passion. The story following is given in the works of St. Augustine, vii. 807 (Migne, Pat. Lat. xli.); cf. Surius, iv. 504. In Augustine two texts are given, with neither of which our copy agrees exactly, any more than with the narrative as set forth in the Legenda Aurea, p. 462.]

"In mundo pressuram habebitis, sed confidite quia ego vici mundum."

Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, and Saviour of the whole world, is He who uttered this brief passage, foretelling the persecution and misfortune which the apostles and disciples and believers in general would undergo for the name of God, and strengthening them to overcome the world and the devil, as He had overcome them, saying, "In mundo pressuram habebitis," &c.

John, the son of Zebedee, the beloved disciple of Jesus, the heir of the Virgin, the fourth man who wrote the gospel of our Lord, the twelfth apostle in the order of the apostles, wrote this text in the body of the gospel and left it in remembrance with the church, where he says in the track of his Master Jesus, "in mundo," &c.

Numbers of holy and righteous men who have fulfilled that precept, that is, have conquered the world and the devil after the example of Christ, have undergone persecution and martyrdom for the Lord, as did the noble, venerable proto-martyr, St. Stephen, whose festival and commemoration fall at this period and time; which festival the Christians observe on the seventh before the kalends of January, as to the day of the solar month, &c. Luke the Evangelist further tells somewhat of the passion and conflict of his noble martyr, how he suffered at the hands of the unbelieving Jews for the faith of Christ, saying: [Acts, vi. 8, v. Appendix.]

[VI.]

The previous account gives the passion of Stephen; this following refers to the discovery of his body; how the Lord revealed it to a certain holy man, so that he said: "Ego sum Lucianus servus Christi et presbyter ecclesiae Dei," &c. (referring to the church that is in the hamlet of Gamaliel, near Jerusalem.) I desire, said Lucian, to narrate to you the thing that God hath shown me about the body of the blessed Stephen, the first martyr of the New Testament. It befell me on a certain night in the church, as I was resting on my bed; in the third hour there fell on me an ecstasy of mind, and I saw a tall, handsome, grey, old man, with a long beard and shining raiment, a golden cross on the edge of his robe, a wand of gold in his hand, and shod in golden sandals; he came before me, and I was in doubt with myself whether he was from God or from the devil. So I reflected in my mind :—" If this man is from God, he will call me thrice by my own name ; if it be only once he call me, I will not answer him." Then he came and stood at my right hand, and gave me a blow with the golden wand that was in his hand, and he called my name three times, saying : " Lucian ! Lucian ! Lucian !" I answered him, and said : " What wouldst thou, lord ?" And he addressed me thus : " Go into the city, and say to John, the bishop of Jerusalem, ' How long shall we be in this grave ?' For our discovery falls fitly in the time of John ; let him therefore open it for us, and the Lord will have mercy on the human race for our sake. I do not speak of only myself, but I say it on behalf of the holy company that are with me, to whom are due great honour and respect : mean is the place of our abode." Then I said to him : " Who art thou, lord, and what men are they that are with thee ?" He replied : " I am Gamaliel, the teacher of the apostle Paul ; I expounded law in Jerusalem. In the east of the grave along with me is my master, the martyr Stephen, whom the Jews crucified in Jerusalem for the faith and belief in Christ ; and he lay a night and a day without burial at the gate of the city, so that beasts and birds devoured him, yet, through the grace of God, no animal polluted him. But as for me Gamaliel, I had a strong sympathy with him, for I wanted to obtain reward along with the martyr Stephen. In the night I assembled all the holy and faithful men that were in Jerusalem, and I urged them privily, saying :—' Carry ye the body of the blessed Stephen into my land, which is called Villa Gamalielis, a village near Jerusalem, and bewail him in that place for the space of forty days, and place him in my tomb ; and whatever thing ye need, I will give you, to bewail Stephen.' They did as I said to them : in this grave at the feet of the martyr lies Nicodemus, who came to Jesus by night, and whom Jesus taught, saying :—' Nisi quis renatus fuerit,' &c. Peter and John baptized him immediately, after which the Jews deliberated about putting him to death, but as they knew his friendship with me, they did not kill him, but they thrust him out of his high position, and deprived him of his wealth, and after scourging him expelled him from the city. I, Gamaliel, tended and provided for Nicodemus until the day of his death, when I buried him at the feet of the holy martyr Stephen ; and he is the third saint who is with me in the grave. On the subsequent death of my dear son, Abbibus, who with me accepted the faith in Christ, I buried him in the upper part of my own grave, where I myself was afterwards laid. But my wife Etinai and my first-born son Sedina were buried in another village, for they did not believe in Christ."

I asked him then, continued Lucian:—"Where shall we seek you?" Gamaliel replied:—"Seek us in the land near my village, in the land called 'the land of the men of God' or 'of the fighting men.'" After he had said these words he disappeared. Thereupon I rose up after that vision, and prayed the Lord, saying:—"O my Lord Jesus Christ, if this vision be from God, and not a deceit of the devil, I beseech Thee to show it me three times." Then I fasted and separated myself from men, and ate nothing but bread and water and salt, as is customary during the time of Lent. After seven days, Gamaliel again came in the same form as at first, and at the same hour of the night, and he said to me:—"Why hast thou not gone to John, as I bade thee?" I answered, saying:—"I did not doubt thy narrative, but I was afraid, lord, of being deceived by the devil in the first vision; wherefore I besought the Lord for thy appearance thrice, if thou wert sent from God." Gamaliel replied:—"Hear me, O bishop! thou didst doubt in thy mind, saying, 'Even though I find the saints' bodies in one place, how shall I be able to distinguish them?'" I answered:—"What thou sayest, lord, is true: I had my doubts about that." "We are not in the one spot in this grave," said he; "for Stephen is in the east of the tomb, and Nicodemus in the middle, while I and my son Abbibus are in the uppermost part of it." After saying these words, he immediately departed from me; and I gave thanks to God and fasted again in the same manner the seven days of the week. At the end of the seven days Gamaliel came, and was very angry with me, saying:—"Why hast thou not gone to John the bishop, to relate to him the thing I showed thee? Believe now this which I shall tell thee: if thou do not go and inform the holy John, thou shalt suffer something unpleasing to thee." "I will go, lord," said I. On the morrow I went and told John the whole matter. John wept for joy, and said:—"Blessed is the Lord Jesus Christ, who hath shown thee this miracle. Go and seek the place where lie the bodies of the saints, and when thou hast found it, send someone for me, that I may come and meet thee." Accordingly I went, and I searched the land, and found a mound of stones where I thought the bodies might be laid; and on the morrow the inhabitants of the locality came and excavated that mound in conjunction with me. On the night following, Gamaliel came to another monk called Nicetius, and said to him:—"Go and tell Lucian the bishop, that they are not to search in that place, for we are not therein; but this mound was raised by men as a testimony of their grief; but let him seek us here in the 'land of the brave men.' So the next morning the monk Nicetius came to us and told us what he had seen. When I heard that, I gave thanks to God for another witness along with us in the discovery of those holy bodies. Thereupon we went to the land, and dug up the ground, and found in it a stone with these names inscribed on it: Stephanus servus Dei, Nicodemus, et Gamaliel, et Abbius. And afterwards we found three places in the grave, as we have stated, viz., Stephen in the first, Nicodemus in the second, Gamaliel and his son in the third. So I sent messengers to John, bishop of Jerusalem, and he came and joined me, bringing with him many bishops and brethren.

When we took the body of Stephen from the spot where it lay, a great earthquake took place; and there came a strong perfume from the grave, and filled all the place where we were. That perfume was delicious; and so great was it, that we seemed to be in the midst of the delights of paradise. Thereupon we kissed the bodies of the saints with great honour and reverence. From every quarter there came innumerable people, with folk of every disease among them, and they were all healed then and there, to the number of seventy-three. Then John, bishop of Jerusalem, with his people, took up the body of St. Stephen, and they brought it with them to the city, with psalms and hymns and many other prayers to God and the Lord of the elements. Just at that time there was a plague of drought in Jerusalem; but there came then a great rain, and all gave the praise to Stephen, for it was for his sake alone that that water came. Stephen's body was tended with honour and reverence; but though great is its honour now, it will be greater in the day of judgment, when he shall shine as the sun in heaven, in the unity of the nine grades of heaven that have not transgressed, in the unity that is nobler than every unity, the unity of the holy, noble, reverend Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, through the intercession of the holy martyr Stephen, that we may all attain to that unity, may deserve it, and dwell therein for ever. Amen.

PASSION OF PETER AND PAUL.

[We now come to the series of Apostolic Passions. The story here told is a translation (beginning 1681) from the Latin, as given in Fabricius, Cod. Ap. N. Test. ii., p. 632. To this is prefixed in our MS. a brief history of the life and works of each apostle. All the other passions are translations, which may be compared with the narratives given in Fabricius op. cit., and in Tischendorf, Acta Apostolorum Apocrypha: and which have been made the subject of the masterly treatise of Lipsius, Die Apokryphen Apostelgeschichten und Apostellegenden: Braunschweig, 1883. There is a copy of this story in Eg. 91, p. 14; but of the remaining Apostolic Passions, I have not seen any other Irish text.]

“Blessed are they who suffer martyrdom and persecution for the Heavenly King, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.”

The Redeemer of the human race, Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, said these words, to strengthen his apostles and disciples and the people of the Church in general, for the endurance of suffering and persecution in the present world for the sake of the Lord of the elements, in consideration of the great reward that springs from it, viz., the kingdom of heaven.

Matthew, the son of Alphæus, wrote this account in the track of his Master, Jesus Christ, saying: “Blessed are they who suffer persecution,” &c., i. e. this passage is connected with what he said before, uidens autem Iesus turbas, ascendit in montem, et cum sedisset, accesserunt ad eum discipuli eius, et aperiens os suum dixit, ' beati pauperes spiritu, quia ipsorum est regnum caelorum' ; and Jesus preached the other beatitudes in order up to the eighth, the beatitude of persecution. In truth, many, both in the Old Testament and in the New, have suffered persecution and martyrdom for the Heavenly King. In the first place, Adam's son Abel, the first righteous man, suffered at the hands of Cain the accursed; Samson from the Philistines; John the Baptist from Herod; Stephen from the Jewish Synagogue; Jesus Christ Himself suffered cross and passion from the unbelieving Jews in Jerusalem. In like manner, the two noble, venerable apostles whose festival and commemoration fall at this time and period, the holy Apostles St. Peter and St. Paul, suffered persecution and martyrdom for the sake of the everlasting kingdom. It is at this time the Christians celebrate the festival and commemoration of these two holy apostles, on the kalends of July by the day of the solar month, on this present day as to the day of the week in the current year.

We give now some details of their race and their warfare in the present life. And first, Peter, a brother of Andrew the Apostle, was the son of John, a Galilean; Abzaida [Bethsaida], the name of the town in which he more particularly abode. He was named Cephas, i. e. capitalis, 'chief,' because he was the head and chief of the apostles. It was he whom God Himself named Simon Bar-jonas, 'son of the dove,' i. e. of the Holy Spirit. He is the shepherd of the human race. He is the foundation on which the Church is based. He is the key of the kingdom of heaven. He is the apostle who showed most love and affection for the Lord. It was he who walked dry-foot over the sea; he who awaked the widow from death; he who condemned, by a mere word, Ananias and Sapphira. He preached the Gospel in Galatia, in Pontus, in Cappadocia, in Bithynia, in Asia, in Italy. After he had founded a church in Antioch, he went to Rome, to war with Simon Magus, in the second year of the reign of Claudius Cæsar. He had been twenty-five years in his bishopric, when at length he underwent crucifixion and death at the hands of Nero Cæsar in Rome.

Next, the Apostle Paul. He was of the tribe of Benjamin, born in Tarsus, of Cilicia. He was brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, a sage of the law. On the road to Damascus he was called to the faith and belief. He is the instructor of the Gentiles, the heir of Christ in wisdom; he preached the Gospel to almost the whole world; and with him they shall come to the assembly of the judgment-day. It was he who laboured most of all the apostles. Thrice was he beaten with a rod, once stoned, thrice he suffered shipwreck. Who can enumerate his labour and watching and all his troubles in general?—in thirst, in hunger, in misery, in nakedness. Snares from without, and much persecution at the hands of his brethren from within the community, he endured; prisons and chains, daily accusations, and frequent threats of death; he incurred dangers by sea and land, at the hands of robbers, and from his own race. A day and a night he was in shipwreck in the depth of the sea. He it was who preached the Gospel without pay. He lived by the reward of the labour of his hands. He was kindly disposed and merciful to all men. On him lay the care and anxiety of all the churches. (Who was harassed without Paul's being grieved? Who was disturbed without Paul's being inflamed? [?]) It was he who gave fitting instruction to each, special precepts for masters and servants, special for chiefs and subjects, special for men and women, for married and single, for learned and unlearned, for those under the Law and for Gentiles, for the Church and for men of the world. He it was who was willing to accept his own ruin for the brethren, that they might be safe in God. The world was crucified to him, and he was crucified to the world. He counted all things as nought, for the greatness of his love of Christ. He was caught up into the third heaven, to see the mysteries and secret things of God. It was he who said to his disciples, when near his passion, Certamen bonum certavi, cursum consummaui, fidem seruaui, de cetero reposita est mihi corona iustitiae quam mihi Deus in illa die iustus iudex reddet. Paul was imprisoned in the end, and was scourged by the Jews in Jerusalem, and was brought to Rome in chains to be exhibited before Nero Cæsar, as is related by Marcellus, the disciple of the apostles:—

After Paul had come to Rome, the Jews came to him, and said:—"Our faith, in which thou wast born, defend thou it, and argue on its behalf; for it is not just for thee, who art a Jew, to make void the faith of the Jews. So when thou shalt see Peter, go against him : it is he who hath subverted our doctrine, viz., sabbath and new moon and circumcision," &c. Paul replied :—" Go ye, and announce to Peter (my arrival), and ask him to come and meet us ; and if he teach a new doctrine, I will vanquish him in your presence ; but if it be the doctrine confirmed by testimonies from the books of the Hebrews that he teach, it is fitting for us all to humble ourselves before him, and to yield him our consent." When Paul had spoken these and other words, the Jews went to Peter, and said :—" Paul hath come from the Jews, and begs thee to come to him ; for those who brought him with them in bondage do not permit him to go whither he wishes, till he has come before Cæsar." When Peter heard that, he rejoiced greatly, and went to him without delay. When each beheld the other, they wept for joy, shedding many tears, with their arms round each other's necks. Then Paul recounted to Peter everything he had suffered in coming ; and Peter told him what he had endured at the hands of Simon Magus. At eventide Peter went away, and when the day shone on the morrow he came again, and found a great multitude awaiting him at the door of Paul's house.

At that time there happened to be a great contention and angry feeling between the Jews and the Gentiles, for the Jews said :—" We are a chosen race, a royal race of the seed of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, and of all the prophets to whom the Lord spake face to face, and to whom He showed His great miracles and His secret mysteries. But ye are of the Gentiles. Ye have no good thing in your seed ; but ye have been polluted by the worship of stones and trees and idols." When they heard these words and many others, the Gentiles made reply :—" As for us, when we heard the truth, we put away from us error, and followed the truth ; but ye knew the God to whom adoration was to be paid ; ye had seen the wonders and miracles of the prophets ; to you the Law was given by God ; it was you who came dry-foot over the Red Sea ; ye had seen your enemies drowned in your presence ; to you the manna from heaven was given ; to you appeared the pillar of cloud by day and the fiery pillar by night ; for you the sweet water gushed out of the rock ;—and, after all these things, ye constructed the golden calf, and worshipped it. We, indeed, believed in a righteous God, without having seen these wonders and marvels; whereas ye put Him away from you, and did not believe in Him." While they were at this contention, Peter and Paul preached to them, and made peace between them.

But the leaders of the Jews and the priests of the Gentiles opposed them, and stirred up against the apostles the murmur of the people, and praised Simon Magus in the presence of Nero Cæsar; but they used to heap blame on Peter and Paul, because innumerable people sought the Lord through the teaching of the apostles. So great was their influence, that Lybia, the wife of Nero, and Agrippina, wife of the prefect Agrippa, came to the faith and belief, and left their royal palaces for the service of the Lord and of Christianity. When Simon Magus perceived the murmuring of the people against the apostles, he began to calumniate them, saying that 'Peter was a magician and false prophet.' Simon had a body of believers, who marvelled at the signs he showed; for he put motion into the brazen serpent, and made the images of stone and brass move and walk about; and further, he himself assumed the appearance of flying through the air. In his turn, Peter healed the leper, the blind, the lame; he cast out devils, and awaked the dead; he preached to the people that they should avoid the false doctrine of Simon Magus. Whereupon the Christians maintained that Simon was a vile, sinful magician; but those who believed in Simon asserted that Peter was a magician. When Nero heard these accounts, he ordered Simon to be brought before him. On his arrival he transformed himself into varied shapes: into the shape of a boy, and of an old man; at another time into that of a young man; in this way he assumed many shapes through the devil's aid. When Nero beheld Simon thus, he thought that he was in truth the Son of God; but Peter said he was a lying, profane magician. Then Simon addressed Nero:—"Hearken to me, O ruler, for I am the Son of God who came down from heaven. I have endured Peter, as he was by himself up to this; but now the evil has been doubled on me by the coming of Paul, who has joined Peter in fighting against me. Thou seest not that unless thou contrive the destruction of these men, they will destroy thy kingdom." Nero replied:—

“The doctrine of every man and his love God giveth ; but thou art the persecutor of this band.” Simon Magus said :—“This clique of men have turned away all the Jews from believing on me ;” on which Nero asked Peter :—“Why are ye unbelieving like your race ?” Peter said to Simon :—“Thou art able to deceive all men, except me alone ; and everyone whom thou deceivest, God has permitted their error for my sake. I am astonished at thy brazen shamelessness in presence of the king, in endeavouring to overcome Christ’s disciple by thy magical art, for thou hast tried it often and failed.” Simon addressed himself to Nero :—“Not less is it surprising to me, O ruler, that this ignorant man is aught in thy eyes, viz., Peter, the lying fisherman, who is rich neither in word, nor in race, nor in power. I will presently order my angels to come and take vengeance on him.” But Peter said :—“I am not afraid of thy angels, but rather they are afraid of me through the might of my God, Jesus Christ.” Nero replied :—“Art thou not afraid, Peter, of this same Simon who establishes his divinity by many miracles ?” “There is no divinity in him at all,” Peter made answer ; “but there are two natures in him—the human and the devilish.” Then he added :—“If Simon be of God, let him tell the thing on which I am meditating, for God knows the thoughts of men, and I will tell thee my thought in a whisper. Order a loaf of barley bread to be brought in here to me secretly.” It was brought, and he broke it and put it in his gloves ; then turning to him, he said :—“Say now, Simon, what I have meditated or done ?” “Dost thou think,” said Nero, “I would believe that there is ignorance of that thing in Simon ? Why, he has done great miracles in my presence, and has performed everything he said he would do.” Peter retorted :—“If he has done the great things, why should he not do the small ?” Then said Nero :—“What answer givest thou, Simon ?” He replied :—“Let Peter say what I am meditating.” “It will be manifest presently,” said Peter, “that I understand Simon’s thoughts.” Thereupon Simon became angry, for he had not penetrated the thought of the apostle, and he said :—“Let great dogs come down and devour Peter in the presence of Nero !” Suddenly there came dogs of wonderful magnitude, and made an onset on Peter ; but he stretched forth his hands in prayer, and showed the dogs the loaf he had blessed, and when the dogs saw it, they vanished immediately. Then Peter said to Nero:—"I told thee that I knew what Simon was meditating, viz., to send his dog-angels against me; they were not angels of God." Nero turned to Simon, saying:—"I think, Simon, that thou art beaten." Simon replied:—"He did this thing to me in the land of Juda and Palestine; and because he used often to be fighting with me, he has learnt these deeds from me." Nero rejoined:—"Thou hast been stirred up by envy against this party; for, as I perceive, there is great jealousy between thee and the Christ of this sect; but I fear thou art vanquished and destroyed by them." Then said Simon:—"Be not deceived, O ruler!" "I am not deceived," said Nero; "but I see that thou art an adversary of Peter and Paul, and their Master Jesus." "Christ is not the master of Paul at all," said Simon; to whom Paul replied:—"He who in his bodily presence taught Peter, the same taught me by manifesting Himself to me." But Simon turned to Nero, saying:—"I am astonished at thy being in doubt about me, for I have done many wonders and miracles in thy presence." Nero replied:—"I am not in doubt; I do not believe in either of you; but answer me what I shall ask thee." "I will not answer thee at all," said Simon. Nero rejoined:—"Why, then, I will hold thee of no account, for thou art false in everything, as I perceive by thy conduct; and the three of you have made me so doubtful, that now I do not know which God I will believe." Then said Peter:—"Believe in the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, Creator of all things, who made heaven and earth, and all that in them is; He is the true King, and to His reign there is no limit." "Do ye not see that ye will get the thing ye seek, viz., to go to martyrdom?" said Simon. The apostles replied:—"O Simon, vile magician, vessel full of devils and of bitterness, there will be no good to thee here or hereafter." Then said Simon:—"Listen, O Nero, that thou mayest learn that these men are deceivers, but that I came down from heaven; on the morrow I will go up to heaven, and then I will make those happy who believe in me, but I will manifest my anger and indignation on those who deny me." Peter and Paul replied:—"Long ago God called us to heaven and His great glory and honour; but thou art summoned by the devil, and art hastening to everlasting torture and punishment." Simon retorted :—" Put away from thee these madmen, O Nero, that I may do thee some good, when I come from heaven with my father." Nero asked :—" Whence shall we make sure that thou wilt go to heaven ?" Simon replied :—" Order a large wooden tower to be made, that I may go therein, and my angels will carry me from thence into the air ; for they cannot come to earth among sinners." Upon this Nero caused a great tower to be built in the Campus Martius, and bade all the people, and the leaders and the apostles, come and be spectators of this deed on the morrow. Then he said to the apostles :—" It will be plain now with whom is the truth." Peter and Paul replied :—" We shall not show the falsity of Simon, but our Lord Jesus Christ will show it." And Paul turned to Peter and said :—" It is for me to kneel down and pray to the Lord ; it is thy part to cast down Simon when he rises into the air, for thou wast chosen by God earlier than I." Then Peter addressed Simon :—" What thou hast endeavoured, do it ; for the manifestation of thy iniquity has drawn nigh ; close at hand is our summons to God, for I behold my Lord Jesus Christ summoning me and summoning Paul." Nero asked :—" What way wilt thou go, against my will ?" " Whithersoever our Lord Jesus Christ, who is present, will summon us we will go," replied Peter. Nero said :—" Is it to heaven ye will go ?" Peter made answer :—" Wherever it be pleasing to God, who has called us, we will go."

At that time Simon ascended into the tower, in the presence of all, and stretching out his hands, hovered in the air. Then said Nero :—" Thou art a truth-speaking man, Simon ; but as for you Peter and Paul, ye are deceivers." Peter replied, saying :—" Thou shalt understand without delay that we are truth-speakers and disciples of Christ, but that Simon is not God, but a vile and deceitful magician." " Ye still persist in your evil," said Nero ; " behold ! ye see him going to heaven." Then Peter addressed Paul :—" Raise thy head, and look at Simon hovering." Paul replied :—" O Peter, complete the thing thou hast begun, for our Lord Jesus Christ is summoning us !" When Nero heard their conversation, he laughed at them, and said :—" It is plain about these people now, that they are vanquished, and that they are demented." Then spake Peter :—" Ye servants of the devil, that have lifted up this man into the air to beguile the hearts of unbelieving men, I adjure you, by the Creator of all things, by Christ who rose from the dead on the third day, that ye no longer bear him up from this hour henceforward!" Simon immediately fell down in the place called Sacra Via, and his body was broken asunder into four bits, and four stones were made of them, in commemoration of the apostolic victory till this day. After that Nero ordered the apostles to be imprisoned and the body to be kept for three days, for he thought Simon would rise on the third day. But Peter said to Nero:—"He will never more rise, for he is dead in pain and torment." Thereupon Nero said to the prefect Agrippa:—"Destroy these faithless men, putting them under fiery blades, till they finish their life thus, with everyone who adheres to them." The prefect replied:—"O king and ruler, it is not fitting for them to have a like death, for Paul is innocent, but Peter is a murderer and unbeliever. It were just, as it seems to me, to behead Paul, but to crucify Peter." "Good is the judgment thou hast delivered," said Nero. After that the apostles were laid hold of in the presence of Nero.

While Paul was being led to the place of decapitation, he saw a certain woman with a white linen cloth in her hand, to whom he said:—"Give me the linen cloth to put round my head, that I may not see the hand of the executioner, and it will return to thee immediately." The woman gave him the cloth. So Paul was beheaded at the marble column in the Via Ostiensis; and the cloth returned again to the woman. But Paul's head at once rolled to a certain lake, and was forty years there. And after the fortieth year, the daughter of the woman who had given the linen-cloth to Paul went to the same lake to wash clothes: she saw light flashing on the lake, and she published it abroad throughout the city. Then the Roman people went to the lake, and they found the head of Paul in the middle of the lake; so they carried off the head with honour and a great quiring to the body. The body and the head were dripping blood, just as if Paul had been beheaded on that day. On applying the head to the body, they adhered together, as if they had been in life; and everybody praised and blessed the Lord for that miracle.

As for Peter, when he came to the cross, he said:—"My Lord Jesus Christ, who came down from heaven, was crucified thus, with his head up and his feet below ; as to me, I am not worthy of being so placed, but let my head be turned down and my feet up !” The executioners did so. Thereupon an innumerable host gathered together, and made efforts to burn Nero Cæsar. But Peter cried out, and said :—“ I was coming hither to-day amongst you to converse with a brother of mine, and there met me on the road my Lord Jesus Christ, and I worshipped Him, and said : ‘ Whither goest Thou, Lord ? ’ And Christ replied : ‘ I am going to Rome to be again crucified ; ’ adding, ‘ Follow me, for I am going again to Rome to be crucified : ’ that is, to be crucified in his members, the apostles. Do not, therefore,” said Peter, “ obstruct my road and my departure, for I am going to heaven, inasmuch as I and Paul are members of Christ.” When Peter had said these and other words, he gave up the ghost. After that there appeared holy men, viz., angels, the like of whom was never seen before nor after, and they said :—“ For Peter’s sake we are come from Jerusalem,” a name at that time used as a name of heaven. So they carried away secretly Peter’s body, and buried it in the place called Vaticanus. And they said to the Roman people :—“ Be ye glad and joyful for the presence among you of these sages and great anchorites.”

But the Roman people conceived great hatred against Nero, to such an extent, indeed, that they determined on scourging and beating him to death. When Nero heard that design, he was seized with horror and intolerable fear, so that he secretly fled away, and was in the deserts and woods of the land, roaming about and wandering, till he died of cold and hunger, and beasts and birds at last devoured him.

And Greeks came to take away with them the bodies of the apostles into their own land ; but there happened then a great earthquake and the Roman people ran and overtook them ; so they placed the bodies on the spot called Catacumba, where they remained a year and six months, till the erection of the buildings, where the bodies should finally lie, was completed. Thereafter, the body of Peter was laid in Vaticano, at the distance of a mile from Rome eastward ; and Paul’s body at the second mile to the south of Rome : at that place his request is granted to everybody through the intercession of these two high apostles.

To-day the two holy apostles finished their battle with the devil and the world. To-day the whole heavenly city rejoiced, and went to meet the apostles with quirings and many praises. To-day Saint Peter ascended to Jesus Christ, for he loved Him especially beyond every other apostle, so that now he is in everlasting joy in the presence of Him on whom he bestowed great love. To-day was given him the wardship of the heavenly city, so that he opens and closes to everyone as it pleases him. To-day was given to St. Paul what he ever begged for, cupio dissolvi et esse cum Christo, so that he now ever sees that Christ face to face; it was for Him, for Christ, that he renounced his brethren, his relatives, his friends, and all the world; on Him he bestowed unspeakable love, as he himself says:—"There is no trouble, nor might, nor persecution, nor hunger, nor danger, nor sword that shall separate me from the love of Christ." To-day the two holy sages, the two trustworthy shepherds of the Church, ascended to heaven, to the true Father and to the true Shepherd, Jesus Christ. And they will be with Him at the judgment of the human race, as He said to them, cum sederit filius hominis in sede maiestatis suae, sedebitis et uos super duodecim sedes iudicantes duodecim tribus Israel; after that judgment they shall dwell with Him for ever in heavenly felicity, in the unity of the saints and holy virgins of the world, in the unity of the nine grades of heaven that have not transgressed, in the unity of the noble, venerable Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We ask the mercy of God, through the intercession of Peter and Paul, that we may all reach that unity, and may dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

[XXII.]

THE PASSION OF BARTHOLOMEW.

The apostle Bartholomew having gone to teach in India, came to a certain temple there, in which was a great idol called Astoroth, worshipped by the citizens; and he dwelt in that place like any other pilgrim. Now there was a demon in it, who gave out that he could cure people of every disease; but he only healed the people whom he had distressed. For they did not worship the true God, and so those false gods deceived them, inasmuch as the demon by his art deceives those who have not the true God; i.e. he brings diseases and plagues upon them, and admonishes them to offer him sacrifice. These foolish people thought it was he who gave them health; while the demons did not really do this, but only let them alone without distressing them, the people believing it was the devil who healed them, when he only ceased from tormenting them. Anyhow, as long as Bartholomew remained there, Astoroth gave no response, and neither healed nor hurt anyone, so that at length the crowds who came to Astoroth with sacrifices and got neither response nor cure, betook themselves to another city, to worship a demon called Herith. Of him they inquired why Astoroth gave them no response, and were informed that from the coming of Bartholomew, the apostle of God, into their city, the demon had been bound with a fiery chain, so that he could not speak. "Who is this Bartholomew?" said they. "The friend of Almighty God, who is come hither to subvert all your gods." "Tell us his form, so that we may recognize him amid others." Then the demon gave this description of him:—"He has curly black hair, a well-formed nose and ears to match; no baldness, a very long beard, with a few white hairs in it; of middle size, a shining robe around him, with purple spots thereon; he has worn that same robe for twenty-six years, and it is not a whit older nor dirtier, and two shoes which have lasted him the same time, without being at all the older. He makes one hundred genuflections each night and each day; he has a sweet organ-toned voice; and withal, angels ever in his company, who never let him suffer cold nor fatigue, thirst nor hunger; a man mild and gentle of heart and countenance; vigorous, impetuous, and of cheerful, merry temper at all times; a man who has knowledge of all things and all languages, everything in the world, in short, for the angels tell him. And however ye seek him, it will just be according to his good pleasure whether ye find him or not. And indeed, I beg of you, if you should find him, do not bring him to me, lest the angels who are with him do to me everything they have done to Astoroth." So saying the demon held his peace; and the people on returning home sought Bartholomew, but they did not find him. Now there was in the city at the time a certain man possessed with the devil, who overheard Bartholomew at prayer, and he went up to him, saying:—“O Bartholomew, apostle of God, thy prayer is burning me.” Now the saint knew it was the devil who was maddening the man, so he bade the devil ‘be silent and come out of the man.’ who was thus delivered from the fiend who had been agitating him for many years. Thereupon he told this incident to Policin, the king of the city, who had a daughter tormented for long by a demon. On hearing this tale, the king sent messengers to Bartholomew, asking him to come and save his daughter, as he had saved Seustrim, the man who had previously been mad. When the saint arrived, he found the girl in chains, for she used to strike and bite everyone whom she touched, so that none dared touch her. On his ordering her chains to be unloosed, the servants objected, saying:—“Who would dare to go near her?” “The devil who used to agitate her is in chains to me,” said the apostle; “go ye, therefore, and unloose her, and give her food, and bring her to me to-morrow.” All this was done according to his bidding, and the demon no longer dared to cleave to her. The next morning the king came with a camel’s load of gold and silver and of precious stones [carbuncles] and all sorts of dresses, to give to the apostle, but the messengers could not find him, and brought them back to the royal palace. The following day at dawn these three met together, the apostle, the king, and Seustrim; and Bartholomew asked:—“Of what use would be thy giving treasure to me, for that avails only for those who seek earthly things, but I seek not aught earthly or carnal, but my wish is that thou shouldst learn how He who made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, was born from the womb of a Virgin, Mary. Most suitable was such a birth for the Son of God, for Mary was the first virgin who dedicated her virginity to God; she alone of all women, from the beginning of the world, was found to have devoted herself so, in resolving in her heart that she would not know union with any man. While she was praying in her chamber, the angel Gabriel came to her, so that spiritual fear seized her at the sight, but the angel said to her:—‘Fear not, O Mary Virgin, for thou shalt bear a Son, of whom heaven and earth shall be full.’ ‘How shall that be done, for I know not, and will not know, any man while I live.' The angel replied :—' The Holy Ghost shall manifest His presence, and therefore holy shall He be called who shall be born from thee.' After He was born, it was His will to be tempted of the devil, so that Christ conquered through fasting in the desert him who overcame Adam in paradise through gluttony ; for it was fitting that Christ, the Virgin's Son, should overcome him who had vanquished Adam, the Son of the Virgin, the holy earth : for the earth of which Adam was made was virgin soil, unstained by iron, or by human blood, nor had it ever yet been opened for the burial of anyone. Thrice was Christ tempted of the devil, and thrice He overcame, in matter of covetousness, of pride, and of gluttony. And He sent His apostles throughout the world, to drive out the devils who inhabit the images in the temples. We therefore take no sort of wealth from anyone in the world, but we despise it, for it is better to have treasure in the kingdom of heaven, where there shall be neither disease, nor sorrow, nor death, but where there shall be everlasting happiness, joy without end, and delightful pleasures. But from the day I came into the temple, the angels chained your god, the demon who used to give you response from the idol ; if, however, thou believe in Christ and receive baptism, thou shalt see the devil and shalt recognize his wickedness. And if thou wish to have proof that what I say is true, we will all go into the temple, and I will bid the demon speak to you from the image, and he will tell you that he is held in chains by the angels of the living God." " On the morrow I will go with the priests," said the king, " to sacrifice, that I may see that marvel." On the morrow the priests presented their offerings, and the demon said :—" O wretched men, present no more sacrifice to me, lest there befall you a worse thing than has befallen me ; for the angels of the Lord, whom the Jews crucified, have cast chains of fire upon me. The Jews thought they could bind him by death, but He enslaved death, and bound with fiery chains Death's fellow, our chief ; then, on the third day, He rose victorious over death and the devil, and after giving his apostles the sign of his cross, He sent them over the round world to disseminate the Faith ; and one of them is now in this city, and it is he who holds me bound in chains ; and do ye beseech him, on my behalf, to let me go into another country, for the prayers of Bartholomew are torturing me here." "Tell me," said the saint, "who it is that deceived the many who have divers diseases in the temples?" "Our chief, the devil, sent us hither, and it is he who has bound them. He sent us to mankind, to afflict their bodies first; for we have no power over their souls unless they offer sacrifice to the gods; but when they do sacrifice for the cure of their bodies, we do no hurt then to their bodies, for then we begin to get power over their souls; so when we remain without afflicting their bodies, they deem that we are protecting and favouring them then, and therefore they pay us the adoration due to God. From the time Bartholomew came hither, I have been bound by chains of fire, and my speaking to you is by his permission, for I would not dare to speak in his presence unless he gave me leave; no more would even my chief Lucifer dare, unless by his permission." "What profit to thee is the sin of the men whom they bring to thee to heal?" "That is easily answered," said they. "When we agitate their bodies with troubles, without agitating their souls, the bodies remain in their troubles then." "Then how do ye ruin their souls?" "When they believe us to be gods and offer sacrifices to us, the Lord turns away from them, and then we no longer torment their bodies but we tempt their souls; for this is all we seek, to enslave their souls to us." Then Bartholomew addressed the people:—"It is not meet for you to worship him to whom ye have given the form of a god; He alone is the true God who dwelleth not in trees nor in stones; and if it please you, I will pray the Lord on your behalf that ye may be healed. But cast out this idol and break it, and I will consecrate this temple to God, and will baptize you in it." Then at the bidding of the king, the people applied chains, and thongs, and ropes, to drag the idol from its place, and they could not. Then the apostle spake to the demon:—"If it be not thy wish to go over the sea for ever, break the idol thyself, and go into the desert, where there is no habitation of any living creature." Then the demon at once brake in pieces the idol, with all the appurtenances made for him in the temple. And the people said:—"He is the one God Almighty whom Bartholomew magnifies." Then the apostle raised his hands to heaven, saying:—"O God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Thou didst send thy only-begotten Son to give His blood for men fallen into sin ; He gave to us the power of healing the blind, and leper, and lame, and that we might raise the dead ; and that whatever we asked of the Heavenly Father should be given us ; for Thou art the one God, in heaven, and earth, and sea : grant me now, in Thy name, that all may be healed (who believe) in Thee to-day, and that everyone may understand that Thou art the true Almighty God." "May God do so," added the people. Then came an angel of God, bright as the sun, with four wings, and he flew through the four corners of the temple, marking the sign of the cross on the wall. "God hath declared to me," said he, "that ye all shall be healed of your infirmity ; and He hath cleansed the temple from every impurity, and from the presence of the demon who dwelt therein, and whom the apostle hath ordered into the desert. If it be your wish I will show him to you ; and let not fear of him take hold of you, but make the sign of the cross over your faces, as I made over the walls of the temple, and every evil shall depart from you." On their assent, the angel showed him to them—a huge Ethiopian, blacker than coal his face, with a long beard, and hair down to his heels ; his eyes were fiery, and a fierce flame issued from his neck and his nose, like the fire of the furnace of hell ; more stinking than a privy was that flame, and it would burn the world ; on him are wings as thorny as a briar, and his hands were bound with chains of fire over his back. Then the angel addressed him thus:—"Since thou hast exhibited humility to the apostle, and hast cleansed the temple from the idols that were therein, depart now, as the apostle hath bade thee, and go into the desert, where there is no human dwelling, and be there till the day of judgment." Thereupon his chains were unloosed, and he uttered a great cry, and a loud scream, as he went from them, filling the temple with his stench. Then the angel went up to heaven, in the sight of all ; and the king believed, together with his queen, and all the people of that city and of the cities in the neighbourhood, with all the inhabitants who were under the king's power ; they all believed, and were baptised ; and indeed the king laid aside his royal diadem, and remained in the company of the apostle thereafter. But now the priests of the temple gathered together, and betook themselves to the other king, who was called Astriages, the brother of King Policim, and they said to Astriages:—"Thy brother hath believed on the magician, who broke our idols and made him become a disciple of his." Then Astriages was enraged, and sent forth a thousand armed men, together with the priests, to seek for the saint, and bring him to the king. When this was done, and Bartholomew brought before him, Astriages thus addressed him:—"Art thou he who hast converted my brother?" "I have converted him from wrong and turned him to the right," replied the apostle. "Art thou he who broke the idol gods?" "I gave power to break them to the demons who were therein, in order to draw men out of error and to bring them to Almighty God who is in heaven." Then said the king further:—"And was it thou didst cause my brother to abandon his own gods and to accept the faith in thy God?" "It was so," replied the apostle. "I will make thee leave thy God, and worship mine." "Nay," said Bartholomew, "I broke the god thy brother worshipped, and so will I do to thy god, and all the gods who are with thee; and if they can do aught against me, I will believe in them hereafter, but if they are unable, then do thou believe in my God." And while the apostle was thus speaking, word was brought to the king that the idols had fallen down and were broken to pieces. Thereat the king rent his purple garment, and ordered his people to smite the apostle with a club first, then to flay him, and in the end to behead him with the sword. So the priests and the king's household seized the apostle and buffeted him with their fists and with poisonous rods and with iron staves, so that all his flesh and his skin was torn from him, while he continued exhorting the people and his murderers; next they flayed him and stripped his skin from him as from a brute beast, and sewed his skin around again with pins of spine and thorn. Some say that they made him carry his skin all over the city to sell it for money for them. Finally, one of them came up to him with a naked sword in his hand, and made a stroke with it on the neck of the apostle, and in that wise beheaded him. The people who had believed in Christ through the martyr came with their king, Policimus, who through his teaching had also believed in God, and had left his kingdom; and they carried off the apostle's body, and sang over it hymn and song of their best, and sorrowfully they bore him away. And a great basiliké was built by them, in which they laid his body.

At the end of a month after his burial came the King Astriages, together with all the priests, harassed by fiends, and driven to fury and madness, to the tomb of Bartholomew, and crying:—"For his sake is this doom brought upon us." They fell down there, and died; and their souls fled away with the demons into the everlasting abode of the punishment of hell. Then great horror and fear fell upon all the unbelievers at that sight, so that they believed in God, and were baptised by the priests whom Bartholomew himself had before that ordained; for he had indicated to the people that it was the King Policimus who should be their bishop when he himself was gone.

Policimus was twenty years in the bishopric after that, during which time he did innumerable miracles and marvels in the name of God and of Bartholomew the Apostle. Now, the soul of the martyr had been seen, like a foam-flake or a ray of the sun, borne up by angels into heaven. Finit.

PASSION OF THE APOSTLE JAMES.

James the Great, son of Zebedee, and brother of John the Apostle and renowned Evangelist, went and taught the Word of God in the land of Judea. The magician named Hermogenes sent his disciple, Filetus, to encounter James, along with a great crowd of Pharisees, to blaspheme the name of the Son of God, in the presence of the venerable apostle. When they had come to James, they kept asserting that Christ was not the Son of God; but James rebutted their arguments, and maintained, from the evidence of the Scriptures, that Jesus Christ is the true Son of God. So Filetus returned to Hermogenes, and said:—"It seems to me that thou wilt not be able to overcome the apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ, for I saw him heal the blind, the lame, and lepers in Christ's name;

and I heard from my friends that they had seen dead men awake at his command. Aye, and he has the Holy Scripture by heart; and from it he proves that the Christ whom the Jews crucified is the Son of God. So this is my advice to thee: go to him, and ask of him forgiveness, for there will be no profit of wizardry to thee till thou do what I tell thee. At all events, I will go to him," added he, "and will beg forgiveness of him, and follow him as a disciple." Then Hermogenes grew wrath when he heard that; and he flung Filetus into chains, and said:—"When James shall deliver thee from the bonds laid on thee, I will believe in him." So Filetus sent a servant to James, and told him the matter. James sent the servant back with his handkerchief [sudary] to the place where Filetus was confined. On its being brought to him, the chains fell off from Filetus; and he was freed immediately. Then Filetus went to James, and began to revile Hermogenes, and cast blame on his wizardry in the apostle's presence. But Hermogenes, growing angry at the loss of his pupil, evoked demons by his magical arts, and sent them to James, saying:—"Go ye to James and my pupil Filetus, and bring them before me, so that I may fight with them, lest they carry off my disciples and deceive them." So the demons came to seek James, whom they found in prayer; and they said to him, as they hovered in the air above him in loud lamentation:—"O apostle of God. save us from damnation before our time, for we are already in pain." "Why have ye come hither?" asked James. "Hermogenes sent us to bring thee and Filetus before him; but when we reached this place, the Lord's angels bound us with chains of fire, which are burning us." So James bade the angels free them, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and then sent them to bring Hermogenes: "Only," said he, "do him no harm, but harass him with delirium." Then the demons went to Hermogenes, and said to him:—"Why didst thou send us to meet pain and torture at the hands of James?" and they bound his hands behind his back, and carried him off to James, who thus addressed him:—"O fierce and ignorant man, why hast thou associated with the enemy of mankind? and why is it that thou seest not how, even in spite of themselves, at my command are the servants of him whom thou didst beg to send them to take vengeance on me? But I did not let them injure thee." "Give us leave," begged the demons of James, "to take vengeance on Hermogenes for the injury done to thee and to us, in all that we [?] have suffered on his account." James asked them:—"Why did ye not inflict evil on Filetus, who is in your presence?" "We cannot do evil to one who is under thy protection," said the demons. So James turned to Filetus, saying:—"Him who bound thee, do thou free from his bonds, that men may learn that mercy belongs to the followers of Jesus, for they return good for evil. Him, therefore, who sent the demons to bring thee in chains to himself, do thou release, now that he is enslaved by them, and give him leave to depart whatever road is pleasing to him." Then Filetus took off the bonds from Hermogenes, who stood in silence, while James thus addressed him:—"Depart now whither thou wilt, for it is not according to our teaching to force anyone to come to us." "I know now," said Hermogenes, "the power for evil of the devils over mankind; and unless thou give me a token, they will smite me with many torments." "Take my staff with thee," was the reply; "and thou shalt go without injury whithersoever it please thee." Then Hermogenes took the staff in his hand and went home with it. And he filled two vessels full of books, which he put on the backs of himself and his pupil, and went with them to James for his judgment thereon. As he was urging that they should be burnt:—"Do not so," said James, "lest the smoke thereof do injury to men, but sink them in the midst of the sea." This was done quickly by Hermogenes, who then returned to James, and humbled himself before him, imploring of him forgiveness for the sin of every injustice he had done him. "If thou feel true penitence, God will forgive thee." "Is it not a sign of repentance in me that I have drowned all my books?" "Come, then, to the faith; and tell everyone whom thou didst mislead heretofore by thy wizardry that thy words and assertions were false; break the idol that thou didst worship, and give to God's poor the wealth thou hadst by the mouth of the devil; for thou art now a child of God, after having belonged hitherto to the devil." "All this shall be done," was the reply. Then Hermogenes believed in the Lord, through the teaching of James, and he fulfilled God's command from thenceforward ; and God did many wonders and marvels through him thereafter.

Now, when the Jews saw this conversion to Christ of Hermogenes and his pupils, they gave treasure to the two centurions named Lysias and Theoc[ri]tus, who were in Jerusalem, to have James seized ; and after this was done, they sent magicians of the Pharisees to dispute with him ; and they said :—“ Why art thou magnifying Christ, who was crucified between the robbers ? ” But James, full of the grace of the Holy Spirit, spake thus :—“ Dear brethren, sons of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, God promised your father Abraham that many races should be born of his seed. Abraham himself, who, even before he was circumcised, was the friend of God, prophesied and said :—‘ A Virgin shall bear a Son, and His name shall be the God of heaven and earth.’ Yet it was not in his circumcision, but in his belief, that he was called the friend of God. It is clear, therefore, that he who believeth not on Him is an enemy of God.” “ Who does not believe in God ? ” said the Jews. “ He who does not believe in the prophecy of Moses, referred to by Esaias when he foretold the birth of Christ in the words, ‘ The Lord shall stir up a great prophet like Moses for you ; ’ of whom Jeremias prophesied, saying :—‘ He shall come who shall purchase thee, O Jerusalem ; and these shall be his signs : he shall give sight to the blind, and hearing to the deaf ; he shall awake the dead by a word.’ David also prophesied the birth of Christ, saying :—‘ The Son of man shall come, and shall receive authority and power over the world.’ The Lord Himself said to David, son of Jesse :—‘ I will make of the fruit of thy loins one who shall have rule on thy throne.’ Esaias, too, said of his passion :—‘ The Son of God shall be led as a gentle sheep to the sacrifice.’ So also David said, in the person of God :—‘ They wounded my hands and my feet : they parted my garments, and cast lots for them.’ And again David said of Christ’s resurrection :—‘ I will rise from the dead, for the sake of the wretched men who are in hell.’ And again :—‘ The Son of God flew and mounted up over the grades of cherubim ; ’ ‘ He sat on the right of God the Father in heaven.’ And the Lord Himself said to Jesus :—‘ Sit Thou on my right hand.’ And the same prophet, David, said of His coming in the day of judgment :—‘ The Lord will come openly ; and intolerable fire shall blaze before Him, and a great storm around Him.’ All these things,” said James, “ were fulfilled in our Lord Jesus Christ, who healed all diseases, giving sight to the blind by putting His spittle on the man’s face, though he was born blind from his mother ; thus proving that it was He who formed Adam out of the clay of the earth, for Christ made two lumps of clay, and put them in place of his eyes, so that He healed him at once. We, the apostles,” added James, “ asked of Christ, ‘ which of these did sin—this man or his parents, that he was born blind ? ’ ‘ Neither did he commit sin nor his parents,’ said Christ ; ‘ but that the marvels of God might be manifested in him.’ For it was He who made him so. God, therefore, in healing the man, created that which had not before been born, viz., his eyes. He healed afterwards the consumptive, cleansed the lepers, gave sight to the blind, cast out devils, and raised the dead.” Then the Jews cried out :—“ Christ was worthy of death, for He was betrayed by His own disciple, Judas.” “ Nay, beloved brethren, ye children of Abraham, the prophets foretold, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, the birth of Christ amongst you, His passion, and His resurrection. Let each one of you, therefore, repent ; and be ye sure of this, that the Gentiles have believed in the voices of the prophets ; yet ye believe not the patriarchs and prophets who have prophesied of Him.” And while James was preaching, God sent an impulse through the Jews, so that they cried with one voice :—“ We have sinned greatly : do thou pardon us ! ” “ Despair not, but believe in the Lord,” said James ; “ and be baptised, that your sins be remitted ! ”

Now when Abiathar, the high priest in Jerusalem, saw the conversion of many to Christ through James’s teaching, he was seized with great indignation and wrath, so that he gave great treasure to them who were on his side against the apostle ; and so one of the sages of the Pharisees, named Josias (2321), went and cast a rope round James’s neck, and brought him to the house of Herod Agrippa, who was judge over the people of Israel at that time. Herod, in the same spirit, ordered him to be beheaded. While he was being led to execution, they met a consumptive person lying on his bed, who appealed to him in the words :—“ Save me, O apostle of Jesus, from my disease, for I am pained in all my limbs." "Arise," said James, "in the name of Christ, in whose name I am led to execution, and do thou give thanks to Him, and thou shalt be made whole thereafter." Then the sick man arose at once, quite cured, and he blessed the name of God. When Josias saw the miracle that was done there, he knelt before the apostle, and asked of him forgiveness. So James, knowing that the grace of God had come upon the man, said to him:—"Believest thou that Christ, whom the Jews crucified, is the Son of God?" "I believe," said Josias, "and this shall be my faith for ever, that He of whom thou speakest is the Son of God." But Abiathar, the priest, addressed Josias thus:—"Unless thou depart from James, and curse the name of Christ, thou also shalt die." "Nay, but thou thyself art accursed, and all thy idol gods with thee," said Josias; "but blessed is the name of Christ, who magnifies his apostle." "Buffet him on the face with your fists!" said Abiathar; and he sent messengers to Herod, asking that Josias might be put to death along with James. So they came to the place of decapitation, where James said to the executioner:—"Give us water before thou slay us!" A vessel full of water was brought to James, who addressed Josias:—"Believest thou in God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit?" "I believe," said Josias, "that He is the One God Almighty." Then James sprinkled the water over him, and put his hand on Josias' head, blessing him, and made the sign of Christ's cross over his face. Then Josias was beheaded, together with the apostle of the Lord: glory and honour are his in heaven and on earth for evermore. Amen.

PASSION OF THE APOSTLE ANDREW.

In the city of Patras there was a great persecution of the Christians at the hands of a pro-consul called Aegeas, who sought to force them to offer sacrifices to the gods. The holy apostle Andrew came to the ruler, and said to him:—"It were fitting for thee, who art a judge over men, to learn of that Judge who is in heaven, Jesus Christ, and that thou shouldst worship Him when thou hast learnt to know Him, and that thou shouldst turn away thy heart from other gods when thou hast learnt to worship the true God." "Art thou Andrew the Apostle, who hast destroyed the temples of the idols and of the gods, and hast urged on men the pursuit of a superstitious belief of thine?" asked Aegeas; adding: "the Roman emperors have given orders to subvert thy teaching." "Those kings do not know that it was for the salvation of men that the Son of God came upon earth; but as for these idols, they are not gods, but devils, and most wicked enemies of the human race, for they teach men to give offence unto God. Now God turns away from men, when they transgress His will, and the devil gets them into his power, so that he beguiles them till the day of their death, and they carry nought away with them into the future life, but only their sins." "All thy argument is vain," said Aegeas, "for the man whom thou proclaimest was crucified by the Jews on account of that first teaching which he tried to institute." "As to that cross of which thou speakest, it was of His own free will, and not by compulsion, that the Author of the human race was crucified thereon." "How can it be said that He went to the cross of His own free will, while thou admittest that He was given up by His own disciples, and was taken by the Jews, and crucified by the soldiery of the king?" "Nay," said Andrew, "that is why I say that He went to the cross of His own free will; for He foretold us, that He would be delivered up by His disciples, and would be crucified for the salvation of mankind, and would rise again from the dead on the third day. And when Peter expostulated, saying:—'Far be it, Lord, from Thee, the Son of God, to perish on the cross!' Christ replied:—'Peter, thou understandest not the secrets of God as yet; I say it for this reason, because I have power over my life to give it up, and to take it again.' And again He told us, as we all sat together at meat with Him, 'one of you shall betray me, he namely to whom I shall give this morsel of the loaf'; so that thus it is clear that He went to the cross of His own free will," said Andrew, "for had it been His pleasure, He could have avoided it." "I am astonished that thou, a prudent man, shouldst follow the doctrine of a crucified person, for that death is opprobrious amongst men." "Great is the mystery of the cross, if thou knewest it." "I do not know of its being a mystery, but it is a terrible punishment." "And that punishment is the mystery of the regeneration of the human race." "Thou shalt get that mystery in thine own person," retorted Aegeas, "unless thou do as I bid thee." "Were I afraid of the death of the cross, I should not magnify its glory: but it is for this reason that I tell thee of its mystery, that through it thou mayest save thy soul." "There is no death of the soul," said Aegeas, "so as to make it needful to renew it." "The souls of all men are dead in sin," said Andrew, "for the first man, Adam, brought death into the world by the tree of transgression, and so it is by the tree of the cross of Christ that that death was slain. And as the first man, Adam, committed sin on the yet uncorrupted earth, so it was necessary that Christ should be born from an unspotted Virgin, that the human race, which had died in Adam, might be brought to everlasting life, and that the tree of death should be expelled by the tree of the cross, that He should stretch out His hands on the tree of the cross for the hands they stretched out to the tree of transgression, and drink the bitter drink on the cross in return for the sweet pleasant food of the tree of transgression." "Tell this to anyone who will believe it from thee," said Aegeas, "but thou shalt get the death of the cross thou laudest, unless thou sacrifice to the gods." "I sacrifice daily to the one God Almighty," said Andrew, "and not an offering of bulls, or of goats, but the blood of the blameless Lamb. Jesus Christ, do I sacrifice every day." Then Aegeas was wroth. and ordered Andrew to be led to prison. When this was done, the Christian folk assembled to take him out of the prison; and they threatened to kill Aegeas, but were pacified by Andrew, who said:—"Do no violence on my behalf, for God was patient and gentle when He was crucified and buried, therefore hinder ye not my martyrdom. And not only so, but stand firm yourselves in bearing all the hardships ye shall meet; for brief is temporal pain. which may be compared to the smoke of a fire: as it flashes up, and sinks down again instantly, so is temporal pain in comparison with everlasting punishment. Therefore every man should beware of the punishment that has no limit nor end, where the weeping and sighing never cease." Then Aegeas replied:—"He who dreads coming to that place, may do what thou sayest, and follow thy faith." "Be therefore spiritually minded," said Andrew, [turning to the people], "so as to come through temporal troubles, and be in the presence of God in joy and gladness for evermore."

So Andrew taught the people in this fashion the whole of a winter night. And on the morrow he was brought in to the tribunal to Aegeas, who thus addressed him:—"Methinks this is the counsel thou wilt adopt—to leave off thy praise of Christ, and to do sacrifice to the gods, that thou mayest not be led to the cross." "Good rather were it for thee to leave off the worship of the false gods and to worship Christ," said Andrew. "Nay," retorted Aegeas, "worship thou these gods, that the people who follow thee may do so; for there is no city in Achaia which has not abandoned its idol worship through thee; and if not, thou shalt suffer many tortures, and die the death of the cross thereafter!" "Give ear now, O son of death," replied Andrew, "thou evanescent flame, thou stubble destined to everlasting fire, for I would rather choose to suffer every pain I shall get for the name of God, because I shall be honoured of God if I endure great martyrdom." "I swear to thee," said Aegeas, "that unless thou do what I say, thou shalt be crucified." "The death of the cross is my choice," said Andrew, "for so died my Lord Jesus Christ. I dread everlasting death for thee far more than my own temporal death." On this Aegeas ordered him to be tortured.

So he was stretched out upon the rack, and seven times underwent the torture of boiling water being flung over his head, but without hurt being done him; after which he was brought again before Aegeas, whom he warned thus:—"Thy face shall blaze like a candle in everlasting pain, but short shall be my temporal suffering." Then Aegeas grew wroth, and ordered him to be hung upon the cross, without thrusting nails through his hands or feet, so that his pain might be the greater for being long thereon. And the Christian people bewailed the crucifixion of the sinless martyr, the holy sage; while Andrew taught the people, and begged them not to hinder his martyrdom. When he came to the place of his death, and saw the cross, he cried:—"O holy cross, thou wast consecrated and blessed by the body of Christ that hung on thee, adorned by his limbs as it were by pearls and precious stones. God shrank not from thee; beauty and shapeliness thou hast received from the body of Christ, that was tortured on thee. Thou hast blotted out the sin of the tree of transgression; thou art the bloom and the shining fruit of the earth, the fruitful palm-tree with its many blossoms; thou art the sweet-smelling cypress, wherewith all the faithful are filled and perfumed; take me to thyself, from the men who were redeemed through thee, and present me to my Lord Jesus Christ!" And when he had thus spoken, he took off his episcopal robe and gave it to his executioners. Then he was tied to the cross with cords, and lifted up on high.

Now there were present not less than 20,000 among the many troops of people; and among them was the brother of Aegeas, Stratocles, who joined the Christians in condemning the crucifixion of Andrew. "This is but a slight outlay to purchase heaven!" said the martyr; and so, ever instructing the people, he continued till the next day on the cross; but the people surrounded Aegeas, and told him that it was unjust to crucify so chaste, honourable, faithful a man, perfect in all good ways, and without sin. Then Aegeas grew afraid of the people, and bade them take down the martyr from the cross; and he went with the people towards Andrew. "Why hast thou come hither?" said Andrew to him. "If it be thy wish to believe in Christ, I will give thee eternal life, but if it be to free me from the cross, I cannot be taken down alive from it; for I see my great King, Christ, the Son of God, awaiting me, and ready to avenge on thee my suffering." Then the soldiers who were present attempted to take him down from the cross, but their hands withered when they touched him; and Andrew cried with a loud voice:—"O Christ, let me not [be taken] from the cross, till I have given up the ghost, and Thou take my soul to Thyself!" Then a great light shone from heaven, and played about the cross, so that men could not see it during all that time. The great light disappeared after the space of half an hour, and Andrew gave up the ghost, so that men saw both the light and his soul going up to heaven to God. After that the devil entered into Aegeas, so that he died in the presence of the people before he reached home. But Stratocles came and took with him the body of Andrew, and buried it with great honour in the city of Patras. And great fear seized the people then, so much so that there was none who did not believe on Christ, whose desire is to save all men, that they may come to the joy of eternal life. Finit, amen.

[XXV.]

PASSION OF THE APOSTLE PHILIP.

Philip the Apostle was forty years teaching and preaching in Scythia. Then came heathen folk to him, and bound him, and led him away to the Temple of Mars, their idol god, where was the great dragon, who killed the two tribunes that were over the city, collecting the imperial tax on behalf of the Romans. And it was the unbelieving attendants of this dragon that bound Philip. Now there were great numbers in that city, wasted with various diseases from the poisonous venom that issued from the dragon—blind, and deaf, and lame, and men sick of every evil that he wrought in them that they might offer sacrifices to the devil, to be freed from those diseases, and their souls be in consequence damned. To these diseased men spake Philip:—"Follow my counsel, and ye shall be made whole, body and soul. The devilish beast, who hath inflicted this hurt on you hitherto, shall be expelled in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ; and I will raise from the dead, in His name, the people who have been slain by the beast." "Only tell us what we shall do." "Cast out this image of Mars, and break it; then set up the cross of Christ in its stead, and worship it." "Give us but health," was the reply, "and we will break the idol forthwith." Then there was made a great silence, and Philip spake:—"Depart, thou dragon, and leave thy place, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ; and go to some spot where there is no human habitation, that thou mayest no more for ever do hurt to man." On the word of the apostle the dragon, with his retinue of demons about him, went out with woful yelling, filling the temple with his smoke and stench. And after him no other appeared. Then Philip resuscitated the son of the priest who used to bring fire for the sacrifices ; and he healed forthwith all men afflicted with diseases arising from the serpent's venom ; and the heretofore erring people were converted to sincere repentance when they beheld that great marvel.

Hierapolis was the name of the city in which Philip was afterwards crucified ; and they worshipped him as a god. Philip taught them for the space of a year to this effect : how Christ was born of a virgin ; how He was crucified ; and how He ascended into heaven in the sight of His apostles ; how the grace of the Holy Ghost descended on them, and gave them the power of speaking many languages on the day of Pentecost, for they only spoke one language up to that time, viz. Hebrew. " And I," said Philip, " am one of them ; I was sent to show you these things, to show that the idols whom ye worship are not gods in truth, but speechless, senseless, irrational idols, the vain works of the hands of sinful men, and that their worshippers are real enemies of God." Then multitudes, not less than many thousands of people, believed in Philip, and were all baptized by him ; and he built many churches, and ordained bishops, and priests, and deacons. It was afterwards revealed to Philip in a vision, that he should quit these lands and cities, and go to the bishop of Asia, that he might have compassion on him, and converse with him. So he went to Asia, and dwelt in the city Hierapolis. There he brought into contempt and subverted the faith of the Ebionites, who said that " Christ was not born of a virgin" ; but Philip held them up to scorn, and chased away their creed. Philip had two excellent daughters, through whose means God brought innumerable multitudes of other virgins to the faith.

On the twelfth day before his passion, Philip summoned to him the priests, and deacons, and bishops of the neighbouring cities, and said to them :—" My life has but twelve days left. Remember ye the teaching of the Lord, and pray to Him fervently. Fight bravely against your vices and sins. Contemn and despise the old enemy, the devil, with his temptations. Vanquish and crucify your carnal wills by fasting, by prayer and abstinence, by almsgiving of food and clothing to God's poor and needy. God will fulfil His promises to us if we do all these things. He will give us peace and happiness in the present world, and the kingdom of heaven for our souls after death. God will multiply his marvels in the churches of the world, for these are the prophecies and promises of the Lord to us, if we perform these things according to our ability." Then arose the unbelieving crowds and the Jewish priests against Philip, and ordered his tongue to be cut out. This was done; but none the less did he go on teaching the people. They cut it out again, but that did him no hurt. Seven times was this done, yet he stopped not his teaching all that time. So they ordered him to be stoned; and he was struck over the face with fists and leaden staves and stones, but no kind of torture took effect on him. Then they ordered him to be crucified, as they could inflict no other death on him. So a certain wicked, merciless man among them came and put a venomous halter around the apostle's neck; and finally they crucified him, after many tortures and insults and smitings, in the track of his Master, Jesus. Then was seen a great glory, with a concourse of angels round the cross, when Philip gave up the ghost; and the angels placed the soul of the apostle in the mansions of heaven's kingdom, after the victory of martyrdom he had won. Eighty-six years was his age when he departed to the Lord; and they buried his body in the village of Bethsaida. Hierapolis was the name of the city in which he was crucified.

His daughters, the two holy virgins, were buried long after— one at his right hand, the other at his left. There, whoever prays earnestly to the apostle and his daughters, receives his request; and though great is their honour now, it will be yet greater in the day of judgment, when they shall shine as the sun in heaven before the face of the Creator, &c.

PASSION OF OUR LORD.

[The story here told is incomplete, being broken up by the insertion of the canonical accounts. The first portion (2571-2976) is a translation of the so-called Gospel of Nicodemus: cf. Thilo, Cod. Ap. N. T., p. 490; after which come excerpts from the canonical Gospels, ending apparently on 3371, when the series of homilies may be said to begin, unless we regard 2977-3371 as a homily in itself. In this text there are several peculiarities of language not found in the other portion, to which reference will be made in the notes.

There is a fine copy of the Gospel of Nicodemus in the Yellow Book of Lecan, p. 812, but evidently from another translation, whose relations with our text and the original I hope to discuss elsewhere.]

In the nineteenth year of the reign of the Roman emperor, Tiberius Cæsar, high king of the whole world, and in the same year in which Teodbair, son of Herod, was ruler of the Jewish people and the children of Israel in general, i. e. in the twentieth day of the month of March in that year, there came innumerable multitudes of the Jews, to denounce and accuse Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, on many varied charges, before the man named Pilate, a judge and a justice, a man wielding authority and maintaining the law among the Jewish people on behalf of the Roman king, Tiberius Cæsar.

Now, these following were the chief leaders of the crowd who came with the above-mentioned charge, viz., Annas and Caiaphas, two high priests of the Jewish priesthood, Nicomet, Abimedathan, Gamaliel, Judas, Levi, Neptalim, Alexander, and Sirius, along with the Jewish people in general; and they spake thus to Pilate:—
“There is a mighty man in this land, deceiving the people with false doctrines, a son of Joseph the smith. His mother’s name is Mary;

and his own name is Jesus ; and he is asserting that he himself is a king and the Son of God ; nor that alone, but he neglects our sabbaths, and drives out the law of our fathers." Pilate said :— " Show in what manner he is violating the law." " It is one of the chief commandments of our law," said they, " to do no work on the sabbath ; yet on that day Jesus has healed some among the deaf, others among the lame, the blind, the bent, the lepers, some who were possessed by devils, and men of every disease in general." " It seems to me," replied Pilate, " that it were fitter to praise than to vilipend a man of such deeds." " Nay," said they ; " but he is a devilish man, and heals everyone by aid of the demon." Pilate said :— " It is not likely that it is through the unclean spirit he casts out the spirits from the places where they are wont to abide ; but it is more probable that it is through the power of God he bids the demons forsake their wonted abodes." " We pray thee, lord," said they, " of thy courtesy and by thy authority, that this man be brought before thee, and that thou shouldst examine him." Thereupon Pilate sent a cursor, a running footman, for Jesus to come and converse with him. The cursor came to the place where Jesus was, and worshipped him ; and bowing down before him he laid down before Jesus the cloak that was around him, and said :— " Sir, come to the judgment-chamber, for Pilate is seeking for thee." When the Jews saw the honour that the messenger paid to the Saviour, they shouted out and said :— " Why, O Pilate, didst thou not summon that deceiver to come before thee by the voice of a crier or a steward ? and why hast thou sent a cursor for him so respectfully ?" telling him of the honour paid to Christ by the messenger. Then Pilate called the latter, and asked of him why he had honoured Jesus, and why he had paid him respect ? The messenger replied :— " Sir, when once before thou didst send me to Jerusalem, I saw Jesus there, riding on a young ass, and the children of the Hebrews were strewing their garments under his feet ; and they had palm branches in their hands, and were kneeling down, giving honour and worship to Jesus, crying : ' Hail, Lord, Son of the living God, who art come to help us !' " Thereat the Jews shouted out against the messenger once more, and said :— " How didst thou understand their Hebrew speech, thou being a Greek ?" The messenger replied :—“ There was by me a companion, a Hebrew, who explained to me everything I asked of him in his own speech.” Then said Pilate :—“ The messenger has erred no whit in honouring Jesus, since he saw a multitude of the Jews themselves worshipping him.” “ Go,” continued he, addressing the messenger, “ and bring this man with thee to converse with us.” The messenger did as he was ordered, and, as before, summoned Jesus respectfully to come before Pilate. It was thus that Pilate was at the time, viz., with standards raised aloft on shafts in the hands of his brave soldiery before him in the courthouse. And when Jesus came into the palace, the shafts with the standards in the hands of the soldiery bent down perforce before the face of Jesus, through the miraculous power of God ; but none the less did the Jews revile the standard-bearers, declaring that ‘ it was by the good-will of the soldiers that the ensigns had been lowered.’ Pilate said :—“ You certainly do not praise the manner in which they bent down of their own accord, and worshipped Jesus.” “ It was not they that worshipped,” said the Jews, “ but the people that carried them.” So Pilate commanded that Jesus should go out of the courthouse again, and that twelve very strong soldiers should go and hold up the standards, to see if they would bow down again as they had done before. So the standard-bearers stood forth ; and as Jesus entered the second time into the palace, the standards once more bent down perforce over the hands of the soldiers, and paid adoration to Jesus. Now, when Pilate beheld this great marvel, he wanted to rise from his seat of authority, and seat therein Jesus, for he was filled with fear and great terror before Christ. In that hour came a messenger from Pilate’s wife, Procula, with a message for her husband, bidding him “ judge righteous judgment on that holy man who is before thee, for many are the troubles and afflictions that have been wrought on me during the past night through him.” It was the demon that interposed to put a stop to the passion ; for he knew what would be the issue, viz., the rising of Christ from the dead and his own defeat, and the harrowing of hell for Adam with his faithful children. Then answered the Jews, and said to Pilate :—“ Said we not to thee that that man is a devilish man ? and now his evil deeds are plainly manifest in him, seeing that he has sent the devil to perturb thy wife." So Pilate called Jesus to him, and said :—" Hearest thou the heavy charges these folk lay against thee ? and why givest thou no reply thereto ?" Jesus gave answer, and said calmly :—" If the power of speaking had not been given them, they would not speak ; but from the day that God gave them the power of wagging their tongues, they know how to speak good and evil : let them see how that will turn out in the end." To this the elders of the priests and of the Jews in general replied, saying :—" We are aware and know, in the first place, that thou wert born in fornication, for thy father and thy mother were not married. Next, we know besides, that thou wast born in Bethlehem, and that dire woe came upon the land through thy being born therein, viz., the massacre of the infants by Herod in search of thee, from the child of the age of two years to the child of but one night. And a third thing further we know, that thy parents fled with thee into the country of Egypt, because they did not dare remain in their own country owing to thee." Thereupon spake a body of the Jews who did not take part in the accusation against Jesus :—" We do not say that he was born in fornication, for we know that Mary and Joseph were married." Then Pilate said to the Jewish accusers of Christ :—" It seems to me that these stories about that man are not true, for here is a body of your own race contradicting you, and asserting that Jesus is the son of a married pair." But Annas and Caiaphas, with the other informers, said to Pilate :—" It is we that are on the side of truth, while those who have come against us are disciples of Jesus, and strangers in our land ; and it is not lawful to take them in evidence against us." Pilate enquired :—" Who are these folk that are coming to the aid of Jesus ?" " Their mothers were Jewish women, but they are pagan men, though they say themselves that they are Jews." These now are the names of the twelve men who certified that Jesus was the son of a wedded wife, viz., Lazar, Astair, Antonius, Jacob, Tetos, Samuel, Isaac, Phineas, Crispus, Agrippa, Ames, and Judas. And they replied :—" We are no strangers, but our native stock is of the Jews ; and it is truth we speak, for we were present at the marriage of Mary and Joseph." Then said Pilate to the above-mentioned twelve men :—" I beg of you to make oath in the presence of Caesar that Jesus is the child of a wedded wife." To this they replied:—"We have a law, forbidding us to make oath in any court in the world; but let the other parties make oath that what we say is false, and we are ready to meet our death thereafter." So the accusers said:—"We believe the statement of these twelve men, that Christ was born in wedlock; but all the same, he is a devilish man, for he gives himself out to be the Son of God, and a king, and we do not believe in him." Then Pilate ordered all the Jewish folk to be put out of the palace, save Jesus only and the twelve men who had given evidence in his favour; and he asked 'why the Jews were seeking the death of Christ?' They said, that 'it was through envy and malevolence, owing to the number of miracles he wrought among the people.' "It seems to me," said Pilate, "that it is for his good deeds they would fain he should be put to death:" adding, as he went out in anger from the palace:—"I take the sun as my witness, that I find no earthly cause of death, nor blame, nor sin, in this holy man." The Jews answered and said:—"Were it not that he is a bad man we would not have delivered him up to thee;" to which Pilate, in a rage and fury, replied:—"Take ye him with you, and do judgment on him according to your own law!" One of the Jews said:—"We dare not put to death any man, unless thou give judgment on him, that he is worthy of death." So Pilate came again into the palace, and called Jesus to him, and said:—"Art thou the king of the Hebrews?" Jesus in reply asked:—"Is it of thyself thou sayest that, or has some other man told thee?" Pilate made answer:—"Seest thou that I am not a Jew? thy own Jewish race have delivered thee into my hands: what hast thou done to them?" "My real kingdom is not in this world," said Jesus: "were it so, my people would make war on my behalf, and the Jews would not have given me up to thee." Then said Pilate:—"Well then, thou art a king?" "Thou sayest so, anyhow," said Jesus; "and what thou sayest is true, for I was born for that, and for that I came into the world; and every one who is on the side of truth heareth me." Pilate rejoined:—"The law saith that there is no truth on earth." "That is not so," said Jesus; "truth will exist on earth so long as I am in it." Then Jesus left the palace, and went out; and Pilate said to the Jews, that 'he found no crime nor sin done by Jesus, and that it was not lawful to inflict evil on him.' One of the Jews replied :—

“ Jesus hath done evil for which he deserves to meet death, for he said that he would pull down the temple of God, and rebuild it in three days.” To Pilate's enquiry, ‘ what was the temple of which Jesus spake thus?’ they gave answer :—“ The temple founded by Solomon, son of David, a temple which was forty-seven years a-building ; and Jesus said that he would take only three days to build it.” Not of the temple of Solomon was Christ speaking, but of the temple of his own body, when he said, “ destroy this temple of my body, and I will rebuild it in the space of three days.” So then Pilate spake again :—
“ I take heaven and earth as my witnesses, that I am guiltless of the blood of this holy man.” Said one of the Jews :—“ Let his blood and his vengeance fall on us and on our children after us!” and they all accepted that curse. Then Pilate called the elders, and priests, and deacons, and seniors of the Jews, and said to them :—“ In this man, whom ye are accusing to me, I find no fault nor crime, for which it were right that he should meet death or destruction.” Then said the elders of the priests further to Pilate :—“ We swear by Cæsar, that every one who acteth a lie is worthy of death. He hath acted a lie against his lord, in saying that he is the Son of God, and a king.” Pilate then ordered the Jews to go out of the palace ; and summoning Christ to him, he said :—“ What shall I do with thee ?” Jesus answered and said :—“ Moses, son of Amra, with David, son of Jesse, and the prophets in general, prophesied my passion and my resurrection, from the beginning of the world and time.” Then the Jews cried out against Jesus, and said that that ‘ was false, and that they would prove it against him.’ “ If what he has said be false,” said Pilate, “ take him with you, and give judgment upon him according to your own law.” “ This is what the law directs,” said Judas : “ ‘ if a man sin against his neighbour, twenty talents less one are due from him to his neighbour ; but if he sin against God, he ought to be stoned forthwith.’ ” Pilate looked round on the Jewish people, and saw a body of the people in heavy sorrow for Christ's being in captivity before him ; then said he :—“ Not all the people are denouncing Jesus, nor seeking his destruction.” The Jews then made reply, one of them saying :—“ It is for this that we have come, that he may find death, and that his name may be blotted out of the people." Pilate asked:—"What is the cause for which he deserves to die?" "He says that he is the Son of God," they rejoined; "and therefore it is right for him to be slain without delay." Thereupon up rose a famous Jew, Nicomet by name, who came before Pilate, and said:—"Hearken to me, my lord Pilate, till I speak with thee a while!" "Speak on," said Pilate. "This is what I say," continued Nicomet to the noble renowned men, and to all the rest of the Jewish people; "what is the cause for which they are seeking the destruction of Jesus? for there never came, nor ever will come, to the Jewish people one who did or will do the mighty signs and the marvels that Jesus hath done. Therefore I give this sincere advice to the aforesaid people, viz., to let Jesus go free from his bonds: if he be from God, his deeds will last for ever, and if he be from the devil, they will melt away as melts every other false thing." The Jews, in reply, said fiercely and angrily to Nicomet:—"It seems to us that thou art his disciple, and art saying somewhat on his behalf." "Pilate, whom Cæsar hath ordained in his own place as a judge over you, is no disciple of Jesus," said Nicomet, "yet Pilate is saying somewhat on his behalf." Then the Jews, in their rage, bared their gums and gnashed with their teeth against Nicomet for that, saying:—"May his truth and his power be of service to thee and to thy soul in the next world!" To which he replied, saying:—"May it be true as ye have said!" Then another celebrated Jew leaped up on high, and begged Pilate to hear him. "It shall be done," said Pilate. "I was once," said he, "a whole year on one bed, and could not rise; and I ordered my servants to carry me to Jesus; and when he saw me, his mercy came upon me, so that he bade me 'arise and walk.' I arose without delay at the word of Jesus, and have been freed from ill-health from that day till now." The Jews said:—"On what day did he heal thee?" He replied saying that 'it was on the Sabbath.' "Was not this what we said to thee, lord Pilate, that it is on the Sabbath he heals all the healing that he does?" Then arose another Jew, and said:—"I was born blind: I heard Jesus, and did not see him, but I prayed him of his mercy to come to me; so he put his fingers on my eyes, and I at once saw somewhat." Another man rose and said:—"I was humpbacked from my birth, and Jesus healed me with a single word." Another man rose and said :—"I was a leper, and he healed me with a word." Next arose a Jewish woman and said :—"I was twelve years ill, with a flux of blood, till I touched a hem of his garment, and applied it to myself, and the flux was stayed at once." But the Jews said :—"It is forbidden in our law to take a woman as a witness." Thereupon a great crowd of the Jews, men and women, cried out, saying that 'there had never come a prophet like Jesus, and that all the demonry was subject to Him.' Pilate said to the Jews :—"Why are not the demons subject to your teachers, as they are to Jesus?" "We know not," they said. Then a number of Jews said that 'Jesus had resuscitated Lazarus, after he had been four days in his grave.' So Pilate trembled from head to foot, and said :—"O wretched people, what profit is there to you, in shedding the blood of an innocent man in whom is no sin?" Then he summoned to him Nicomet, the twelfth man who had been on the side of Jesus, and asked him :—"What shall I do? for we are in a position needing great deliberation with respect to the people." Nicomet replied :—"We know that, sir; and they will find out how vengeance will be taken on them for that." And Pilate summoned the people and said :—"You know that it is an established custom of yours, at every high feast to release unto you according to law, without ransom or penalty, an imprisoned man condemned to death; there are now two in my hands, Barabbas, a murderer, and Jesus, without blame or sin; take your choice, which of them it is your will to have released from my hands." The Jews cried out, and said :—"Set Barabbas free for us, and let Jesus be crucified!" adding :—"If thou let Jesus out, thou art not Cæsar's friend, for none who calls himself a king is a friend to Cæsar; and Jesus says that he is the Son of God, and that he is a king; therefore it is not right to let him out, as thou art a vassal of Cæsar's." Then a fit of passion seized Pilate, and he said to them :—"True it is that your race is envious, malicious, inconstant towards him who aids you." They replied, saying :—"In whose case have we shown that want of constancy?" "Ye showed it towards your own God," said Pilate, "to Him who delivered you from the dreadful Egyptian bondage, and brought you dry-foot over the Red Sea as though ye went over dry land, who fed you in the desert with heavenly manna, (bread of the angels), and assuaged your thirst with the water that He drew from the rock, water with the taste of honey and a mixture of wine; and who gave you the Old Law to put faith in you and to lead you in every way. After all these blessings ye became traitors to your Lord, and angered Him by worshipping the golden calf made by human hands, and ye abandoned your God, so that He was within a little of slaying you all for that deed, had not Moses, the son of Amra, prayed on your behalf, that ye might not at once all die. And since ye did that thing, it is no wonder that ye tell me that my lord and king is hateful to me." Thereupon Pilate arose from his royal seat, and would have gone out, but the Jews shouted out and cried:—"Whom art thou defending? It is Cæsar who is our king, not Jesus; and it was for this that Herod slew the children in Bethel, when he heard that the Indian magi had given gifts to him as being a king." When Pilate heard their words, fear and terror seized him, and he spake with a loud voice in the hearing of all the people:—"Why, then, it is this Jesus that Herod was seeking!" and they said that it was he. Then Pilate took water and washed his hands in the presence of the people, and said:—"I am innocent of the blood of this righteous man." The Jews replied:—"Let his blood and the vengeance for him be on us and on our children after us!" Then Pilate ordered Jesus to be brought before him, and gave judgment on Him in these words:—"Jesus," said he, "thine own race hath accused thee before me, and hath sworn to me that thou hast said thou art a king and the Son of God; therefore I deliver thee, according to the judgment of the Law, into the hands of that multitude, to first scourge thee, and then to smite thee and bruise thee, and at last to crucify thee." Thereupon Jesus was dragged out of the palace, and along with Him two thieves, whose names were Dismus and Jesmus. And when they came to the place of execution, Jesus was deprived of His garment, a purple tunic that Mary made for Him, and it is not known of what stuff [?] it was; and a crown of thorns was put on His head. And the two thieves were crucified, one on each side of Him—Dismus on His right, Jesmus on His left. Then said Jesus:—"O Heavenly Father, spare and forgive these wretched people for what they are doing, for they know not what they do!" Then the Jews divided among them His garments by casting lots. To Pilate fell the tunic, which Mary had made for Christ—purple the colour of that tunic—'purple' its name; there was no wasting away, and no sewing of needle on that tunic; marvellous and wonderful it was, and it is still in existence.

But the Jewish people around the cross mocked at Jesus, saying:—"If thou art the Son of God, save thyself now!" The leaders and judges of the people said among themselves:—"He saved other folk, but he cannot save himself; and if he is the Son of God, let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe on him." Then Jesus said as He was on the cross:—"I thirst"; and the Jews filled a vessel with vinegar of the bitterness of gall, and gave it to Him on the top of a rod. In the Scripture it is said that Jesus asked for this drink on the cross that He might be tortured in all his members, for there was not a limb of Him that had not been separately tortured, save His tongue alone, so that it, too, might be tormented by the vinegar. Then rose up a certain soldier named Longinus, and thrust his soldier's lance into Jesus' side, so that there rushed out at once two streams from His side—a stream of blood and a stream of water.

Thereafter Pilate directed a title to be written over Jesus' head on the cross, in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin letters, stating the cause for which He was crucified; and this is what was understood therefrom, 'Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews.' The Jews cried out after that, and said:—"Why hast thou written that he is the King of the Jews?" Pilate answered, saying:—"What I have written, I have written."

Thereon the one malefactor, who was along with Jesus, spake and said:—"If thou art the Son of God, save us and save thyself from the great danger in which we are." The other malefactor replied:—"Thou hast no fear of God, but art like the folk who are torturing Christ, for you are in the same error; for we deserve our punishment, to be here (crucified) alongside of Jesus, for we have done much evil; but Jesus hath done no evil, and is crucified, though without sin. After that he spake to Jesus, and said:—

“ Lord, remember me when Thou shalt come to Thy kingdom ! ”

Jesus replied :—“ In truth, I say to thee, that thou shalt be to-day along with me in Paradise.”

It was now the sixth hour of the day, and great darkness came over the land till the ninth hour ; and an eclipse came over the sun ; and the dome of the temple rent in two pieces from top to bottom ; and a great earthquake befell on the earth and in the land. Then Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying :—“ O Lord, I commend my spirit into Thy hands ” ; and He bowed His head, and gave up the ghost. A mighty man of the Jews, named Centurio, saw these great miracles ; and he glorified God, and said that the man who was crucified and suffered was a righteous man. The people who were around him smote their breasts ; and great fear and terror seized them. When, therefore, Pilate heard these things, a kind of great sorrow seized him ; and he called to him the Jews, and said :—“ Do ye give heed now to these miracles that are done on you ? ” The Jews said :—“ They are not miracles at all, but it is an eclipse simply that has come over the sun, according to what is usual.”

There were there people who knew Jesus, and the women who had followed Him from Galilee, around the cross, in sad sorrow as they beheld each thing that was done to Him ; and there came a righteous man of good testimony, honest and faithful, called Joseph, from the city named Arimathæa : he was a man who had not assented to the impiety and sin of the Jews. And he begged of Pilate the body of Jesus for burial, and Pilate granted to him to take the body down from the cross ; and he wrapped it in a white shining linen cloth, and buried it in a new tomb, that had been made for Joseph himself, a place where none had ever before been buried.

Now when the Jews heard of Joseph begging the body of Jesus and of His burial, they sent vast numbers to seek Joseph, and to seek the twelve men who had borne the testimony that Jesus was not a child of fornication : as also to seek Nicomet and the other folk who had narrated the miracles and wonders of Jesus, and His good deeds besides. All the rest fled and got themselves out of the way, save only Nicomet ; for he was a noble and powerful man among the Jews, and he said to them :—“ Why have ye come into the temple to offer up prayer, you who have perpetrated the greatest crime ever done on earth, in torturing and crucifying Christ?" "Why did you come either?" they retorted; "you who made common cause with Christ. May it be with him that you have your union yonder in the future life!" "Amen, amen, as ye have said!" said Nicomet.

There was also another man of the Jewish people, named Joseph, who was sought after by them in the same way; but he did not hide himself; and he said to the Jews:—"Ye are angry with me for begging of Pilate the body of Jesus, and burying it, and placing stones at the door of the grave. Evil is the thing ye have done, in crucifying the righteous, sinless man; and not alone did ye crucify Him, but ye scourged and mocked Him, and pierced His side with a lance." On hearing all this, the Jews seized Joseph, and ordered him to be guarded in a securely-locked prison till the sabbath should pass over them; and they said:—"We know that thou deservest no burial after thy being put to death, for thou hast given thy own burial-place to Christ; so we will just give thy body to the fowls of heaven and to the beasts of the earth to eat." "That speech," said Joseph, "is like the speech of haughty Goliath before David the day they met, when his pride was lowered; and your pride shall be lowered like that, for God hath said, by the mouth of the king-prophet, David, son of Jesse: 'Leave vengeance unto me, and I will perform it.' Pilate washed his hands in your presence," said he, "and took the sun to witness that he himself was innocent of the blood of the just man whom ye slew; and ye replied, saying, 'his blood be on us and on our sons after us'; and I fear," said he, "lest the anger of God be lit up against you, and lest he utterly scatter you, in the dread misdeed ye have perpetrated." On hearing these accusations, the Jews were seized with anger and fury; and they bound Joseph, and flung him into a closed chamber where he had no light at all; and they put iron locks on the door of the chamber, and also placed two guards at the door, viz., Annas and Caiaphas. Then they took counsel with the priests and deacons of the people, to come together into one place after the sabbath, in order that they might know what manner of death they should inflict on Joseph. So after the sabbath they assembled,—elders, and priests, and leaders of the people, and bade Annas and Caiaphas bring Joseph before them to punish him. But when they opened the door of the chamber, they found not Joseph therein. That was a great marvel to the people, viz., to find the door of the chamber shut, but without Joseph inside. And while they were in that state of agitation, they saw approaching them a crowd of the soldiers that guarded the burial-place of Jesus. These latter said:—"Give ear to us awhile, till we tell you somewhat of news. We were guarding the burial-place of Jesus, when there came a great earthquake; and we saw an angel of God raising the stones that were on the door of the grave: his splendour as the sun and his garment shining like snow. We were stricken with terror, without strength or sap, as if we had been dead; and we heard the angel conversing with the women who were on the other side of the tomb, and saying to them: 'Let not fear seize you, for I know that ye are seeking the crucified Jesus. He is not here; but go ye with speed to Galilee, and tell His apostles, especially Peter, that Jesus is risen from death; and be ye first, as women, to announce life to the world, for it was through a woman the world died, in the death of sin and pain, from Adam until now.'" The soldiers guarding the grave told these tidings of the angel in the presence of all. After that the Jews were silent, and knew not what counsel they should next take.

The Second Account of the PASSION OF OUR LORD, according to Matthew.

"When Jesus, with His disciples, had ended giving thanks, they went to Mount Olivet." Matthew, the son of Alpheus, the Hebrew sage, the twelfth apostle whom Jesus chose for apostleship, the first evangelist who wrote the Lord's Gospel, is he who narrated the dread deed done by unbelieving Jews on the anniversary of this day, in crucifying and torturing, through envy and jealousy, the sinless Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, Saviour of heaven and earth and of all the seed of Adam; and it is for the memory of that great deed throughout the churches of the Christians till the end of the world that Matthew wrote this holy lesson, saying :—" When He had ended the thanksgiving." As to the unity and connexion of this lesson with the context, it is found in continuation of the passage where Matthew says before :—" When they were on Olivet, Jesus took bread and blessed it," &c. [Matth. xxvi. 26-29], (2987-2996) ; so that it is in the track of these words Matthew said, ' When He had ended the praise (or the thanksgiving).' That is what the prophet had foretold long before in these words :—" The spiritual poor, viz., the apostles and the disciples, shall eat of the body and blood of the Lord, and they shall be satisfied, and shall sing the praise and wonder of the Lord thereafter." Then Jesus made this prophecy to His disciples, saying :—" Ye shall all deny me this night, for this is what the prophet David, son of Jesse, speaking in the person of the Heavenly Father, wrote : ' I will smite their shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered,' that is, I will permit Christ to be crucified, and the dispersion of the apostles shall be made in every direction." " After I have arisen from death, I will go before you to Galilee"; as if Jesus had said to His apostles : " I will appoint a meeting with you there immediately." Peter answered and said to Jesus :—" Though all should deny, I will not deny, nor will I leave Thee." ' Confidence in the absence of danger ' was this assertion of Peter, for he did not fulfil it afterwards. " I tell thee truly," said Jesus, " that thou wilt deny me to-night thrice before the cock crows." Peter said to Jesus :—" As it is for our sake Thou art going to the cross and passion, sooner will I die than deny Thee." The same said all the disciples. Then Jesus, with His apostles, came to the place called Gethsemane : a place at the foot of Mount Olivet, and it was a garden there in particular. John says that there was a garden there, and that it was in it Jesus was seized. Now the traitor Judas knew that Jesus often used to go with His apostles to that garden. Fitting it was, that Jesus should be laid hold of in a garden, for it was just in a garden, viz., in paradise, that Adam was seized; and it was for his sake, with his descendants, that the humanity of Christ was brought to cross and passion. Jesus said to His apostles :—" Stay here awhile, till I go apart, and offer up prayer"; and He led apart with Him the two sons of Zebedee, James the Great, and John the Baptist, and fell into great sorrow in their presence. The sorrow Jesus felt there, was not through fear for Himself, for it was with this one view that He came—to be crucified; but He sorrowed for four things: for His betrayal by the ill-fated Judas, for the scattering of the apostles, for God's disinheritation of the Jewish people, and for the subversion of Jerusalem by the Roman people afterwards in revenge for His passion. Then said Jesus to His apostles:—"My soul is sorrowful unto death; wait here, and watch with me." It was not in truth the sleep of the body that Jesus disallowed to His followers at that moment, for the time of sleep had not come when Jesus spoke these words; but what He cautioned them against was spending time in sleep, and unsteadiness of mind, lest they should die in the frailty of sin. When Jesus had gone a little space apart from them, He bowed His face to the ground, and prayed, saying:—"Heavenly Father, if it be possible, remove away from me this cup"—the cup of death. (Luke further mentions the distance that Jesus went apart from the apostles, 'as far as goes a stone from a sling.' Jesus knelt down and prayed in that spot, on behalf of the human race; and such was the vastness of His travail, that a stream of blood was not swifter than the effusion of sweat that came out of His body. The same Luke says, too, that angels came from heaven at that moment, to strengthen Him and to encourage Him for the passion.) "Nevertheless, it shall not be my will concerning the passion, according to my corporeity and my humanity," said Jesus, "but be it Thy will, heavenly Father!" for they have the same will in humanity and deity. Then Jesus came to His apostles, and found them asleep; that was owing to the intensity of their sorrow, for heavy sleep is wont to follow great sorrow. And He said to Peter:—"It is plain that ye cannot watch even one hour with me; watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation, and lest the devil overcome you." Why Jesus said these words to Peter in particular was because he had boasted, 'though everybody deny, I will not deny.' Bold, no doubt, is the soul, the body is weak and fearful; for he knew not that he would not fulfil his promise to God not to deny Him. Then Jesus went again the second time to pray, and said:—"Heavenly Father, if it be possible; that this cup of the passion pass without my drinking it, Thy will be done, for my soul is sorrowful towards the hour of death." Jesus came again to His apostles, and found them asleep, for their eyes were heavy with sleep; there was great torpor over their eyes, for their renunciation of their Lord was nigh. Again He left His apostles, and offered up prayer the third time, saying the same thing:—"Heavenly Father, if this cup of the passion may not be avoided, Thy will be done!" This is what we are taught by the threefold prayer put up by Jesus, that we should offer repeated prayer to God, in seeking pardon for the sins we have committed and shall commit. Then Jesus came to His apostles and said:—"Sleep now and rest; behold, the hour has drawn nigh; the Son of Man shall be given up into the hands of sinners for His passion." Afterwards Jesus said to them:—"Arise, and let us go openly and leisurely into the neighbourhood of the person who will deliver me up to cross and passion." It was for this reason that Jesus went to meet the people who were to seize Him, that they might not notice on Him signs of grief or lamentation, but that there should be an appearance of joyfulness on Him. And while Jesus was speaking these words, there came one of the twelve apostles, Judas by name: one in truth by number, but not by merit; one in form and appearance, but not one in reality nor in goodness; the one worst man born, or who will be born, of the race of Adam far and wide. In this fashion came Judas, and with him a great multitude, with swords and staves and iron clubs, from the chief of the priests and from the elders of the people, to lay hold on Jesus.

Now the man who betrayed Him, Judas, had given them a sign about Jesus; he said, that owing to unacquaintance with Jesus on the part of those who had come to seize Him he would give a sign to them about Him; or, as Judas had heard of the transfiguration on Mount Tabor (where many thousands of angels came from heaven to meet Jesus, and how He had escaped from the hands of His apostles and disciples up to heaven, so that heaven and earth were full of the ascension and of the transfiguration, which took place there at the going up of Jesus into heaven, whence is 'the transfiguration on Mount Tabor'), thus, he was afraid of Jesus escaping by transfiguration of the like kind from the hands of His captors. Or else, this is why he gave them a sign, because there was among His followers a man who resembled Jesus, viz. the apostle

Thomas—dark hair and a long red beard being on both of them—so that it should not be Thomas who was caught, but Jesus to a certainty. So Judas drew nigh to Jesus, and said to Him:—"God be with Thee, Master!" and gave Him a kiss after that. Jesus replied:—"Friend, what thou hast come to do, do it!" For up till that day they were friends; or, "Thou art a friend in face and form, but not in reality; from henceforward thou wilt be no friend." Then they came near Jesus and laid hands on Him, and seized Him. When Jesus knew the thing that was coming upon Him, He went boldly up to them, and said, "Whom are ye seeking?" The Jews replied:—"We want Jesus." He said to them: "I am that person." Thereupon they went backwards, and fell down to the ground. And He asked them again, "Whom are ye seeking?" They said, "We want Jesus." Jesus answered and said: "I am He; see for yourselves, if it is I whom ye are seeking, and let my people go without seizing any one of them." This was done, as Jesus said, and none of His followers was laid hold of. Thereon one of the latter, Peter by name, unsheathed his sword, and struck a blow on a servant among the attendants of the chief of the Jewish priests, and smote off the lobe of his ear: Malchus was the name of the servant, as John narrates. Luke says that it was the lobe of the right ear that he cut off; and the same Luke tells how Jesus took the bit in His hand, and fitted it to the ear, so that it became quite whole at once, in token of forgiveness. Then Jesus said to Peter: "Put up thy sword into its sheath, for everyone who relies on the sword shall die by the sword, and the sword becomes the cause of their death. Thinkest thou, Peter, if it were my wish to pray to the Heavenly Father, that He would not give me more than twelve legions of angels to help me? but how shall the Holy Scriptures be fulfilled, and how shall they be believed, unless I go to the cross and passion, as prophets have prophesied unto us?" Then He spake:—"Ye are come to seize me with swords and staves; did I not stay with you every day in the temple teaching, and ye did not seize me?" It was for this Jesus spake these words, that it might be clear to His captors that they did not take Him by violence, but of His own free will. And this thing took place that the Scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled, of Christ being crucified.

Thereupon all the apostles abandoned the Saviour, Jesus Christ, Son of the living God. And the folk who had captured Jesus took Him with them to Caiaphas, the high-priest of the Jews, where the sages and seniors of the people were all assembled in one place. But Peter accompanied Jesus from afar, and came humbly into the hall of the high-priest; and when he had entered, he sat with the executors of the passion, to see what decree should be made upon Jesus, i. e., to know whether the priest would decree the murder of Jesus and His death, or whether it would be His liberation without harm. John states that there was another disciple there with Peter, and that it was he brought Peter into the hall, through his acquaintance with the priest and with the servants; that disciple being John himself, as the commentators relate. The high-priests and all the assembly were seeking false witness against Jesus to crucify Him; but they found no crime in Jesus, though there were many false witnesses against Him. At last came two false witnesses, and said:—"This man boasted that he would subvert the temple of God, and would rebuild it after three days." They accused Jesus of saying that of the temple of Jerusalem, though Jesus' utterance was not about it, but of the temple of His own body; for He had said:—"Destroy this temple, the temple of my body, and I will raise it up after three days;" hence it is plain that they were false witnesses, since they had distorted the statement in order to attach a charge on Jesus. Thereupon the high-priest Caiaphas arose, and said to Jesus:—"Do you give no answer to these statements?" adding:—"I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou art Christ, the Son of the living God?" Jesus replied:—"Thou sayest, indeed, that I am"—as if admitting, 'I do not deny that from thy mouth'—"and ye shall hereafter see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of God the Father Almighty in heaven, and coming in the clouds of heaven to judge the quick and the dead." Then the high-priest rent his clothes—a sign of sorrow they used, when they heard anything they deemed dreadful—and said:—"This man hath blasphemed, and what need is there for us to be seeking other false witness against him further? Clearly, ye have heard the blasphemy now; what think ye of it?" This was the answer the Jews gave the priest :—" He is guilty of death who hath uttered the blasphemy." Unrighteous the judgment there passed on the King of righteousness! Then another group of them spat on His face, and struck Him on the face with the palms of their hands, saying :—" Prophecy to us, O Christ, who is it that hath buffeted thee?"

At that time Peter was seated outside in the hall, and there came to them a maid-servant of the folk of the place, and said to him :—" Art thou not one of the followers of the man of Galilee, who is being crucified?" It was for this reason it was a woman-servant in particular who reviled Peter, though the men could have reviled him—that the women of the Jews might have a part in the crucifixion of Christ, so that the vengeance for Him might come upon the men and upon the women. Peter denied before them all, saying :—" Woman, I know not who that person is." It was for this that God allowed Peter to commit sin—to keep him from assuming pride, and that he might not rely on his own holiness, though he was chief of the apostles; that so he might learn how he ought to show mercy to those who, through frailty, might commit sin in the Church; for there is no one without sin. And when Peter went out through the door of the house, another maid saw him, and said to the people who were in that place :—" This man is one of the followers of Jesus of Nazareth." Peter again denied with an oath, saying :—" Woman, the person of whom thou speakest is not known to me." They had not gone far from that, when Peter fell in with the group who stood there, and they said :—" We have no doubt that thou art one of the followers of Jesus; for it is plain from thy speech." It was not because Peter had a different language from that of the Jews that this was said to him, but there was a peculiarity of dialect in the speech of the Galileans compared with the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and this had been observed in the speech of Peter. Thereat Peter took to cursing and swearing that Jesus was not known to him at all. Immediately on this the cock crew; then Peter called to mind what Jesus had said to him :—" This night thou wilt deny me thrice, before the cock crow the second time." Peter went outside out of the house, and wept bitterly. When the cock had crowed twice, and Peter had reached the denial in that fashion, the Saviour looked at him, and it was that look which brought him to earnest repentance: tears of blood shed Peter in that repentance, as the writers relate. Clement, his pupil, indeed, in his history, tells how Peter wept every night at that hour, as long as he remained in life.

Those are the incidents of the eve. On the morning of the next day, (i. e., to-day, as commemorated), the high-priests and elders of the Jewish people came into consultation against Jesus with a view to crucify Him, and they brought Him in chains, and gave Him up to Pontius Pilate, the viceroy. Now, when Judas saw the suffering that was inflicted on Jesus, a kind of repentance seized him; so he brought with him the thirty pieces of silver he had got for the betrayal of Jesus, and gave to the high-priests and elders of the people the thirty pieces of silver, i. e., three ounces in gold: heavy the ill-luck of the purchase, since its fourth part was wanting of the fourth ounce. [?] Those thirty pieces of silver the Jews gave for the betrayal of Christ to unhappy Judas—i. e., eight pence halfpenny, according to the common reckoning, was the worth of each piece, according to what is written among the learned of the Hebrews. “Great, in truth, is the crime I have committed,” said Judas, “in shedding the blood of the righteous man who is without crime.” The Jews replied:—“Well, what cause of complaint hast thou against us? We made a fair bargain with thee: if thou hadst not accepted it, neither had we!” So when Judas had flung down the money in the temple, he went away from them at once, and put a noose round his neck, so that he died of it, as befitted his deserts. It was not immediately on the decease of Jesus that Judas killed himself; but on the day of the Lord’s resurrection in every place. Fitting was it for the enemy of the people of heaven and earth to die between heaven and earth. It was for this reason Judas hanged himself, in order that his soul might go swiftly to hell; for he thought it likely that his soul would be brought out of hell with the Captivity; but Jesus did not allow the soul of Judas to go to hell till he had brought the Captivity from thence, so that the soul of Judas was the first soul on which hell closed after that.

When the priests had received the money, they said:—“It is not right for us to put this money into the common treasury of the elders, for it is the price of blood and flesh.” That is the habit of the Jews: they perceive the little sins they commit, but they do not perceive the great sins: thus they held it as a sin for them to put the money, the price of blood, into the treasury of the elders: while they did not further see that it was a crime in them to torture and crucify Christ. So, after taking counsel, they bought with that money a potter's field, to bury therein pilgrims and strangers, and wealthy men of low birth; so that they left behind them a lasting mark of their knowledge and good-faith, though it was not for that they did it. Thereby was fulfilled the word spoken by the prophet Zacharias, viz., "(the people) took the thirty pieces of silver, as the price of the captive whom the children of Israel bought of Judas," and they gave that money for the potter's ground, Achel-demach: hence the name of the land still, Aceldama, i. e., 'field of blood'—land that was bought for the price of the blood of Christ: "and they gave the money for the potter's field," &c.

The Third Account.

As the Lord showed to me, says the evangelist:—Jesus stood in the presence of the viceroy, who asked him:—"Art thou the King of the Jews?" Jesus replied:—"Thou indeed sayest that I am," as if it were, "I do not refute thee in the matter." And however much He was reviled and reproached by the high-priests, He gave them no reply. Then said Pilate to Jesus:—"Hearest thou not the allegations that are made against thee by these people?" but Jesus made no reply to the viceroy, though the latter wondered at His not replying.

The viceroy was wont at the feast of the Passover to release a prisoner to them, i. e., to the children of Israel; and (it is likely) that this was the cause of his releasing a prisoner to them, viz., as it was at the Passover the children of Israel were freed from the Egyptian bondage; or this was the cause, because he was a foreign ruler who had the power, (and wanted) the Jewish people to be obedient to him. Now there was in captivity with the viceroy at the time a captive well known of them, named Barabbas, the son of a Jewish man of repute; and the cause of his being in captivity was his having murdered a man of the people of Jerusalem. When the Jews were assembled together, Pilate said to them:—"Which of them, of this couple, would you rather that we should set free? Is it Barabbas the homicide, or the blameless Jesus?" for he knew that it was for no other cause they had delivered up Christ to cross and passion, but for envy and jealousy. When, then, Pilate sat down before the judgment-seat, his wife sent a messenger to him—Procula was her name, as Nicodemus tells—and said through the messenger:—"Take no part in doing harm to this just person, for I have suffered to-day very much trouble in a dream because of him." It was the demon that interfered to prevent the passion, though he was its author and instigator before; for it was through the passion of Christ that weakness and infirmity came to him. The high-priests and elders of the people urged the release of Barabbas and the crucifixion of Jesus. The viceroy answered and said to them:—"Which of the twain would be more welcome in being released to you?" This was what they all said:—"Release Barabbas!" Said Pilate:—"What shall I do to Jesus, named Christ?" "Crucify him!" "Why so? what evil hath Jesus done to you?" But they gave no heed to Pilate's word, but raised a great shout and uproar against him, crying "Crucify him, crucify him!" When, therefore, Pilate saw that it was not possible for him to save Jesus, but that an uproar and murmuring were made against him, water was brought him, and he washed his hands in the presence of the people, saying: "I am innocent of the blood of this holy man: see that no evil consequences befall you yourselves in his crucifixion!" The people all replied, saying:—"His blood and his vengeance be upon us and upon our descendants after us!" Evil, in truth, was the result the Jews brought upon themselves, for their descendants after them to pay for the blood of Christ! Then Barabbas was released, and Jesus given up to them, after scourging, to be crucified. The commentators, indeed, say that the marks of Christ's blood when He was scourged yet remain on the stones that were nearest to Him at the time in the royal palace. The reason why Jesus was scourged was, that it was a custom with the Romans to scourge beforehand the man whom they had decreed to be crucified. Thereupon the soldiers of the viceroy carried off the Saviour out of the apartment, out of the royal guard-room, where were gathered to Him all the hosts of the Jews. Then they stripped His garment from Him and left Him naked; and they put a purple robe round Him in mockery, and they fitted a crown of sharp-pointed thorns round His head as a royal diadem, and bowed to Him, mocking Him, and saying: "God be with thee, O King of the Jews!" Then they spat on Him, and they plucked the rod out of His hand, and with it struck Him on the head afterwards; and when they had finished their mockery, as was their wont, they pulled from Him the purple robe, and put His own clothes on Him, and led Him away to crucify Him. As they were going along, after scourging Him, they met a man of Cyrene, Simon by name, and they put on that man the cross of Jesus to carry. Free was the captive, noble the servant, viz., Jesus; He was innocent, righteous, pure, humble, patient, merciful, forgiving. Woe to the witnesses, for that they testified untruth against the King of Truth; woe to the city wherein this act was perpetrated; woe to the rulers and priests who assented to the deed; woe to the heart that conceived it; woe to the ear that heard it and complained not; woe to the eyes that saw this Man in the streets of the city with His thorny cross on His back, and bewailed Him not!

Then they came to a place called Golgotha, which means 'place of the evil deed.' Great in sooth was the misdeed perpetrated there, in crucifying the blameless Son of the King of Heaven and Earth. And they gave Him bitter wine to drink; but when He tasted it, He would not drink any more. After the soldiers had crucified Him, and driven iron nails through His palms and His feet, they cast lots for His garments, i. e., for the tunic (mantle) in particular the lot was cast, as John says, and the tunic fell to Pilate by right of lot. It was thus that Jesus was placed on the cross, viz., His back eastward towards the rising of the sun; His face westward towards the setting; His left hand southward towards the sun, and His right hand northward towards the setting. After that they sat down and kept guard; and there was placed over His head by the soldiers, in one (line of) writing, the cause for which they had crucified Him: "This is Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." And they crucified along with Him two thieves: one on His right named Dismus, and one on His left named Gestus, as Nicodemus relates. The people who passed by kept reviling Him, and shook their heads at Him in mockery of Him. Luke narrates what Jesus said on the cross:—"O heavenly Father, grant forgiveness to these people, if they repent of the dreadful sin they have committed; for they know not that evil is the thing they are doing!" Then the Jews said further to Jesus:—"Ill-fated art thou to be thus, O King of the Jews! Great the thing thou saidst, that thou wouldst overturn the temple of God, and wouldst rebuild it in three days: heal thyself if thou art the Son of God, and come down now from the cross on which thou art!" The same thing said the high-priests and leaders with the elders of the people. "Others thou didst heal, but thou canst not heal thyself. If he is the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe on him. He trusted in God, and God will save him if He choose; for he said once that he was the Son of God." This also was what the thieves who were crucified with Him did, viz., they reviled Him. Luke says it was the second thief only who blasphemed Him; this was Gestus; but Dismus believed on Jesus, and Jesus said to him:—"Thou shalt be with me to-day in Paradise in the kingdom of my Father." So that is an example for the people of swift repentance, provided they be earnest in turning to God, that He grants them forgiveness. From the sixth hour to the ninth hour, for the space of three hours, there was a great darkness over the earth; and in the ninth hour Jesus on the cross cried out with a loud voice, saying:—"Ely, Ely, lama zabatany, i. e., "O my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Another group of people who heard Him, said:—"It is Ely he is calling to deliver him." One of the soldiers immediately afterwards ran, and put vinegar in a sponge on the top of a rod, and gave it to Jesus to drink. Zefaton was the name of the soldier, as the writings tell. The multitudes in general said:—"Let him alone, that we may see whether Ely will come to save him." But one of the soldiers took a spear, and made a thrust with it into the right side of Jesus, so that blood and water came thereout. After that Jesus spake to a throng of people whom He saw walking along the road near to Him:—"O good men, saw ye ever my sickness on any man in the world before?" Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost, et dixit, 'in manus tuas, Domine, commendo spiritum meum, redemisti me, Domine Deus veritatis,' i. e., 'O heavenly Father, I commend my soul and my spirit into Thy hands.' And afterwards the veil of the temple was rent in two pieces from the upper to the lower part; and the earth was shaken, and the rocks were rent, and the graves were opened. And since even the dead elements, that have not reason or understanding, bewailed their Creator the Lord, far more is it fitting for living and reasoning beings to bewail Him.

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, to protect Matthew, the son of Alphaeus, the celebrated sage whom the demon did not subdue.

Another group of them, who were listening to Jesus when He gave up the ghost, spake in this fashion, instructing the people:—"The truth of each matter is certified to you thus, viz., if there be two or three trustworthy witnesses giving evidence; so that it was to harmonize with the number of the false witnesses that the noble witnesses came, viz., the angels of the God of heaven, to testify and give proof of the Lord's resurrection." 'The brightness of the angel shone out like lightning': it was for this that the angel appeared in the brilliant form of the lightning, to light up the night for the holy women, and further to agitate and terrify the unbelieving guards who were around the grave. These are the names of the four soldiers who were guarding the grave of Jesus: Lixus, Helixus, Membron, Acheron. 'The raiment of this angel shining like snow': for this reason the angel appeared in the bright, pleasing form of snow, that the women might the less start at the sight of them; for fear and terror are denoted by the lightning, whereas mildness and pleasantness are understood from the snow. These four things are in harmony with the angel, for the heavenly angels are ungentle to sinners, but gentle and kind to the holy and righteous. 'Heavy fear fell on the guards on seeing the angel, and an appearance of death flashed upon them.' Though great awe seized the unbelieving guards, nevertheless the angel did not comfort them, but the holy women, for their fair deserts; and indeed it is to establish this interpretation that Matthew says :—"The angel answered, and said to the women, 'let not fear nor terror be upon you'"; as if the angel had said, 'it is clear that the folk, to whom our coming on a visit to them is not a pleasure, will be affected with fear and terror at sight of us.' "But ye holy women, what causes you to be terrified at us? for I know that ye are seeking the crucified Jesus"; as if the angel had said, "I know that ye are doubtful still about the resurrection, though certain about the crucifixion." He is not here in the bodily presence,—He of whom the universe is full in the presence and power of His manhood, as the prophet certifies in the person of the Lord, where he says :—"The elements are full of Thee, saith the Lord;" nevertheless, the elements cannot comprehend nor contain Him, according to the law of corporeal things, on account of His nobility and His greatness; and that is natural, for it is He whom they bear [who supports them]. "For He hath arisen as He promised"; and note what He promised, viz., His resurrection after three days. "Come and see the place where ye [they] have laid Him." If ye believe not my words, said the angel, believe the empty grave. "Go now quickly, and tell His apostles, 'Jesus is risen from the dead'"; and make haste that ye women be the first to announce life to the world, for it was through a woman that death came into the world. "And Jesus will go before you into Galilee; there ye shall find Him as He prophesied to you." The angel did not say this on account of its being in Galilee first that the apostles would see Jesus after the resurrection, for Luke and John certify that the apostles saw Him before that often in Jerusalem; but it was said for this reason, because it was in Galilee that Jesus most fully instructed His apostle in the divine mysteries, when He said to them, as He sent them forth, "Go ye now to teach and instruct all men in the world."

It is fitting now to know that the resurrection of Christ was prefigured and prophesied long before by the sages of the Old Testament, as the Church tells every year in this Paschal festival: for it was owing to the dignity and nobility of the Lord's resurrection that all the elements prefigured and prophesied it. That resurrection of Christ from the dead was prefigured in the resurrection of our forefather Adam from his sleep, after Eve had been cut out of his side—a type of Christ, who rose from the dead after the holy Church had been cut out of His side in the sleep of the cross. It was figured in the conversion of Moses' rod into a serpent, which inflicted death on the serpents of the magicians, and then turned from a serpent back into a rod: so Christ was turned to death, and came back from death in the resurrection. It was figured in the escape of the prophet Jonas after three days from the belly of the great whale, i. e., the resurrection of Christ after three days in the bowels of earth. It was figured in the patriarchs. It was foretold, also, by the prophets. Jacob, the son of Isaac, first foretold it, when he was prophesying about his son, Judas, of whom he said:—"Judas, methinks, is like a lion's cub: who will awaken him?" For this is the nature of that whelp: it is three days dead immediately after its birth, till the male lion comes to it, and breathes around it, and shouts over it with a loud voice, and then the cub arises after that into life; just so Christ arose from the dead through the might of the heavenly Father. The prophet Job also, the man of the divine grace, foretold it, saying:—"It is my belief that my Redeemer, Jesus Christ, will be alive in the resurrection; and that I myself shall arise along with everyone in the great assembly of the day of judgment." So, too, the Author of every prophecy, Jesus Himself, foretold it, saying:—"Destroy this temple, the temple of my body, and I will awaken it after three days."

Such is the plain literal meaning of this lesson.

As to the mystical interpretation, "the evening of the Sabbath," that is spoken of here, denotes the completion and termination that overtook the Law on the coming of the Gospel; as the apostle certifies when he says, "the figures and shadows of the Old Testament have faded away now, and all things are renewed through Christ, Son of the living God." "The first day of the Sabbath" that is mentioned here denotes in the mystical reference the beginning of the New Testament, which is incumbent on all the faithful, viz., the ceasing from sins and vices. "The two Marys who were seeking Christ at the grave" denote the two Churches that are seeking the Lord to-day in the New Testament—the Church of the faithful Jews, and the Church of the chosen Gentiles. "The women coming in the early morning to the grave" denote mystically the twofold Church we have spoken of, coming from the time of their baptism and from the commencement of their faith and their belief immediately to the learned masters of the New Testament, to seek knowledge from them. "A great earthquake took place at that hour": this denotes the arousing of the Gentiles from the error in which they had lain heretofore in their worship of idols and images, so as now to seek for their salvation and assistance from the Saviour of the elements. "For an angel came from heaven": this denotes the Saviour Jesus, whose name in the Scripture is 'the Angel of the great counsel', coming from heaven to earth at the pleasure of the heavenly Father, to help and deliver men. "When the angel came, he pushed the stone from the grave", means, mystically, when Christ came into the body, He put away the hardness and severity of the teaching of the Law, through the clemency and gentleness of the teaching of the Gospel. "The grave open" means the mystery of the Old Testament disclosed to-day in the New Testament. "The angel sits on the stone" means that it is plain from Law and Gospel that Christ is king and judge of all creatures. "The brightness of the angel like lightning" means that the Saviour Jesus Christ is ungentle and severe to sinners and unbelievers, but that He is a kindling of mind and nature in the saints and the righteous through the flame of love and virtuous conduct. "His raiment white as snow" means that the Lord is kind and gentle to the righteous, as Jesus certifies in the place where He says in the Gospel:—"Learn of me, O men, meekness and gentleness, for I myself am meek and gentle." "Fear and terror seizes the guards" means mystically that the Jews and Gentiles, who formerly kept the vain commandment of the service of the Law, have turned to-day, through the grace of repentance and contrition of heart, to the faith and belief. "A kind of death shone on them" means that the labour they exert in subduing their bodily desires is almost a semblance of death to the faithful. "Be not afraid nor alarmed" means that it is not right now for the Church of God to be afraid as to their punishment or damnation; as the apostle assures in saying:—"When the love of God comes in full measure to any man, it casteth out of him unspiritual pride [?]" ; because the folk of perfect love have no need of being afraid of the Lord, for great is their friendship and their reliance on Him through their charity, i.e. the Lord now dwells among men not as in the empty rule of the Jewish law. "For He hath risen as He foretold," i.e. the ascension of the Lord is now here in the nobility and splendour of the Gospel teaching. "Come and see the place," i.e. the humanity, as being the place and dwelling of the Son in His divinity. "Go quickly and tell His apostles, Jesus is arisen from the dead," i.e. tell the Church, that the Lord hath left the Jews, who died of yore in the service of the historic Law, and that He hath come to-day to the faithful Gentiles to be worshipped. "He will go before you into Galilee," i.e. make manifest to all the faithful, that they are not to seek the Lord under the dispensation of the Law, but that it is here precisely they shall seek Him, in Galilee, i.e. in coming out from among sinners into spirituality, from death into life, from vengeance to pardon, from darkness to light, from evil to good, from hell to paradise.

There are four points of observance at celebrating Easter, from which are gathered mystery and mystic meaning. The first point is, that it is celebrated after getting beyond the equinoxes, when the light of the sun overcomes the darkness of the night, and takes from it the shortness of setting [?]. It is quite suitable for the festival in which the light of eternal life is promised us—that it should be celebrated at the earliest time when the light of each year's sun gains the first victory over the darkness of the night. The second rule to be observed is, that it is celebrated in the first month of the year, in the month of the new fruits; that is, the month in which the world was first created and the first man was placed in paradise, which denotes that it is through the mystery of this festival we hope to obtain again the garment of immortality and incorruptibility from which we fell. The third point is, that it takes place in the third week of that month, i.e. from the fifteenth to the twenty-first. That is in harmony with the mystery and gladness of the resurrection, which took place on the third day and in the third period: for there are three periods—the time of the law of nature, during which the patriarchs lived; the time of the law of the letter, in which were the prophets; and the time of the law of the Holy Spirit, in which came Christ Himself, the Son of God. And the fourth observance in the celebration of Easter, which the people of the New Testament observe in addition to the preceding, is to hold it on Sunday beyond every day in the week ; for it was on Sunday the kingdom of heaven with the angels was created, on that same day Christ arose from the dead, and on that day we shall all arise hereafter, so that the choice of it beyond every day is quite natural for these reasons. Such is the mystical sense of the lesson : the historical being the obvious sense, the mystical is its mysterious and secret import.

But this lesson has also a moral sense, suitable for every faithful person to learn and meditate on ; for it is through the fulfilment of this that every religious person comes into harmony with Christ and the Church. "The evening of the Sabbath" here spoken of, and which is interpreted 'rest,' denotes in its moral reference the destruction and death of the fleshly lusts among men ; as the apostle enjoins on the faithful, where he says, "O men, subdue your body, to restrain and extinguish in it your fleshly lusts." "On that evening there shone forth" refers to man's renewal in virtues ; as the apostle further enjoins, saying, "put away from you the bitterness and inveteracy of your sins and vices, and be ye renewed in Christ." "The two Marys," in the moral reference, denote the body and soul of the man who labours for God ; or else, the two kinds of life in which each Christian in the present life pays perfect service to the Lord, vita actualis et vita theoretica ; the actual life, when the mind is perpetually fixed on ploughing and reaping, and the contemplative life, in which it is ever fixed on God. "Then there was a great earthquake," denotes the shock and arousal of the body from its life of ease and fleshly gratification, into harmony with the soul that puts away its sins and vices. "For an angel of God came from heaven," denotes the preaching of the word of God to the faithful out of the holy Scripture ; and the name of heaven is here given to the Scripture for its nobility and splendour. "When the angel came, he rolled away the stone from the grave and sat thereon," refers to the divine teaching overcoming the hardness of the heart and mind of every believing man, and bringing them to learn and understand the truth of the Gospel. "The two appearances assumed by the angel," the terrible, dreadful appearance as of lightning, and the bright pleasant appearance as of snow, denote in the moral reference the two aspects of the divine teaching, the stern severe aspect, in which it threatens punishment and suffering to the faithless and sinners, and the kind and gentle aspect, in which it promises happiness and reward to holy and righteous persons. "The guards" denote the bodily senses, which guard the emptiness and worthlessness of the world. "He is not here," i. e. the joy of the Lord is not in the hearts of the sinful and unbelieving. "For He hath arisen as He promised" denotes that the Lord's exaltation is in the souls of the holy and righteous. "Behold the place," i. e. give due heed [?] to the soul in which are the form and likeness of God. "Tell His disciples," i. e. enjoin on the bodily senses, to do good; and this name of 'disciples' is here applied to them, for the reason that so long as the senses imitate Christ, and take example from His goodness, they are counted as His disciples. "He goeth before you into Galilee," i. e. from the joys of the body to spiritual joys, from pride to humility, from greed to charity, from harshness to meekness. Such is the moral sense of this lesson.

Next, as to the anagogical sense, which surpasses all others that harmonize with Christ and the heavenly Church. 'The evening of the sabbath' signifies the end and consummation of the world, which passes away in the six ages with their continuation, the seventh, viz. the age of the peace of the righteous, from Abel to the doom. 'The first day of the sabbath' signifies the beginning of the eighth age, which the holy and righteous spend beyond, after the doom, in the presence of God, without limit or termination; for as the first day of the week, the Sunday, through taking its beginning from it, so the eighth day, from its remaining on it, (are observed) in honour of the Lord's resurrection. 'The two Marys who sat yonder in anxiety at the grave,' signify anagogically the two Churches that shall be in existence on the day of doom in the presence of God—the celestial and the terrestrial church. 'The earthquake' signifies the union in resurrection of all mankind at the judgment-day; but different will be their circumstances on that day, for some will rise to heaven, and others sink into hell. 'The angel who came from heaven on the day of Christ's resurrection, to announce it to them,' signifies anagogically the coming of the archangel Michael, to proclaim the resurrection of all the human race on the day of judgment, when he shall say to them thrice, "Arise, arise, arise, ye race of Adam!" and all shall arise at that summons.

"Beloved brethren," saith the sage, "let us to-day celebrate the festivity of the passover; this festival fully deserves its honour and celebration at the hands of all the faithful." This feast is directed to be honoured in three ways: the first 'refection' is the reading and preaching of the word of God; the second consists in giving alms in honour of the Lord, through love and mercy shown to the poor; the third 'refection' consists in the Mass, in which is made the offering of Christ's body and blood on behalf of the righteous. And though all feasts fully deserve their celebration and honour in these three ways, still more does this festival; for in it is the assembling together of the folk of heaven and earth; it is the festival alike of the Old and the New Testament; it is the peculiar feast of the heavenly Father; the feast of the Lord's resurrection; the feast which surpasses all others; the honoured and venerable festival of the people of heaven and earth, is this festival of Easter. For many are its wonders and marvels: in it the angel passed over the houses of the children of Israel, when he slew all the first-born of Egypt; in it the people of Israel went forth from Egypt, to go up to the land of promise; in it Christ arose from the dead, after binding the devil in hell; in it the souls of the holy and righteous of the five ages of the world came out of hell into paradise; in it will be the famous day, the Day of Judgment.

Great, indeed, and indescribable are the deeds of that day; for then the whole world shall be one flame of fire, from the rising of the sun to its setting; and that fire shall burn up the wicked, like dreadful lightning, but to the holy and righteous it will be a pleasant gentle dropping, because their alms and offerings protect them on that day from the fire of doom. On that day shall be overturned heaven and earth and sea, and all that are therein; on that day the earth shall be burnt up to ashes; but after it those elements shall be again renewed, in a form far more lovely and harmonious than when they were first created. On that day the archangel Michael shall utter his proclamation to all men, when he shall thrice bid them 'Arise'; and all men shall arise from death to life at that proclamation, viz. all those whom earth hath swallowed up, or wave drowned, all whom fire hath burned, or beasts devoured. On that day—the day of doom—to each one shall come the Lord Jesus Christ; He who came lowly and humbly the first time, at His birth, shall come terribly and awfully in this second day; He who came to His own judgment by the living will then come to judge the living and the dead; then He will separate His saints and righteous followers from the wicked: and to the latter He will say, as He rejects them and drives them away from Him, “depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, where ye shall have weeping and gnashing of teeth and melting of eyes; where there shall be worms and hideous beasts and inextinguishable fire, avenging on you your vices and acts of injustice; where ye shall have full abundance of every evil and the want of every good thing; where death shall be longed for by the wicked, who shall not find it,” for better far for them were it to find death and go suddenly to annihilation, than to be suffering these eternal pains and torments for ever and ever. But to the holy and righteous, the folk of charity and mercy, the Lord will say, as He invites them to Himself into the kingdom of heaven:—“Come, ye blessed, and possess the kingdom of my Father, which was prepared for you from the beginning of the world; where ye shall have these great blessings, life without death, youth without age, health without disease, joy without sorrow; where ye shall enjoy one repose after another”; where there shall be the freely bestowed rewards in the land of the living, perfect reward for their bodies and their souls in the kingdom of heaven for evermore. Thereafter the holy and the righteous shall dwell together with the Lord in that great splendour, in the delight and pleasures of the heavenly kingdom through all eternity; in the unity of the nine orders of heaven who have not transgressed; in the unity of the divinity and humanity of the Son of God; in the unity that is greater than every unity—in the unity of the Almighty Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We beseech the mercy of Jesus Christ, who arose from the dead on this day, to-day, that we may all attain to that unity; that we may deserve it and dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

[XX.]

[This homily contains the second part of the Gospel of Nicodemus, the Descensus Christi ad Inferos of Tischendorf, op. cit. p. 389, which commences here on line 3745.]

“ I will be thy death, O death, and thy bite, O hell ! ”

The Holy Spirit, the Spirit that surpasseth every spirit—the Spirit that endowed both Churches, that of the Old and that of the New Testament, with the grace of knowledge and prophecy—it is that Spirit who breathed these words into the mouth of the prophet Hosea, foretelling the mighty deed that took place on this day of to-day ; how Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, Saviour of all the world, after the completion of His crucifixion and passion for the sake of Adam’s race—after leaving His body in the tomb, and going with His soul to hell, delivered and set free from the prison of hell the Captivity, those whom the devil had held during the five periods, from Adam till Christ came in the flesh and suffered on behalf of Adam and his race ; then His soul descended into hell, and bound the devil, the powerful champion who had gained the victory over Adam’s children, with fiery chains in the depths of the torment of hell ; while He harried and carried off by force the souls of the elect there held in hell : so that it is to prophesy of that great victory gained by Christ over the devil, that the prophet spoke through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, “ I will be thy death,” &c.

And not only does the consecrated Scripture, that testifies of this noble and wondrous deed, tell how Christ delivered the Captivity, but the same testimony is borne by the many dead, who arose from death along with Christ, and went into Jerusalem and the many towns of the land of Judea, testifying of the resurrection of Christ from the dead, as Nicodemus records. This Nicodemus was learned in the Law, but was a friend of Christ, whom he praised in the presence of the Jews and of Pilate, saying that ‘ it was unjust in them to slay Christ ’ ; a saying that vexed the Jews, who retorted :—“ May he be united with thee in the day of judgment!" "Amen," said Nicodemus; "with Him be my union in the life beyond, with Christ!"

Joseph also—a holy man, one of the nobles of the city called Arimathæa—said it was an unjust act they had committed, in putting to death the sinless Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, the Lord and Creator of the world, who had come to deliver the race of Adam from the devil. Joseph, further, begged of Pilate to give him the body of Jesus, that he might bury it; and having obtained his request from Pilate, he put a clean linen cloth round the body of Jesus, and placed it in his new tomb that he had made for himself. When, therefore, the Jews heard of Joseph's having done that, they were angry with him, so they bound him and cast him into prison, till the sabbath should be passed, saying to him:—"Because thou hast given thy tomb to Christ, thy body shall not come into any grave amongst us, but shall be cast out to the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth." So, when the sabbath was ended, the high-priests Annas and Caiaphas came to the door of the prison, and found the prison closed [with the seals] they had put on it; then they opened it, but found not Joseph therein. This threw them into silence, and they wondered greatly at the prison remaining closed in the same way as they had fastened it, and Joseph not being found therein.

After three days there came three men from Galilee to Jerusalem, Phineas the priest, and Anna the teacher, and Agiusthe doctor of law, and they reported thus to the high-priests concerning Jesus whom they had crucified:—"We have seen him conversing with his apostles, in the midst of them on the top of Mount Olivet, and saying to them: 'Go ye and teach every nation, and baptize them in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost: he who shall believe and be baptized shall be saved.' And when he had given this charge to his disciples, we saw him taken up to heaven." When the high-priests and seniors of the people heard these tidings, they begged the men who told them, 'not to report these things any further,' and they gave them great reward and much money for remaining silent without bruiting abroad the story from that henceforth.

At that time a great assembly of all the Jews was gathered together, and they were astonished at the mighty wonderful signs that had been then done in the land of Israel, viz., the resurrection of Christ from the dead, and the escape of Joseph from the closed prison. But Annas and Caiaphas, the high-priests, kept heartening the Jews by explaining away [?] those signs; and at length they said:—"Let messengers be despatched from us to Joseph's town of Arimathæa, and let us find out whether Joseph is in it." So messengers went from them to Arimathæa, where they found him; then they returned and reported to the priests that Joseph was in Arimathæa. But when the Christians heard that he was there, they rejoiced greatly, and praised the Lord for having delivered Joseph from the prison where he lay. As to the high-priests, a letter was brought from them to Joseph, summoning him to them to Jerusalem, to converse with them. [On his arrival] they said to him:—"By the ever-living God, tell us how thou camest out of the shut-up prison, in which we put thee." Joseph replied:—"When ye closed the prison on me on the evening of Friday, and I was there praying on the midnight of the Saturday, the prison chamber where I lay was raised up on high from me by the four corners; then I saw Jesus, as brilliant as the sun, and I fell to the ground from the abundance of my terror. After that Jesus came to me, and took my hand and raised me from the ground, saying to me: 'Fear not nor be afraid, Joseph; I am Jesus, the Son of God: it was my body thou didst bury.' I said to him: 'Show me the grave in which I made thy burial;' and He took my hand, and brought me to the grave where I had buried Him, and showed me the cloth I had wrapt about Him. Then I recognized Him, that He was Jesus, and I worshipped God, and said to Him: 'blessed is He who is come in the name of the Lord.' Thereupon Jesus took my hand, and brought me to my own house in Arimathæa, and said to me: 'Peace and comfort to thee! and depart not thou from thy house for the space of forty days;' adding: 'I shall go to strengthen my disciples.'"

Now, when the Jews and high-priests heard these tidings, it put them to silence, and they fell with their faces to the earth, as if they were dead; and they said with each other:—"What is this sign in the land of Israel?" Joseph arose and spoke in the presence of the people to Annas and Caiaphas :—“Ye are astonished at Christ’s rising from the dead ; but that ye may be yet more astonished, [I tell you that] not only has Christ Himself risen, but He has raised from death many others of the dead with Him : these have risen out of their graves, so that numbers have seen them walking about in Jerusalem. Listen to me further,” said Joseph, “and I will tell you another thing. Known to us all was Simeon the holy priest : it was he who took Jesus, when yet a child, into his arms in the temple of Solomon. This Simeon had two sons, named Charinus and Leontius : we were all present at their death and burial. Go now and look at their graves, and ye shall find them thus—opened and empty ; for they arose along with Christ, and they are still alive in the city named Arimathæa, where they are heard singing prayers ; but they speak to no man. Let us all go to them, and show them honour and great humility ; and let us bring them with us to Jerusalem, and ask of them ; and it is most probable they will tell us how the resurrection was brought about.”

Now, when the Christians heard these tidings, they rejoiced greatly ; so Annas, Caiaphas, Nicodemus, Joseph, and Gamaliel, went to view the tomb, and found the graves : they were open, without any bodies in them. Then they went to Arimathæa to seek them, and found them therein, engaged in prayer and genuflexion ; so they kissed them, and brought them with honour and reverence to Jerusalem, where all the Jews were then assembled to meet them. And they put the books of the Law and the Prophecy into their hands, and besought them, saying :—“By the living God, who of old gave the law and the prophecy to our fathers, if ye believe that it is God who raised you from the dead, tell us how ye arose from the dead.” When the sons of Simeon heard this request made to them, they turned their faces heavenwards, and made the sign of Christ’s cross over their mouths and their tongues, and immediately addressed those present, saying :—“Give us sheets of parchment, that we may write out for you what we have seen and heard.” So there was given to them the paper for writing, and this was the tale they wrote and told :—

While we and all our sages with us were in the darkness of hell, suddenly there came to us a vast light, so that it dispelled from us the darkness that was around us. Adam at once rejoiced at the coming of that great light to us, and with him rejoiced all the patriarchs and prophets: then spake Adam:—"The Father of everlasting light promised us His light—this it is which hath now come to us." Then said the prophet Isaiah:—"This light is Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, whose coming to you I foretold, while I was alive on earth, in these words: 'the people that sat in darkness, they shall see great light: on them who are in the kingdom of the darkness of death great light shall shine'; that is the light that hath now come to us, to enlighten us and protect us against death." And while we all were rejoicing at the coming to us of that great light, came our father Simeon, in gladness, and said to us all:—"Praise ye the Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, who hath now come to us, and whom I myself held in my arms, when He was an infant, in Solomon's temple." Then said John the Baptist:—"This light which ye see is Christ, the Son of God: it was of Him I spake, when Christ came to me for baptism in the Jordan, 'Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of all the world'; then I baptized Him in the river Jordan, and I saw the Holy Ghost coming upon Him in the form of a dove, and I heard the voice of the Father from heaven saying, 'This is my dear Son who hath never done aught save my will.'" When Adam heard of Jesus being baptized in the river Jordan, he said to his son Seth, "Tell thy children, i.e. the patriarchs and prophets, what Michael said to thee, when thou wentest to beg some oil of the tree of mercy that is in paradise, for the anointing of my body, while I lay in infirmity and dissolution." Then came Seth at the bidding of Adam to the patriarchs and prophets, and said:—"I went to the door of paradise, and asked the Lord there to give me somewhat of the oil of mercy to anoint Adam's body; then came Michael to converse with me, and he said, 'I am the angel of the human race; do not ask now the thing thou seekest, for the time for that has not yet come, till Christ the Son of God shall be born in the time of the end of the world, to deliver Adam and his race from the death of sin: it is He that shall give the oil of His mercy to each one, through regeneration in baptism by the water and by the Holy Ghost to eternal life, when He Himself shall first come to baptism in the river Jordan ; it is He who shall awake from death the body of Adam and of the dead in general ; He shall bear Adam to paradise to the tree of mercy, after harrying hell for Adam and his race.'” When all the patriarchs and prophets heard this narrative from Seth, they rejoiced greatly.

But when Satan, the prince of Hell and leader of death, heard all the saints rejoicing, he spake to Hell :—“ Be ready, and receive to thyself Jesus, who boasts that he is Christ, the Son of God, i. e. a man who dreads death, and himself says, ‘ My soul is sorrowful to the hour of my death.’ Guilty towards me is this man ever ; much evil has he done me ; often has he snatched from me the people on whom I had inflicted blindness, and leprosy, and every kind of disease that is in the world ; these he has healed in despite of me with the mere bidding of a word ; the dead whom I brought to thee this man has carried off from thee by force, and has given life to them, to the despite of us both. Thus it is quite natural for thee [to expect] that much misery should be caused thee.” To its lord, to Satan, Hell replied, saying :—“ What man is there with whom is this great power, and who yet has the fear of death ? for the other mighty ones of the earth are subject to the power of us two. How can a man who is afraid of death go against thy might ? Nevertheless,” said Hell to Satan, “ I tell thee a true word : if this man on the side of his humanity has the mighty power thou sayest, he is almighty on the side of his divinity, and none other can go against his power ; and when he said that he feared death, it was to deceive thee, and thou hast brought woe on thyself thereby, O Satan.” Then Satan, chief of [Tartarus?] replied to Hell, saying :—“ Why art thou in doubt, and why, O Hell, fearest thou to receive to thyself Jesus, who is guilty before us both ? for I by myself brought a strong attack upon him, viz., I stirred up the Jewish people with jealousy and anger against him ; I persuaded them to bind him, and to mock him and scourge him, and to give him to drink vinegar and the bitter draught of gall commingled ; I persuaded them to thrust through his side with a lance, so that he died of it ; and I have brought him to thee after his death : he is subject to our power, mine and thine, O Hell !” This is the answer that Hell gave to Satan then:—"It is plain to me, that through him has come thy own calamity for ever, O Satan, through the deed of which thou boastest, the death of Christ. For I hold many here with me, who have awaked the dead from me, while they themselves were yet alive; but it was not through their own power they did that, but through prayer and intercession to Almighty God; but this man, Jesus, hath carried many away from me by the utterance of a word merely, without intercession at all; and methinks it is he who awaked from death by his mere word Lazarus, who had been with me the space of four days in death." Satan replied:—"Certain, indeed, is it, that it is he who robbed thee of Lazarus, and carried him away from thee to life from death." When, then, Hell heard this statement of Satan, it replied:—"I beseech thee, by our friendship, that thou bring not to me at all that man, for when I heard the utterance of his word in taking away Lazarus from me, a shuddering and terror seized me thereat, and all my offices and energies were confounded, nor could Lazarus be made to stay with me, though I would fain have kept him. I know that this man is the mighty God, and that he is the Saviour of Adam's race; and sure I am if thou bring him to me he will set free all who are with me in bonds and imprisonment; he will deliver them, and will carry them away with him into eternal life."

While they were in that conversation with each other, Satan and Hell, they heard the loud voice, like deep thunder, saying:—"Open your iron doors, ye chiefs of hell, that the king of glory may enter within." When Hell heard this utterance, it spake at once to Satan:—"Depart from me, and stay not in my abode at all; if thou hast power, fight outside with the King of Glory!" Then Hell drove Satan the prince out of its dwelling, and spake after that to its impious officers:—"Shut your brazen doors, and put iron bolts on them firmly; and act bravely for us, lest we be both enslaved; for with us every one is in slavery until now."

Now when all the saints and righteous, who were in Abraham's bosom in hell, heard this colloquy of Satan with his impious servants, they addressed Hell with much reproach and blame:—"O Hell, open thy gates, that the King of Glory may enter in!" Then said David:—"Little the gain of it to thee, O Hell, in the strengthening thou art adding to thy gates, for I foretold when I was alive on earth, that Jesus Christ would burst thy fastenings, when I said, 'For He opened the brazen doors, and brake the iron bolts.' And Isaiah the prophet said:—"While I was alive on earth I foretold to you, ye saints, the victory that Christ is gaining to-day, when I said, 'There is no power since Christ came.'" When all the saints heard the words of David and Isaiah, they said to Hell:—"Open wide thy gates, O Hell! for thou shalt now be subdued, and thy power and thy kingdom shall be taken from thee for long." And a great voice like thunder was then heard, saying:—"Lift up your gates, ye princes of hell, that the King of Glory may enter in!" Now when Hell heard this utterance, it spake to the prophets, as if it knew not who had come:—"Who is this that is called King of Glory?" David made answer:—"We know that King; it is He whom I foretold, when I was alive on earth, when I said, 'The Lord mighty and powerful, the Lord mighty in battle, He is the King of Glory.' Open thy gates, therefore, that the King of Glory may come to thee."

When David had said this, the King of Glory came in the form of a man, i.e. Jesus Christ; He illuminated the darkness of hell, broke its fastnesses, released its captives, and gave assistance to the multitude who were in the darkness of hell and death. When then Hell and Satan saw that Christ was in their citadel, fear and terror seized them and their cruel, impious officers, through the great flash of the light of Christ shining in their borders; and they raged against Christ, and spake thus to Him:—"We are conquered by thee, who hast come boldly into our territories; thou hast approached our power with thy majesty, and thou perturbest our legions; thou releasest from us the multitude whom we held bound in original sin, and summonest them to the pristine freedom they had in the beginning before transgression; thou bringest a bright light to the multitude that were blinded with the darkness of sin. Great the contempt and oppression thou bringest on us." Then all the legions of the devils with them together roared with terror and great fear, and said to Christ:—"Whence art thou come, or who art thou, O Jesus? for we have never seen a man like thee, in the abundance of thy might and majesty, in thy lustre without spot, in thy purity without sin. For the terrestrial world was under our power up to this, and they used to pay tribute to us ever until thou camest among us. So now thou hast come to us with thy wonted boldness, and not only dost thou not dread our punishments, but thou takest away from us even the multitude that we held in torments. And it seems to us that thou art that Jesus of whom long ago our chief Satan spake to us, saying that he would assume the high kingdom of the whole world through his crucifixion on behalf of Adam's race."

Then Jesus Christ, the King of Glory, assumed lordship over death, and seized as captive Satan, the prince of death, and put him under the power of Hell. Thereupon Hell said to Satan:—"O chief of mischief, leader of transgression, author of death, origin of pride, head of all evils, adversary, hard-hearted and merciless enslaver, ill-fated, wretched, inglorious, proud, fierce, ignoble, wicked, false, contentious, quarrelsome, powerless person, thou hast deceived thyself and us all through the deed thou hast done in crucifying unjustly the holy and righteous man without spot of sin, Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, King of Glory; therefore thou art unkinged to-day, and all the treasures thou didst gain by the tree of transgression in paradise have been taken from thee by the tree of the cross of Christ." So when Hell had thus addressed Satan the prince of death, the King of Glory spoke to Hell:—"Be Satan in thy power for ever in the room of Adam!"

Then Jesus, the King of Glory, stretched out His hand, and made the sign of the cross over Adam and over all the saints that were in hell; and He said to Adam:—"Peace and prosperity to thee with thy righteous children, O Adam!" And He took Adam's right hand in His hand, and brought him with Him out of hell, together with all the saints; and commended them all to Michael the Archangel, who took them with him to the joy of paradise; and they were there from the Easter of the resurrection to the Ascension, when they went on the day of Christ's Ascension under the protection of His cross and passion, along with Christ to heaven, a place where they shine as the sun in the kingdom of the Father—a kingdom in which there is life without death, youth without age, &c.

SERMON TO KINGS.

[With this begins the first of the Latin-Irish sermons. In this case I have printed the Latin text in full after the English translation. I know of no other copy of either.]

“When the ways of man shall be pleasing to the Lord, He will bring his enemies to his obedience.”

The Holy Spirit, the third person of the noble Godhead, co-eternal and consubstantial with the Father and the Son, is that Spirit who revealed these mysteries to Solomon, the son of David. This Solomon was the wisest of the men of the world, save Christ the Son of God, Saviour of the world, when He possessed life in human body like any other pious man in general in the world; and it was he who offered on one occasion a thousand offerings to the Lord on the altar of God in the city of Gibeon, just after assuming the kingdom; and the Lord appeared to him that night in his dream, and said to him:—“O king, ask the request dear to thee on the day of thy offering, and it shall be granted thee.” And Solomon said:—“Grant me then abundance of wisdom and knowledge, that I may judge Thy people righteously, and distinguish between evil and good, and that I may assign his true merits to every one.” That was natural, for he needed great wisdom and prudence from the Lord; for he was in his youth at the time, being only twelve years old when he became king over the people of Israel. That request which Solomon made pleased the Lord, and He said to him:—“Because such is the request thou hast made, I will give thee abundance of wisdom and knowledge, so that none was before nor shall be after thee wiser nor more enlightened than thou art; and not only so, there shall be given thee abundance of wealth and glory, so that before thee was not born, nor will be hereafter, a king more wealthy and glorious than thou art.” Hence it is plain, that God not only grants to the righteous the perfect request they beg of Him, but also bestows on them every other blessing for their making such a request."

When therefore God had revealed to Solomon in this way abundance of wisdom and knowledge for penetrating clearly into the nature of each thing, he composed three books for the instruction of man in the three periods of his life : in childhood, in youth, and in old age ; and these are the books as they are enumerated in the order of the holy canon, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes and the Song of Solomon. 'Proverbs' is the book out of which man is instructed from his infancy in his morals, and about the qualities of conduct it is right for him to follow and imitate ; 'Ecclesiastes' is the book in which are shown the vanity and transitoriness of the world in its glory and its pomp, in its wealth and in its treasures, to teach man that he should not be deceived by lusting after them ; the 'Song of Solomon' is the book in which are shown to every perfect man for his consolation the delight and joy of the Spiritual Bridegroom in His Spouse, and of the Spouse in Him, viz., of Christ in the Church, and of the Church in Christ.

In the Proverbs of Solomon, in the book of 'pure morals,' we find the statement that is enunciated here, 'when the ways of a man,' &c. The 'ways' that are interpreted here are the acts in which is spent the secular course of human life ; and fitting is the name 'way' for the earthly life here below, seeing that in heaven is the real fatherland of the righteous, while their life on earth is but a pilgrimage. And there is yet another cause why human life is compared to a way : for sometimes a way is straight, at other times crooked ; one while it is high, then low ; now it is broad, and again narrow. Such, too, is the way of human life : straight in good men, but crooked in bad men ; noble in the hope of eternity, low in despair ; broad in fleshly lust, [narrow in obedience to God]. It is in speaking of that 'way' that it is said in Scripture : 'Broad and spacious is the way that leadeth the impious to ruin and everlasting perdition, but narrow is the way of human life in fulfilling the commandment of God' ; and in describing it, the authority says :—'Narrow and contracted is the way that leads the righteous to the courts of life,' viz., to the heavenly rewards.

The ways of the righteous are these good deeds in which he is pleasing to God, as the prophet testifies when he says:—"I desire, O God, that my ways should be straight in the fulfilment of Thy commandment, by which I may obtain holiness and righteousness"; in harmony with the words of Solomon here given, "when the ways of man," &c. The ways of mankind in general, he says, and not the ways of any one particular man; for there is no respect of persons with God, i.e. it is immaterial who it be that obeys His will—king or vassal, master or servant, rich or poor, gentle or simple, old or young, men or women—whoever pleaseth the Lord in anyone of these classes, the Lord will cause his enemies to be peaceable towards him. But when anyone opposes the Lord, and doeth not His will, at that moment his friends are made to become enemies to him; as saith David, the son of Jesse:—"My friends and nearest kinsmen came against me, when I transgressed the commandment of God; those of them who were faithful to me at first became afterwards faithless, and deserted me most."

Now every created thing, whether it possesses life or does not possess it, is peaceable towards him who fulfils God's commands, except only the devil, who ever wars contentiously with the righteous; nevertheless, he can do them no harm, but as the Lord Himself permits him, according to the upright law of His righteous judgment; for though the devil always feels the longing to do every evil, yet he possesses no power but as it is permitted him by God. Hence it is that, when David pleased God by fulfilling His commandments, the Lord made him this promise, saying:—"Because thou hast fulfilled my commandment, O David, heirs shall ever spring from thee in the kingdom and lordship over my people, the people of Israël." The same thing He promised in another place, saying:—"It shall be from thy children and thy race, O David, that the kings of this holy city, Jerusalem, shall be got for ever, because thou hast kept my counsel and my law." But Saul, the first king that ruled over God's people, was rebuked by the holy prophet, Samuel, with these words of reproach:—"O Saul, what thou hast done is evil, in that thou hast not fulfilled the commands which God charged thee to observe; for hadst thou kept the commandment of the Lord, thy own kingship would have been prosperous over the people of Israel, and from thee would have sprung kings over them for ever; but because thou hast not done that, thou thyself shalt go to destruction, and kingship over the people of God shall never be derived from thee." And therefore, because the Lord was pleased with the ways of Daniel, whom they flung into the den of the lions, and of the Three Children who were cast into the furnace of fire, He made their enemies to be peaceful towards them; for neither the beasts nor the fire could do aught to them, through the power of the Lord that was protecting them. And so long as the children of Israel kept His commandment, He saved them amid every persecution, so that one of them was strong against a thousand of his enemies; and on the other hand, when they did not obey His commandment, they got for that much evil from their enemies,—hunger and captivity and every kind of persecution, so that one of their enemies was strong against a thousand of them, for the Lord delivered them over to their enemies for transgressing His commandment. When the children of Israel turned again to the Lord after those afflictions, He helped them, and delivered them out of their troubles, as is testified by the Scripture of the prophets, saying:—"When the Lord brought troubles on the children of Israel, they besought Him, and made supplication to Him, and He delivered them thereafter." For when the righteous man harmonizes the ways of his action and labour with the Lord's will, i. e. by good deeds and prayer, his ways are then pleasing to God, and he is delivered from his enemies, as the royal sage here testifies, saying, "when the ways," &c. But though this maxim is applicable to all men, that they should have peace and tranquillity in their deeds, nevertheless it is more especially suitable to kings; for when their ways are pleasing to God, when they observe the law of divine justice in their decisions, then their enemies are made to be peaceable towards them through the might of the Lord. So the righteous kings, who exercise justly their authority after the counsel of the Lord, are heirs of the Supreme King, i. e. are counted as the sons of the Heavenly King.

It is fitting for all to be subject to them, and to live according to their will, as saith the apostle:—"O men, be careful in obedience to the kings and rulers that are appointed by God over you in kingship and authority"; for it is right that all should know that all rule and power are from Him: hence it is by Him that kings are ordained unto their supremacy and chieftainship over men ; whoever, therefore, rebels against righteous kings in this world is rebelling against God who ordained them. The people that resist them unrighteously deserve punishment and condemnation for their unlawfulness and injustice ; for it is with a view to profit that the king has been allowed to bear a sword and other arms, viz., to subdue and restrain every illegality that might be done in his kingdom. For the earthly king is a viceroy at the hands of the Heavenly King, and hath been entrusted by God with the duty of avenging every injustice, and punishing each one in his crime as is lawful. " Therefore, O men," saith the apostle, " it is fitting ye should be in obedience to your kings," for the terror and awe they inspire ; and not only so, but ye know that it is God's will they should rule over all ; for who is higher than the earthly king, or whom is it more unjust to annoy in the world ? if it be that he rule righteously, there is no other lord over him but one—the King of Heaven. So that whatever other man commit sin, he is guilty before the earthly king ; but if the king commit sin, he is guilty before none other than only the Heavenly King.

Consider, therefore, O temporal king, the commandment of the Heavenly King ; and as thou wouldst have everyone obedient to thee, so be thou obedient to Him. If thou wouldst do the will of God, and take His counsel, exercise thy authority and rule in this fashion and likeness, viz., peaceably and moderately ; harbour not anger nor passion, but exhibit calmness and gentleness, in ruling the people entrusted to thee by God to rule. For this is what is demanded from a king, that he should keep up a kind and fatherly intercourse with his subjects, as though they were his children ; while from them it is demanded that they should love him as if he were their father ; but, on the other hand, the king is bound, in his justice, to chastise and remove from his place any man who deserves evil through his cruelty and arrogance.

Consider the height of the glory and honour in which thou hast been placed by God—that it will be a cause of pain and suffering to thee hereafter, if thou preserve not carefully now that lofty position against sin and vice. In the next world shall be punished heavily beyond everyone the kings who exercise their authority unrighteously, or who enforce it unlawfully over any, through the power and might bestowed on them by God in this world. Unmerciful will be the vengeance yonder, on those who rule here without mercy; as the Scripture assures, when it says:—"He to whom is given abundance of treasure and wealth, power and strength, here below, if he do not good therewith, shall be punished without mercy beyond all in the next world by God"; and again:—"To whom the Lord hath given abundance in wealth, in treasure, and in wisdom, unless he do the will of God therewith, it shall in the end be bitterly and mercilessly exacted from him by God." In proportion as the honour in which each stands is the greater, so is his danger: hence it is fitting for him to have fear and anxiety and great carefulness. That is manifest from these examples: for it is the tree that is highest in the wood that most commonly falls through the violence and tempest of winds; it is the tower which is loftiest on the wall of the city that most frequently breaks and falls; the highest hills are most dangerously set fire to by lightnings;—in like manner, the danger is greatest to those who are in the high position of kingship, unless there be the grace of God preserving them against present and future evils.

If the king would avoid heavy sufferings hereafter, he should in this world avoid every unrighteous act, every injustice, and should yearn for the possession of mercy with truth: as is certified in the Scripture, "Mercy and truth are the virtues that, like pillars, support righteous kings, and strongly uphold their kingdom, so as to keep it free from sorrow and ruin." In another place Solomon gives this counsel to kings, when he says:—"Love justice, i. e. give righteous judgments, ye kings of the world." For Solomon greatly feared the Lord, while he was judging the people and giving judgments on them; for one day he was in the presence of the noble king David his father, while the latter was judging the people, and he reproached him for what he deemed his dilatoriness and tardiness in deciding cases; so his father said to him:—"My son, come to-day into the royal seat, so as to examine and determine the questions and cases of the people quicker than I do; for thou art wiser and keener of discernment and understanding, as is said in the proverb: 'sharper is every thorn that is younger.'" Thereupon Solomon came and sat in the royal seat, according to the commandment of his father; and there appeared to him over his head the hand of the Creator with a two-edged sword, threatening him with an awful death of a sudden if he swerved little or much from the righteous judgment; and when Solomon saw that, he shuddered greatly, and his blood turned to bone in him for fear of the one God; and he begged his father then to pray the Lord for him, and to give him forgiveness for the annoyance he had caused him through ignorance. So after that they both prayed the Lord to observe justice, and that they might never pass any unrighteous judgment on any man. And they testified that great is the danger to anyone in passing any judgment before the High King who is ever present at every decision and in every case, viz., Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, Saviour of the human race.

This, then, is the justice that it is right for the king to guard, viz., that in his decisions he exercise no violence or illegality on anyone in all his kingdom by mere acts of power; that he be impartial and just in his decision to each without respect of persons, whether known or unknown, noble or serf, rich or poor, master or servant, king or vassal; and that his proper judgment be passed on each in every case, in a manner suited to the fear and terror of the Lord, who is present and is witness in every judgment. It is required of him to side with the weak, to aid the wretched and feeble, the orphans and widows. It is further right in him to prevent wicked men from their misdeeds and their wonted ill-conduct in general; to condemn each of them in his sin; to hold them in aversion and chastise them for their vices, for lust and adultery, robbery and theft, rapine and plunder; for the kingdom is often corrupted through allowing these sins in full liberty to all.

This, too, is proper for him—to honour the holy Churches; to give heed to, and respect the Church as the queen of the Heavenly King; for as it is the will of an earthly king that everyone should honour his queen, so it is required of him that he honour the queen of the Heavenly King, i. e. the Church, with whom is the power of every blessing and of every good intercession on his behalf with her Master, the Lord, who is her Head and Superior.

It is also required of him that he give alms of food and clothing to the poor for charity and mercy, and that he should bring to the Lord carefully the tithes of his wealth and his treasure.

The king should also fight bravely with his enemies for his fatherland, i.e. for his people and tribes, that were entrusted to him by God to rule, and should be to them a shield of protection and defence against all persecution and distress. It is right for him not to trust in his own might, but in the might of the Lord. And he should keep in memory his 'credo' according to the teaching of the apostle, together with the Lord's prayer, the 'pater'; for it is required of every Christian that he should possess these two in his memory and recollection, his credo and his pater. Further, it is required of him, that he should not permit his children or his race to commit any injustice or unlawfulness in his kingdom, to the extent of his power and ability. This also is proper in him, to observe fast and abstinence, and self-restraint regularly, so as to beg prosperity and luck [?] from God in his kingdom; and that he should not eat before his proper time, but should take his meal at the hour suitable for him, with gladness and thankfulness to God for His good gifts. "It is a cause of ruin to laity and clergy when their kings and rulers are enslaved to gluttony and the excesses of the world." It is fitting for him to hate the wicked men who are given over to every evil, theft and robbery, rapine and plunder, deceit and murder; to expel them at once from his kingdom, and that they should have no peace nor union at all with him; as the prophet certifies when he says in his prayer to the Lord:—"O God, have no mercy on those who persist stubbornly in their sin, and who ever pursue their wickedness, without conversion or turning to the Lord to fulfil His commandments." For the king [is justified] who condemns and restrains wicked men, and who hangs and kills them, if he cannot restrain them by the other ways in which their chastisement is lawful, i.e. by spoliation and depriving them of their wealth, by exile and prison, by fetters and pit, and even by mutilation of their limbs. The king who cannot by these means restrain them, and who hangs and kills them for their iniquity, is a trusty minister of the Lord, a son of humility and ready obedience to God, for punishing and restraining wicked men in this fashion. For though the king hangs and slays the enemies of the Lord and

His culprits, for their homicide and their unspeakable mischiefs in general, because he cannot restrain them in any other way, it is not accounted to him as manslaughter, but as a fulfilling of the will and law of God—as humility and service done to the Lord. For the king who does not punish and restrain wicked men in these ways is himself guilty before the Lord of the murders and other acts of injustice they commit in theft and robbery. For, in very truth, the king who holds back his sword from the blood of the sinner deserves no blessing from the Lord; for it is not to be accounted as cruelty nor as violence in the king when he hangs and slays the cruel oppressors whom he cannot restrain in any other way. The king who spares wicked men inflicts damage on good men; for it is not pleasing to God that the king show such compassion or mildness as to spare and have mercy on any inveterate criminal who harms society. For often a whole nation is corrupted and ruined by the crime of one man; and hence it is right to destroy such an one at once, lest he be a danger to society, and lest people be made to fall by cause of him. For even the learned leech does not spare one member in which he finds the disease that he cannot cure without amputation, [but cuts it out,] lest the disease should spread through the members of the body in general, and lest the man be in danger of death, if that limb wherein the disease is born be not cut out at once from the body.

When, however, kings do not govern and regulate their kingdom and lordship thus according to the rules of the divine law, their kingdom is disturbed for that reason by many troubles and calamities. For it is [through] transgression of the will of God on the part of kings that peace and concord are broken among their subjects, and strifes and dissensions aroused in their midst, so that everyone is against his fellow through the ill-conduct of the unrighteous kings. It is through the unkingly rule of such, that lands and territories become sterile, and do not afford their wonted fruit; and that consequently the nations cannot perform their lawful service, from the wretchedness and poverty that exist in the kingdom in which they live. Thus their prosperity and lordship are often blasted by many diseases and various maladies; they are overrun by extern foes making incursions on their people and districts before their eyes, and to whom they can offer no successful resistance, because God is not with them; the serenity and temperateness of the air are disturbed, so that there is neither birth nor fruit in the due proportion either on sea or on land, but everything is infected by the violence of stormy weather and by adverse seasons; oftentimes the green fields are burnt by fires and by lightnings, while the buds and blossoms of the vine and all other fruits on the earth and on trees dry up and waste away at once after their appearance in the bud, or after being gathered by men. Further, not only does the disorderly conduct of the king, and his lawlessness, destroy this his lordship in respect of himself, but in respect of his children and grandchildren after him, so that they do not get their heritage in the manner that is worthy of them; for it was owing to the lawlessness and injustice of Solomon that God severed the kingdom of the ten tribes from his sons and grandsons after him; while it was from the justice of the righteous King David that the Lord granted the lamp of kings and the supreme ordination to his seed in Jerusalem in the kingdom of the two tribes. For the justice of a righteous king benefits not only himself, but his descendants and his race for ever.

For these reasons let the king desire justice, and avoid injustice; let him not exhibit vainglory nor pride, but let him subdue and humble himself, owing to the inconstancy and transitoriness of earthly rule: brief the time till worldly happiness decays; the riches and prosperity of this life are troublous and sorrow-fraught. Slight and perishable is earthly power; transitory and fragile, unstable and temporary, are lordship and power in this world. "Take note, O king," saith the sage, "how swiftly have gone to nothingness the kings and emperors, the leaders and princes, that were before thee of yore in the highest estate and pre-eminence in this life. See for thyself the death and unhappy sequel of the rich and well-born: they found glory and exalted position in the world, but they all vanished like shadow or mist; they faded away as the vain images that are shown to men in dreams; and to a little consideration there is abundant example of decay, in the fact that no traces remain this day of their glory nor of their honour." Hence it is that the faithful King David said in bewailing this:—"I have seen the unbelieving kings rising and becoming lofty like the cedars of Mount Lebanon, and afterwards going swiftly to destruction, and perishing suddenly, and no trace nor sign found of the regal state in which they lived." Let the king, then, learn that his power is but temporal, and that he will be punished in the world beyond with many torments, if in this world he exercise not his authority righteously; for as the king is now above all in earthly rank, just so he will be beneath all in the next world in mysterious punishments and torments. For it will be more intolerable than to unrighteous kings than to all other men i. e. their punishment will be greater by far than the punishment of any man over whom they exercised sway and authority unrighteously here below.

But if the king fulfil God's commandment, if he exercise his kingship and authority according to these rules of God's teaching, there will be peace and prosperity in his kingdom, and his enemies will have no power over him, but there will be security in every quarter for himself and for the nations and tribes under his rule; there will be no pestilences nor unknown diseases in his kingdom; to him earth and sea, field and wood, lakes and rivers, will be fruitful; the poor and wretched will find their consolation and assistance in him through alms and offerings, and they will pray and implore God on his behalf, that he be prosperous and fortunate in his kingdom and government, in his authority and mandate over men here below in this world; and with these things there will be given him, by the Lord of the elements, this great honour, to be spiritual father of everyone, whether weak or strong, warrior or clerk, man or woman, old or young, in the laity or the clergy; and he shall have an acceptable countenance so as to be joyously received and welcome, wherever he go about among men here in this earthly course of the present life, together with serenity of the atmosphere and the season, on sea and land, during his lifetime; and at the conclusion of a long life spent thus in the happiness and dignity of earthly rule, he shall be finally carried to the happiness and dignity of the heavenly kingdom; and his son and grandson shall follow in his inheritance, through his favour and blessing; after his death his name and memory shall be dear to all, so that they will bless him for his justice and integrity.

As for the proud kings, who do not rule righteously, but who tyrannize over their subjects, and oppress them cruelly and harshly, they are the heirs of the proud king, viz., the devil, as he is described in the Scripture:—"the devil is king and lord over all unrighteous kings, and over proud tyrants." The heavenly King shall reject them in the day of judgment, and shall say to them, as He drives them away from Him:—"depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting purgatory, that was prepared for the devil with his evil company"; a place where they will have tears on their countenances, and chattering on their teeth; where they will have abundance of every bitterness and gall, with a want of every sweet thing; where darkness and misery abound, without light or enjoyment; where their cry will ever be 'woe' and 'alas,' with sigh and sickness; where there will be many a despair, and torments and troubles and all kinds of unrest for ever; where they will have innumerable sorts of punishments and tortures and sufferings, which it were impossible for any man in the world to describe or relate—sufferings of great punishments without relief, abundance of hunger and thirst and evil [oppressing them?], and lack of every good thing; where they shall also have cold and nakedness, without protection or assistance afforded them; death without limit, without end, without life again to be shown in human body; and many fiery tears over their faces and countenances, for the vastness of the agonies and punishments and sufferings and miseries in general which they will have to endure. There also will be the faces of the grim, desperate, dreadful demons, threatening and beating and scourging the wretched souls that are enduring every kind of punishment and suffering; there they shall have an eternity of various penalties, with which they will be afflicted for evermore; there they shall have screaming and wailing and melting of eyes; weeping without alleviation, without pity, without mercy; there they shall have the dire burden of a vast and inextinguishable thirst, never to be assuaged through all eternity; there they shall have the filthy, horrid, ugly, mournful, miserable, frightful, hideous co-habitation of the sons of cursing, and of the evil creditors who remit no whit of their debts but exact them to the uttermost from small and great, viz., the fiends of hell and all its evil brood; there they shall have punishment without limit, without end, without rest; infernal darkness, with no light from any source or quarter; no consolation, no repose nor alleviation, but heavy wailing and vast, loud, anguished outcry; no hope of assistance from heaven or earth, but increase and extension and addition of every punishment and suffering and misery and heavy agony heaped one upon another; there the second death shall be longed for by those impious kings, in the yearning and desire of getting an existence that would be better, and they shall not obtain it; there they shall have the fulness of every evil, and every hurt, and every torment, and the lack of every good thing of all that exists in heaven or on earth.

But the righteous, pious, merciful kings shall be invited by the high King of heaven and earth, the Saviour and Lord of the elements, who is head and Lord over them and over all creation; and for their justice and integrity, their good deeds and virtues in general, He shall carry them with Him into the eternal welcome that He has provided for His saints and righteous, viz., into the heavenly kingdom; a place where the Lord Himself shall take away from them all grief and sorrow, all misery and distress; where they shall have a glorious life without death, eternal joy with no sorrow. The kings of that abode shall have youth without age, peace without strife, everlasting kingship without disturbance, great gladness without end for evermore: where they shall have the resplendent union of the company of heaven and earth, everlasting life that fadeth not, along with the sweetness and the joyousness of paradise; where they shall have a vast abundance, a great unspeakable fulness of every good thing; lack and want alone of evil, which there is weak and powerless; there the holy and righteous shall shine amid the angelic dignity and brilliancy like the sun in the heavenly kingdom; there will be the peaceful union of both Churches, the terrestrial and the heavenly; where there shall be the unity that is nobler than every unity—the unity of the noble, Almighty Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We implore the mercy of the high King, that we may all attain that unity, deserve it, and dwell therein, for ever and ever.

Amen.

[The following is the Latin text :—]

“ Qui mille hostias in holoca[us]tum obtulit super illud altare in Gabaon. Apparuitque ei Dominus per somnium nocte, dicens : postula quod uis ut dem tibi. Et ait Salamon : dabis ergo seruo tuo^[suu] cor docibile, ut iudicare possit populum tuum et discernere inter bonum et malum. Et dixit Dominus Salamoni : quia postulasti uerbum, ecce feci tibi secundum sermones tuos, et dedi tibi cor sapiens et intelligens in tantum inter bonum et malum ut nullus ante [te] tui similis fuerit nec post te resurrecturus sit. Sed haec quae non postulasti dedi tibi, diuitias scilicet et gloriam, ut nemo fuerit similis tibi in cunctis retro diebus ” [3 Kings iii. 4].

Hic ergo, dum per sapientiam suam rerum cunctarum naturam cognosceret, de cunctis naturaliter disputauit ; et ad hominem in pueritia et in iuuentute et in senectute docendum tria uolumina edidit, Parabolas, Ecclesiasten, Canticum Canticorum. In Parabolis ergo Salamonis hoc testimonium legitur, cum placuerint, &c. Uiae hic opera intelliguntur quibus humana uita transigitur. Non autem sine ratione uita humana uiae assimilatur^[mal] ; uia namque aliquando recta, aliquando obliqua, aliquando alta, aliquando ima, aliquando lata, aliquando angusta ; sic et uita humana recta in operibus bonis, obliqua in malis, alta in spe eternorum, ima in desperatione, lata in uoluntate carnali ; de qua dicitur :—“ lata est uia quae ducit ad perditionem, angusta in mandatis Dei implendis ” ; de qua dicitur :—“ arcta est uia quae ducit ad atria uitae.”

Uiae ergo iusti hominis sunt actus eius quibus placet, ut psalmista ait :—“ utinam dirigantur uiae meae ad custodiendas iustificationes tuas ” [Ps. cxviii. 5] : cui conuenit quod hic dicitur, cum placuerint, &c. Hominis communiter ait, non specialiter ; non est enim personarum acceptio apud Deum : quicumque placuerit Domino, inimicos quoque eius conuertet ad pacem ; quando autem quisque Domino displicuerit, tunc etiam amici eius inimici efficiuntur ; sicut Dauid testatur, dicens, “ amici mei et proximi mei aduersus me appropinquauerunt et steterunt ; et qui iuxta me erant de [longe] steterunt ” [Ps. xxxvii. 12].

Omnis autem creatura, siue uitalis siue quae uita caret, ad pacem [p]lacenti Deo in uis suis [con]uertetur, excepto diabolo, qui semper iustis inimicus perseuerat. Denique Dauid in operibus suis placuit Deo, [et] diuina uoce audire meruit, “non auferetur de te uir coram mé, qui sedeat super tronum^[im] Israel.” Et alibi dictum est ei, “de fructu uentris tui ponam super sedem tuam” [Ps. cxxxi. 11]. Saul autem, quia diuinae legis transgressor erat, hoc dictum a Samuele propheta audiuit:—“Stulte egisti, nec custod[i]isti mandata Domini Dei tui quae praecepit tibi: quod si non fecisses, iam nunc praeparasset Dominus regnum tuum super Israel in sempiternum^[am], sed nequaquam ultra regnum tuum consurget.” Denique quia placuerunt Domino uiae Danielis et Trium Puerorum, inimicós eorum qui in ignem uel ad bestias^[bot] miserunt, conuertit ad pacem. Et populus Israel cum diuinae legis mandata custodiret nullam persecutionem patiebatur^[f], sed unus eorum hostium mille uiros perse[que]batur; et e contra, cum Domino displicebant, persecutionem et famem et captiuitatem patiebantur, et unus ex hostibus mille eorum persequebatur; et iterum ad Dominum conuersi, auxilium Dei liberabat eos, sicut conscriptum est:—“et clamauerunt ad Dominum cum tribularentur, et de necessitatibus eorum liberauit eos.” Cum enim homo uias actionum suarum Domino concordat, tunc uiae eius Domino placent, et ab inimicis suis liberabitur, sicut hic dicitur, cum placuerint, &c.

Sed sciendum est quod, etsi ceteris hominibus haec sententia conuenit, regibus tamen conuenientius^[ibus] pertinet; cum enim placent Domino uiae regum, tunc inimici eorum conuertuntur ad pacem; hi autem reges qui recte utuntur regni potestate, summi regis heredes sunt, quibus omnes seruire decet, sicut scriptum est:—“omnibus diebus sublimioribus subditi estote. Non est potestas nisi a Deo; quae autem sunt, a Deo ordinatae sunt. Itaque qui resistit potestati^[atio], Dei ordinationi resistit; qui autem resistunt, sibi ipsi damnationem inquirunt. Non enim sine causa rex gladium portat; Dei enim minister est et iudex in iram ei qui malum [agit]” [Rom. xiii. 1, 2, 4].

Ideo potestati subditi estóte, non solum propter metum sed propter conscientiam; quis enim in terra rege sublimior est? qui si^[se] recte regnat, nullus nisi rex caelestis superat: quia quicumque hominum peccauerit, regis reatum incurrit; rex autem si peccauerit, nulli nisi regi caelestí reus erit.

“Audi ergo, rex, praeceptum Domini et disce uias eius.” Si sub iugo illius^[sisbiugollius] uersaris, iúra potestatis adeptae moderanter exerce; noli imperáre cum íra, [sed] in tranquilló corde dispone^[ool].

Considera quia sublimitas^[mii] honorum magnitudo scelerum est; potenter enim tormenta potentes patiuntur; iudicium durissimum erit his qui praesunt [?], ut dicitur, “cui multum datur, multum ab eo quaeritur^[rat]: cui plus committitur, plus ab eo exi[gi]tur.” Quanto maior honor, tanto maius periculum: alta arbor a uentís agitatur, excelsa turris grauióri eásu procumbit, altissimi montes crebris fulminibus^[nub] feriuntur.

Si ergo rex grauia tormenta uitare uoluerit, iniquitatem declinet, misericordiam et ueritatem sequatur; scriptum est enim, “misericordia et ueritas custodiunt regem, et roborabitur elementia tronus eius”; et alibi dicitur:—“diligite ius[ti]tiam, qui iudicatis terram.”

Unde Augustinus ‘de Iustitia Regis’:—“In iustitia regis^[gre] exaltatur^[tal] solium eius, et in ueritate eius solidantur gubernacula populorum.” Iustitia regis est, neminem iniuste per potentiam opprimere, et sine personarum acceptione inter extraneum et proximum suum iúdicáre; aduenis et pupillis et uíduis defensor esse; malefacta^[pl] prohibere, et adulteria punire, impudicos et latrónes non nutrire, iniquos non ex[al]tare, impios de terra perdere, parridas et periurantes uiuere non sinere, ecclesias defendere, pauperes eleemosynis alere, patriam fortiter et iuste contra aduersarios^[rides] defende[re]. Hoc est enim per omnia in Domino assidere, prosperitatibus animum non eleuare, cuncta aduersa patienter ferre, uxorem legitima[m]^[tissiana] habere; in lege enim scriptum est, “non habebit uxores plurimas quae inclinant animum eius”: Salamón sapientissim[us] omnium regum per multas mulieres ad idolatriam et usque peruenit; fidem catholicam in Deum habere; filios suos non sinere impie [a]gere; ante horas congruas cibum non gustare:—“Uae enim terrae et plebi cuius rex puer et cuius princeps mane comedit” [Eccles. x. 16]; iustos super regní negotía constituere, senes et sap[i]entes ac prudentes et sobrios consiliarios^[solis] habere; magorum et ariolorum et pythonissarum^[ionisso] superstitionibus non intende[re]; iracundiam refrenare, impios et parridas de terra perdere, sicut scriptum est:—“Non miserearis omnibus qui operantur iniquitatem” [Ps. lviii. 6].

Quia qui percutit malos et occidit pessimos in eo quod mali sunt, et habet uasa interfectionis ut percutiat pessimos, minister Dei est.

Homicidás enim et sacrilegos punire non est effusio sanguinis sed ministratio legis. Qui enim non occidit latronem, ipse premit inopem [et] mortificat animas quae uiuunt. Maledictus est etenim qui prohibet^[perib] gladium suum a sanguine peccatoris, quia non est crudelis qui crudelés iugulat, nocet bonis qui malis parcet; quae est ista bonitas, uni parcere et omnes in discrimen adducere? polluitur^[pu] enim populus uno peccante. Bonus enim medicus uni membró parcere non uult, ut membris omnibus pareat. Qui uero reg[n]um secundum hanc regulam diuinae legis non dispensant, multas minimorum aduersitates impii tolerant^[do]. Ideirco enim saepe pax populorum rumpitur, et offenticula de regno suscitantur, terrarum quoque fructus diminuuntur, et se[r]uiti[a] populorum praepediuntur; multi et uarií dolorés prosperitatem regni inficiunt: carorum et ceterorum mortes tristitiam conferunt, hostium incursus prouincias undique uastant; bestiae armentorum et pecorum greges dilacerant, tempestas aeris conturbat fecunditatem terrae, et maris ministeria prohibentur; et aliquando fulminum ictus segetes et arborum flores et pampinos exurunt. Super omnia regis iniustitia non solum praesentis imperii pacem fuscet, sed etiam filios suos et nepotes ne post se regni hereditatem teneant impedit. Nam propter piaculum Salamonis^[psalm], regnum domus Israel de manibus eius filiorumque Dominus dispersit. Et propter iustitiam Dauid regis lucernam de semine eius semper reliquit in Ierusalem.

Rex uero iustitiam sequatur, iniquitatem declinet, superbire desinat[t]. Breuis est enim huius uitae felicitas, modica est huius saeculi potestas, caduca est et fragilis et temporalis ista potentia. Dic, ubi sunt reges qui fuerunt ante te? ubi principes, ubi imperatores, ubi diuites mundi? quasi umbra transierunt, et uelut somnium euanuerunt, quaeruntur et non sunt; unde Dauid:—"Vidi impium superexaltatum et eleuatum sicut cedros Libani^[B]; et transiui, et ecce non erat; et quaesiui eum et non est inuentus locus eius." Sciatur ergo rex potentiam suam esse transitoriam; sciatur semet ipsum si non recte regnabit multa tormenta passurum^[G]; quia sicut in trono hominum primus constitutus est, sic et in poenis suis [si] iustitiam non fecerit primatum habiturus sit. Omnes namque quoscumque peccatores sub se in praesenti habuit, supra se modo plagali in illa futura poena habebit. Si autem rex secundum hanc regulam in suo regno uixerit, pax est populo, tutamentum^[tut] patriae, munimentum gentis, cura lang[u]orum, terrae fecunditas, solatium pauperum, hereditas filiorum, immunitas^[man] est plebis, ga[u]diū est hominum, serenitas maris, temperies aeris, et sibimet ipsi spes futurae beatitudinis^[cet], in saecula saeculorum, amen.

Superbi autem reges, qui non recte sed crudeliter plebes premunt, superbi regis (.i. diaboli) sunt heredes, de quo dicitur, “ipse est rex super uniuersos filios superbiae”; quibus in die iudici[i] caelestis rex dicit:—discedite a me, maledicti, in ignem eternum qui praeparatus est diabolo et angelis eius; ubi erit fletus et stridor dentium; ubi amaritudo sine dulcedine, obscuritas sine lumine; ubi dolor et gemitus; ubi desperatio et tribulatio; ubi diuersa genera poenarum quae nullus fari potest; ubi erunt grauia tormenta poenarum; ubi erit esuries et sitis; ubi erit frigus et nuditas; ubi erit mors sine uita; ubi erunt lacrimae ignitae; ubi erunt uultus demonici; ubi erit eternitas poenarum; ubi erit fletus oculorum; ubi erit sitis labiorum; ubi erit cohabitatio demonum; ubi poena sine fine; ubi erunt tenebrae sine luce; ubi nulla consolatio est; ubi nihil speratur nisi poena perpetua; ubi mors ab impijs regibus optatur, et non datur; ubi omne malum abundabit, et ubi omne bonum non apparebit.

Iusti uero reges in illud caeleste regnum uocabuntur; ubi absterget Deus lacrimas ab oculis eorum; ubi uita sine morte, gaudium sine tristitia, iuuentus sine senectute, pax sine discordia, regnum sine [c]ommutatione^[omo], exultatio sine fine; ubi claritas angelorum; ubi uita perennis^[rhen], ubi paradisu dulcis; ubi omne bonum abundabit, et nullum malum erit; ubi sancti fulgebunt sicut sol in regno patris eorum; ubi unitas utriusque ecclesiae; ubi unitas summae sanctae trinita[ti]s, Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, in saecula saeculorum. Amen.

RIDING SUNDAY.

[As the following are nearly literal renderings of Latin text, it is unnecessary to add any English version. I have occasionally condensed in English the connecting Irish passages that are interspersed.]

“ [Et] cum appropinquassent Ierusalymis et uenissent Bethfage ad montem Oliueti, tunc Iesus misit duos discipulos, et dicit illis: ite in castellum quod contra uos est, et statim inuenietis asinam alligatam et pullum cum ea, soluite et adducite mihi; et si quis uobis aliquid dixerit, dicite quia Dominus his opus habet, et confestim dimittet^[id est] eos. Hoc autem totum factum est ut adimpleretur quod dictum est per prophetam^[porrh] dicentem^[tum]: dicite filiae Sión, ecce rex tuus uenit tibi mansuetus et sedens super asinam et pullum filium subingalis. Euntes autem discipuli fecerunt sicut praecepit illis Iesus; et adduxerunt asinam et pullum, et imposuerunt super eos uestimenta sua et eum desuper sedere fecerunt. Plurimae autem turbae strauerunt uestimenta sua in uia, alii autem caedebant ramos de arboribus et sternebant in uia. Turbae autem quae praecedebant et quae sequebantur clamabant dicentes, osanna filii Dauid, benedictus qui uenit in nomine Domini, osanna in excelsis. Et cum intrasset Ierosolymam, commota est uniuersa ciuitas dicens, quis est hic? populi autem dicebant, hic est Iesus propheta a Nazareth Galilaeae. Et intrauit Iesus in templum, et eiiciebat omnes uendentes et ementes commercia sua in templó, et mensas nummulariorum et cathedras uendentium columbas euertit. Et dicit eis: scriptum est, quia domus mea domus orationis uocabitur, uos autem fecistis eam speluncam^[o] latronum. Et accesserunt ad eum caeci et claudi in templo; et sanauit eos” [Matt. xxi. 1–14].

Matthew, the son of Alpheus, the Hebrew sage, the twelfth apostle whom Jesus chose in the order of the apostles, the fourth evangelist who wrote the Lord's Gospel, wrote this holy lesson, which tells of the royal entrance Jesus made into Jerusalem on the day corresponding to the present Sunday; and of the cleansing and of the expulsion He made in the temple after His entry; and of the miracles He did in healing people of every disease in the temple and outside.

As to the harmony and connexion of sense in this lesson, it is a passage in continuation of the context in Matthew, which runs thus:—“et egredientibus eis ab Ierico, secutae sunt eum turbae multae et ecce duo caeci sedentes secus uiam audierunt quia Iesus transiret, et clamauerunt, dicentes: miserere^[recri] nostri, fili Dauid. Et stetit Iesus, et uocauit eos, et ait: quid uultis ut faciam uobis? Dicunt ei: ut aperiantur oculi nostri. Misertus est eorum Iesus, et tetigit oculos eorum; et confestim uiderunt, et secuti sunt eum” [Matt. xx. 29].

Appropinquante tempore passionis, appropinquare uoluit Dominus loco passionis, ut per hoc cunctis intimaret quia non inu[i]tus mortem sed sua sponte subiret. Et uenissent Bethfage ad monte[m] Oliveti: Bethfage est quidam uiculus sacerdotum in monte Oliueti situs. Tunc Iesus misit duos discipulos: aptus^[apcri] numerus est, quia sicut uocantur ita bini mittuntur. Et ait illis, ite in castellum quod contra uos est: castellum dicit Mariae et Marthae^[riæ], quod plerumque hoc nomine euangelium designat, ut dicitur, ‘erat autem quidam lang[u]ens Lazarus nomine, de castello Mariae^[airæ] et Marthae.’ Et statim inuenietis asinam alligatam et pullum cum ea: Iesus per praescientiam spiritus sancti intellexit quod inueniretur asina, et quod alligata esset, et quod duum animalium numerus inueniretur, quodque dimitt[er]entur. Et si quis uobis aliquid dixerit, dicite quia Dominus his opus habet, et confestim dimittet eos: aut ea potentia qua Dominus erat contra quam nullus resistere ualet, aut quadam familiari fiducia haec dicit.’ Hoc autem totum factum est, ut adimpleretur quod dictum est per prophetam dicentem, dicite filiae Sion, ecce rex tuus uenit tibi mansuetus et sedens super asinam et pullum filium^[plim] subiugalis^[sigal]: in Zacharia^[camr] quidem, uno^[nus] ex Duodecim, haec propheta scripta^[tum] est; filia autem Sion Ierusalem dicitur, quod in latere eius aquilonali erat sita, ut dicitur, ‘Monti Sion, lateribus aquilonis, ciuitas regis magni’ [Ps. xlvi. 3]. Euntes autem discipuli fecerunt sicut praecepit eis Iesus, et adduxerunt asinam et pullum, et imposuerunt super eos uestimenta sua; ardens amor discipulorum^[sipula] hic ostenditur, quod non solum impleuerunt quod imperatum est illis

sed etiam per oboedientiae voluntatem addiderunt, sua imponentes uestimenta, ut Iesus mollius sederet. Super utrumque animal sedisse Matthaeus^[ateu] ostendit, cum non pro lassitudine uel spatio itineris haec animalia adducta sunt, sed ut figuram exprimerent; quem sensum^[sinis] probat Zacharias in supra proposito testimonio, dicens, 'sedens super asinam et pullum.' Haec autem animalia a Salvatore retro ducta sunt dominis suis, ut in euangelio secundum Ebraeos legitur. Plurimae autem turbae strauerunt uestimenta sua in uia, .i. turbae quae uenerunt ab Iericho et Bethania, et secutae fuerant Iesum. Alii autem caedebant ramos de arboribus et sternerant in uia: id est, turbae quae uenerant obuiam ei ab Ierusalem, ut uiderent Lazarum quem suscitauit Iesus a mortuis, quia audierant eum fecisse hoc signum, non solum pro honore hoc faciebant, sed ne fieret obstaculum^[op] in uia, et aequum esset iter. Turbae autem quae praecedebant et quae sequebantur, clamabant dicentes, osanna fili Dauid, benedictus qui uenit in nomine D[omini], o[sanna] in [excelsis]: ac si dicerent, saluos fac nos, fili Dauid, in his regionibus in quibus pater tuus regnabat .i. Dauid; uel, sicut infirmos uallium Galilaeae sanasti, ita saluos fac nos in excelsis montibus Iudae. Quis uero regum uel principum^[pium] terrae cum tanto honore et gloria in suam unquam uenerat ciuitatem? Et haec est causa quae commotauit ciuitatem, ut hic subditur; et cum intrasset Ierosolymam, commota est uniuersa ciuitas: ciuitatem pro habitatoribus dicit; id est, sacerdotes et Leuitae et Pharisaei commotati sunt, non pro ignorantia personae, sed pro inuidia et pro admiratione tanti honoris ab eis despecti. Dicentes, quis est hic? quasi dixissent, nonne hic est filius^[os] Iosep? Populi autem dicebant, hic est Iesus propheta a Nazareth Galilaeae: apta responsio est, quia Iesus uere propheta erat a quo omnes prophetae. A Galilaea: quia ibi educatus est. Et intrauit Iesus in templum: hoc est, in atria quae erant circa templum. In his namque inuenit Iesus hoc die uendentes et ementes oues et boues et columbas, hosque cum suis mercenariis^[cinaris] [mercaturis?] eliminauit a templo. Deinde hic sequitur, et eiecit omnes uendentes et ementes in templo, et mensas nummulariorum et cathedras uendentium columbas euertit: haec omnia ideo fecit ut Iudaei scirent eum ui non potuisse crucifigi^[ce]. Hoc est maximum^[imultus] signorum Iesu, quod unus homo et illo tempore contemptibilis ad unius flagelli uerbera

tantam potuisset efficere multitudinem mensasque subuertere et cathedras confringere. Igneum autem quiddam et sidereum ex oculis eius radiabat^[iebj], et diuinitatis maiestas lucebat in facie^[pa]. Hoc autem ter a Domino factum est; id est, in hac die dominica, ut Matthaeus^[athe] hic narrat; et in sequenti die, ut in Marco legimus; et in tertio anno ante passionem suam, ut in Iohanne legimus. Oves et boues et columbae ad hoc emebantur, ut statim offerrentur in templo. Numularii ad hoc sedebant ad mensas, ut inter emptores et uenditores hostiarum prompta esset pecuniae taxatio; uidebantur ergo licite in templo uendi quae ob hoc emebantur ut in eodem templo offerrentur Domino. Sed nolens ipse Dominus aliquid in domo sua terrenae negotiationis, depulit negotiatores iniustos, et foras omnes simul cum his quae negoti[a]bantur eiecit. Quid ergo fratres putatis faceret Dominus, si rixis dissidentes^[esi], fabulis nacantes^[ten], si risu dissolutos^[esolutas], uel quolibet^[obliue] alio scelere reperiret irreti[t]os, quando qui hostias quae sibi immolarentur ementes in templo uidit et eliminare festinauit? Istiusmodi ergo Dominus cernens in domo patris sui negot[i]ationem spiritu concitatus, iuxta quod scriptum est, zelus domus tuae comedit me, fecit flagellum ex funiculis, et tantam hominum multitudinem eiecit de templo. Et dicit eis, scriptum est, quia domus mea domus orationis uocabitur, nos autem fecistis eam speluncam^[lo] latronum; id est, uos latrones et stulti fecistis eam domum mercandi, qui luera de religione secuti estis; et non tam cultus Dei quam negot[i]ationis occasio est; nolite facere domum patris mei domum negot[i]ationis. Et accesserunt ad eum caeci et claudi in templo, et sanauit^[aau] eos: caecis oculos, claudisque pedes donauit Iesus, ut, quid in templo Dei faciendum sit, ostenderet.

Haec Saluatoris equitatio figurata est quondam quando Zoro[ba]bel et Iesus filius Iosadach [Iosedec, Agg. 1, 12], Cyro permitte, cum equitatu Ierosolymam uenerunt. Esdras^[sstr] quoque et Ne[he]mias [cum] turbis in figuram huius aduentus Ierosolymam uenerunt. Prophetatum quoque a Za[cha]ria propheta, sicut Matthaeus hic dicit, ecce rex tuus uenit tibi mansuetus et selens super asinam et pullum filium subiugalis.

Haec lectio habet et spiritualem sensum ad Christum et ad

ecclesiam pertinentem. Bethfage, quod interpretatur domus maxillarum, signat ecclesiam in qua ruminantur sacra mysteria scripturarum. Duo discipuli, signant duas leges, .i. Uetus et Nouum [Testamentum]; castellum, signat mundum; postquam ergo ordinauit Iesus ecclesiam et eam sibi consecrauit, tunc misit per eam duas leges .i. Uetus et Nouum Testamentum, in mundum; et id signant^[a^u] duo discipuli quibus dixit, ite in castellum. Asina alligata, signat populum Iudaeorum littera legis et peccatis alligatum; pullus, signat populum gentilium falsis artibus et uitiiis uinctum. Et si quis uobis aliquid dixerit .i. si qua philosophorum^[p^h] scientia, si qua doctrina haereticorum, si qua ars falsa gentilium prohibuerit his legibus, eas prohibere non ualebant. Euntes autem discipuli fecerunt sicut praecepit illis Iesus; et adduxerunt asinam et pullum cum ea; id est, istae leges in mundum procedentes, soluerunt duos populos littera legis et cultura idolorum^[id^u], et adduxerunt ad Iesum per baptismum et fidem. Plurimae autem turbae strauerunt uestimenta sua in uia, signant populum gentilium, qui derelicta idolorum^[id^u] cultura sequi[tur] Iesum. Alii autem caedebant ramos de arboribus, signant populum Iudaeorum, qui exempla prophetarum et patriarchum sibi proponit. Turbae autem quae praecedebant, signant populum ante euangelium; et quae sequebantur, designant populum post euangelium; hi duo clamant ad Iesum confitentes se a filio Dei esse saluandos. Et intrauit Iesus in templum, id est, in ecclesiam. Uidentes, signant Iudaeos Christum uidentes et negantes; ementes, id est, gentiles qui idolorum^[id^u] emunt figuras; numularii^[a^u], id est, haeretici doctrina[m] ad usuram^[ad^usam] dantes; uidentes columbas .i. schismaticos unitatem ecclesiae scindentes. Et dixit eis, domus meu domus orationis uocabitur, quasi dixisset^[xisise], O Iudaei et Gentiles, haeretici schismatici et falsi fratres, lucusque polluistis^[p^u] et ecclesiam meam, post autem non. Et accesserunt ad eum caeci, signant populum Gentilium, qui nec rectam uiam euangelii uiderat, in incredulitate manens; claudi, designant populum Iud[ae]orum, qui uiam legis uidebat; hi ambo processerunt ad Iesum in ecclesiam, et sanauit eos per baptismum et fidem.

Hic est sensus huius lectionis spiritualis.

Haec lectio habet et moralem sensum. Bethfage, domus oris ual-

lium interpretatur, signat unumquemque humilem^[iein] in aduentu Christi; duo discipuli, designant binas uirtutes; castellum, signat hominem qui a philosophis^[phil] 'minor mundus' appellatur. Cum ergo uidet Iesus hominem humilem et 'tremement sermones suos,' tunc mittit in eum quatuor uirtutés, prudentiam temperantiam fortitudinem iusti^[ti]am. Asina alligata^[ta], exprimit carnem desideríis subditam et aduersantem spiritui; pullus, signat spiritum belló carnis afflictum. ¶ Et si quis uobis aliquid dixerit .i. si his uirtutibus uitia restiterint^[te], auxiliante gratia Spiritus sancti istae superabunt. ¶ Euntes autem discipuli .i. illae uirtutés in hominem procedentes soluunt^[nu] corpus et animam octo principalibus uitíis. Plurimae autem turbae, signant ueterem hominem qui derelictis ueteribus factis sequitur Iesum. Alii autem caedebant ra[mos] de [arboribus], designant iustum^[uum] hominem qui caedit sibi altas uirtutes et in noua uita accipit Iesum. Quae praecedebant, signant exteriorem hominem; quae sequebantur, designant interiorem hominem. Hi duo clamant ad Iesum, gratias agentes Deo. Intrauit Iesus in templum, exprimit homini cum sit templum Dei. Et eiecit mensas numulariorum, id est, Domino ad nos ueniente, eiecit a nobis conscientiam prauam; "de corde enim exeunt cogitationes^[ta] malae" [Matth. xv. 19]. Et cathedras uendentium columbas: columbas uendere est impositionem manus qua spiritus sanctus datur non ad uitae meritum sed ad pecuniam^[uum] dare; hi columbas uendunt, qui gradús accipiunt ut cathedras temporales teneant; uendunt boves, qui uerbum euangelií^[gii] non diuino amore sed terreni quaestús intuitu audientibus impendunt; uendunt oues, qui gratia humanae laudis opera pietatis impendunt. Sic ergo constituit Dominus praesentem ecclesiam, donec ad eam uisitandam in secundo aduentu ueniat, ut ab ea expellat Iúdaeos Gentiles haereticós schismaticos et prauos episcopós et presbyteros^[p] et diaconos et praeceptores. Et dicit eis, domus mea domus orationis uocabitur; quasi dixisset, lucusque maculastis ecclesiam, post autem non. Et accesserunt ad eum caeci et claudi: apertos caeco oculos claudoque pedes donat Iesus, quando quae fac[i]enda sunt uidet, et ea implere non negligit^[eg].

Hic est morális sensus huius lectionis.

Iste ergo dominicus dies in quo haec omnia quae narrat Matthaeus^[athe] fecit Iesus, uenerabilis est in ecclesia Dei, et sedens Iesus his animalibus nomen accepit. [!] Quis tam stolidus ingenio et durus corde u[t] ad haec omnia non mo[u]eatur, nisi qui uita humana decipitur? Quid est ergo uita humana nisi uapor ad modicum apparens et fumes euanescens? O uita humana, quantos excaecasti, quantos perdidisti, dulcis stultis, amara sapientibus! Qui te amant, non te sciunt; qui te non amant, ipsi te intelligunt.

Fratres ergo carissimi, unusquisque uideat ne sit in uita humana caecus et claudus; quia qui in hac uita caecus et claudus est, et nec uiam uirtutum uidet, et in ea ambulare tardat, post hanc uitam mittetur in tenebras exteriores; ubi ligabuntur ei manus et pedes, id est, facultas omnis operandi ei auferetur;—qui uero caecus^[sus] et claudus non est, et summa[m] uirtutum uiam uidet et in ea incedere non cessat, ibit de uirtute in uirtutem, ubi ‘uidebitur Deus Deorum in Sion’ [Ps. lxxxiii. 8], et Deum facie^[iæ] ad faciem sicuti^[ici] est uidebit. Quae uisio summae unitatis et trinitatis, Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, summum praemium promittitur iustis.

FASTING AND TEMPTATION OF CHRIST IN THE DESERT.

“Tunc Iesus ductus est in desertum a Spiritu, ut temptaretur a diabolo. Et cum ieiunasset quadraginta diebus et quadraginta noctibus^[ipu], postea esuríit. Et accedens temptator ad eum, dixit ei: si filius Dei es, dic^[doc] ut lapides isti panes fiant. Qui respondens dixit ei: scriptum est, non in pane uiuit homo, sed in omni uerbo quod procedit de ore Dei. Tunc assumpsit eum diabolus^[bu] in sanctam ciuitatem et statuit supra pin[n]aculum. Et dixit ei: si filius Dei es, mitte te deorsum; scriptum est enim: quoniam angelis suis mandauit de te, ut custodiant te in omnibus uis^[uis] tuis, et in manibus portabunt te ne forte offendas ad lapidem pedem tuum^[am]. Ait illi Iesus: iterum scriptum est, non temptabis Dominum Deum tuum. Et iterum assumpsit^[aimspit] eum diabolus in montem excelsum ualde: et ostendit ei omnia regna mundi et gloriam eorum. Et dixit illi: haec omnia tibi dabo, si cadens adoraueris mé. Tunc dicit ei Iesus: uade retro^[rat] Satanas; scriptum est enim, Dominum Deum tuum adorabis et illi soli seruiēs. Tunc reliquit eum diabolus; et ecce angeli accesserunt^[ert], et ministrabant ei” [Matth. iv. 1-11].

Matthew, the son of Alpheus, the celebrated excellent sage of the Hebrews, wrote this holy lesson, telling of the noble and venerable deed that is preached on this day; how Jesus Christ, Son of the living God and Saviour of all the seed of Adam, went into the desert of the river Jordan, and fasted forty days and forty nights; and how He there fought a battle against the devil at the end of His fast and abstinence.

Now as to the unity and harmony of this lesson, it is a continuation of the context of Matthew's Gospel where it tells of His baptism in the words, baptizatus autem Iesus confestim ascendit de aqua [Matt. iii. 16]; so that it is just after this passage, in reference to the baptism of the Son of God, that Matthew wrote this holy lesson, telling of the temptation of Christ in the desert, where he says: tunc Iesus ductus est in desertum, &c.

Ductus est autem, non inuitus aut captiuus, sed ex uoluntate pugnandi; ductus tamen contra uoluntatem carnis in desertum, sed uoluntate animi. In desertum: tribus autem causis in desertum ductus est;—prima causa, ut in deserto quaer[er]etur quod in deserto amissum est; secunda, ut ubi uicit diabolus^[bu] hominem, ibi uinceretur; tertia, ut ubi homo cecidit, ibi per hominem resurgeret. A spiritu: haut dubium a Spiritu Sancto, prout Lucas ait, ‘Iesus plenus a Spiritu Sancto [age]batur in desertum’. Ut temptaretur a diabolo: iustum quippe erat, ut temptationes nostras iste tenta[tus] uinceret, qui nostram mortem uenerat sua morte superare. Et cum ieiunasset, &c.: ideo autem quadraginta diebus et quadraginta noctibus^[ipu] ieiunauit, ne discreparet a lege et prophetia, ut ipse ait, ‘non ueni soluere^[al] legem sed adimplere’; Moyses enim, ut legem acciperet secundo, diebus quadraginta ieiunauit; et Heliás in deserto quadraginta diebus ieiunauit; ipse quoque Auctor hominum, ad homines ueniens, quadraginta diebus ieiunauit et nullum omnino cibum sumpsit;—nos quoque in quantum possimus animó, quadagesimae tempore carnem nostram per abstinentiam affligere debemus. Postea esuriuit: ideo Iesus consummatis ieiunii diebus esuriuit, ne a^[o] temptando pauens hostis aufugeret^[af]. Et accedens temptator ad eum, dixit ei, ‘si filius Dei es’: quid dubitat dicendo, ‘si filius Dei es’? Putauit hominem esse, in natiuitate ex Maria; putauit Deum esse, in angelis glorificantibus eum^[am], ‘gloria in excelsis Deo, et i. [t.] p. h.’ Putauit hominem esse, fugiens in Egyptum; putauit Deum esse, in Spiritu descendente super eum. Aestimauit^[est] hominem esse, in deserto esurientem, dicendo sic, ‘dic ut lapides isti panes fiant’; non dixit ‘fac,’ sed ‘dic,’ nouit enim quia facere Dei dicere est; quasi dixisset, si per uerbum omnia de nihilo et[iam] creasti, non difficile^[ef] tibi est, de lapidibus istis panes [facere]. Ideo ‘panes’ dixit quia panis^[es] congruit esurienti^[eni]; ut scriptum est, ‘panis cor^[pairsca] hominis confirmat.’ Qui respondens dixit ei, ‘non in pane solo uiuit homo sed in omni uerbo quod procedit de ore Dei’: si quis ergo non uescitur uerbo Dei, ille non uiuit. Ideo autem sic respondit Iesus, dicens &c., quia propositum erat ei humilitate diabolum uincere, non potentia. Tunc assumpsit eum diabolus in sanctam ciuitatem: ista assumptio non imbecillitate Dei uenit, sed de inimici superbia, qui uoluntatem Saluatoris necessitatem putat. In sanctam ciuitatem: id est, in Ierusalem, ut Lucas dixit, ‘et eduxit illum in Ierusalem, et statuit eum supra pinnaculum templi,’ ut quem fame temptauerat, temptaret^[auct] et uana gloria. Pinnaculum uero templi, sedes erat doctorum in medio templi tabulato, quindecim a terra cubitis. Et dixit ei, ‘si filius Dei es, mitte te deorsum’: ‘mitte te’ inquit, et non praecipitauit; persuadere enim malum potest bene diabolus, et praecipitare non potest. Hinc dicit: scriptum est, ‘quoniam angelis suis mandauit de te, ut cus[todiant] te in ui[is] tuis, et in manibus portabunt te. Haec prophetia non de Christo sed de quolibet uiro sancto scripta est; Christus enim angelis non indiget. Male ergo interpretatus est diabolus scripturas quando^[am] de angelorum auxilio quasi ad infirmum loquitur. De sui uero conculcatione quasi tergiuersator tacet; sequitur enim contra se, ‘super aspide[m] et basiliscum ambulabis, et conculcabis leonem et draconem.' Ait illi Iesus rursus, scriptum est, 'non temptabis Dominum Deum tuum': falsas de scripturis sagittas diaboli ueris scripturarum fra[n]git clypeis^[6c]. Dominum Deum tuum non temptabis: Deum temptare est, de suis quempiam meritis gloriari. Et iterum assumpsit eum diabolus in montem excelsum ualde: id est, in montem Oliuétí, uel figuratum^[tur]. Quid mirum si se ab illo permisisset in montem duci, qui se pertulit ietiam membris illius crucifigi^[sc]? Et ostendit ei omnia regna mundi et gloriam eorum: omnia uidelicet desiderabilia quae in auro et lapidibus pretiosis et electis uestibus continentur. Et dixit illi, haec omnia tibi dabo, si cadens adoraueris me: arrogans et superbus etiam hoc de iactantia loquitur; non quod in toto mundo habeat potestatem ut possit omnia regna dáre, cum sciamus plerisque sanctos uiros a Deo reges factos^[ra]. Si cadens, &c.: uere cadit qui diabolum adorat. Tunc dicit ei Iesus, uade retro Satanas .i. uade in ignem eternum, qui praeparatus est tibi et malis angelis tuis; uel, uade retro .i. ad tempora passionis uel Antichristi. Tunc reliquit eum temptator, et ecce angeli accesserunt et ministrabant ei: praecedit temptatio, ut subsequatur uictoria; angeli ministrabant, ut uictoris dignitas comprobetur.

Haec temptatio figurata est in ueteri lege^[si].

Haec iuxta litteram dicta sunt. Ceterum iuxta spiritualementiam, Iesus ductus est in desertum: signat ecclesiam perfectam post baptismum^[auptismam] in desertum a uitíis pergentem: "ecce elongauit fugiens et mansi in solitudine" [Ps. liv. 8]. Ut temptaretur a diabolo: signat pugnam diaboli in ecclesia. Dic ut lapides isti panes fiant: signat doctrinam haereticorum duram et inutilem sine fructu boni operis. Non in páne solo uiuit homo: signat quod non in littera sola sanctae scripturae^[uir] sed in eius sensu in ecclesia utendum est. Et ecce angeli accesserunt et ministrabant ei: signat quia, quando diaboli dominatus et malorum omnium ab ecclesia cessat, tunc angelorum ministratio illi oritur. Christus auxilium ecclesiae adest.

Haec iuxta mysticum sensum dicta.

De hoc autem Quadragesimali tempore aliud potest intelligi sacramentum; a praesenti etenim die usque ad paschalis sollemnitatis gaudia sex hebdomadae fiunt; quarum uidelicet dies quadraginta et duo fiunt, ex^[ec] quibus dum sex^[rex] dies dominici abstinentiae subtrahuntur, non plus in abstinentia quam triginta et sex dies remanent. Dum nero per trecentos sexaginta quinque dies annus ducitur, nos autem per triginta sex dies affligimur, quasi anni nostri decimas damus. Unde fratres carissimi, sicut offerre Deo decimas rerum in lege iubemur, ita ei offerre contendite et decimas dierum: unusquisque, in quantum uirtus suppetit, carnem suam maceret, et eius desideria affligat, et concupiscentias turpes^[b] interficiat^[ant]. Caro laeta nos trahit ad culpam, afflicta reducit ad ueniam. Auctor enim mortis nostrae per fructum ligni uetiti uitae praecepta transgressus est; qui ergo a paradisi gaudiis per cibum^[p] cecidimus, ad haec in quantum possimus per abstinentiam resurgamus. Sed nemo sibi^[serbi] eandem abstinentiam solam credat^[redd] posse sufficere, cum per prophetam Dominus ait, “nonne hoc est ieiunium quod magis elegi? dicit Dominus, frange esurienti panem tuum, et egenós^[gmo] uagósque induc in domum tuam; et cum uideris nudum, cooperi eum, et carnem tuam ne despexeris” [Is. lviii. 6]. Illud ergo ieiunium Deus approbat, quod ad eius oculos munus eleemosynae leuat, quod cum pro[x]imi dilectione agitur, quod ex pietate conditur. Hoc ergo quod tibi subtrahis, alteri largire; ut unde tua caro affligatur, inde indige[n]s proximi caro reparetur. Bonum est ieiunare, fratres, sed melius est eleemosynam dare. Si aliquis utrumque potest, duo bona sunt; si uero non potest, melius est eleemosynam dare. Si enim non possibilitas fuerit ieiunandi, eleemosyna sufficit sine ieiunio; eleemosyna namque sine ieiunio bonum est, ieiunium uero sine eleemosyna nullum bonum est, nisi aliquis sit pauper ut non habeat omnino quod tribuat; illi uero qui non habuerit, sufficit ei bona uoluntas.

Rogo nos, fratres, et admoneo ut in isto sacratissimo tempore exceptis dominicis diebus nullus prandere praesumat nisi quem infirmitas cogat; qui[a] aliis diébus ieiunare aut remedium aut praemium est, in quadragesimali uero tempore non ieiunare si potest^[b] peccatum est; et si alius infirmus est, qui ieiunare non praeualet, illós qui ieiúnare praeualet ad prandium non inuitet. Sufficit enim illi^[lim] quod ieiunare non praeualet; et magis cum suspirió^[nio] et animi dolore manducet, pro eo quod aliis abstinentibus ille abstinére non potest. Et cum ieiunare non potest, amplius erogare debet pauperibus ut peccata, quae ieiunando^(hexana) curare non possit, eleemosynas dandó redimere uale[a]t.

In paucis uero istis diebus, id est, in Quadragesimali tempore, recedant impedimenta mundi, recedat carnalis laetitia; seorsum (subintell. sit locus) uíris, seorsum feminis, ut uacent orationi ad tempus.

Sciendum est autem quod non in hoc tempore Dominus ieiunauit, sed a septimo die Iduum Iannarií usque ad decimum quintum Kal. Martii; sed tempore Constantini mutatum^(mo) est, qui congregauit episcopus trecentos decem et octo, in Nicaea^(necea) urbe Bethyniae^(ethi) ad damnationem Arrianae haereseos^(heredis). Tribus autem causis mutauerunt^(mo) Quadragesimam de loco suo, ac Paschae iunxerat:— prima, ut nostrum ieiunium passioni Christi copularetur; secunda, ut in fine ieiunii nostri accedamus ad corpus et ad sanguinem Christi; tertia, ut ieiunantes nós inueniat^(iet) Dominus, quando iudicare uiuos ac mortuos in nouissimo páschate^(cam) ueniet; tunc redet unicuique secundum opus suum. Et ibunt impíi in ignem eternum, ubi erunt fletus et stridor dentium^(niti) et liquefactio^(saci) oculorum, ubi erit ferocitas demonum, u[bi erit] unitas diaboli et satellitum^(stae) eius, ubi erit multitudo dolorum et omnium tormentorum, ubi erit omne malum et deerit omne bonum. Iusti uero ibunt in uitam eternam, ubi erit iuuentus sine senectute, solatium sine fine, pax sine discordia, ubi neque esurient neque sitient, sed erunt sicut angeli Dei in caelo, ubi erit societas utriusque ecclesiae; ubi erit unitas summae sanctae trinitatis, Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti; in saecula saeculorum. Amen.

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

“ Prima autem die azymorum accesserunt discipuli ad Iesum dicentes: ubi uis paremus tibi comedere pascha? At Iesus dixit: ite in ciuitatem ad quemdam et dicite ei; magister dicit, tempus meum prope est, apud té facio Pascha cum discipulis meis. Et fecerunt discipuli sicut praecepit illis Iesus, et parauerunt^(ert) pascha. Uespere autem facto^(p), discumbebat cum discipulis suis duodecim. x Et edentibus illis dixit: amen, amen, dico uobis, quia unus uestrum me tradit[ur]us est. Et contristati ualde coeperunt singuli dicere: numquid^(uncq) ego sum, Domine? At ipse respondens ait: qui intingit manum mecum in parapside, hic me tradet. Filius quidem hominis uadit, sicut scriptum est de illo; uac autem homini per quem filius hominis tradetur: bonum erat ei si natus non fuisset homo ille. Respondens autem Iudas, qui tradidit eum, dixit ei: numquid^(uncq) ego sum, Rabbi? Ait illi Iesus: tu dixisti. Coenantibus autem eis, accepit Iesus panem et benedixit ac fregit deditque discipulis suis, et ait: accipite et comedite; hoc est enim corpus meum. Et accipiens calicem, gratias egit, et dedit illis, dicens: bibite ex hoc omnes; hic est enim sanguis meus noui Testamenti, qui pro multis effundetur in remissionem peccatorum. Dico autem uobis, quia non bibam de hoc genimine uitae usque in diem illum, cum illud bibam uobiscum nouum in regno patris mei” [Matth. xxvi. 17–29].

[This text is followed by the usual paragraph in Irish, giving the context, ‘scitis quia post biduum pascha fiet, et filius hominis tradetur ut crucifigatur’ [Matth. xxvi. 2], and then proceeds in alternate Latin and Irish:—]

Prima dies azymorum: decimus quartus dies primí mensis est, quando agnus immolabatur apud Iudaeos, et luna plenissima est et fermentum abi[i]citur. Ritus autem et religio azymorum unde exordium? ab eo uidelicet die quo Aegyptií filiós Israel de terra sua exire cogebant. Dicentes, ubi uis paremus tibi comedere pascha? hoc est, agnum paschalem. At Iesus dixit, ite in ciuitatem ad quemdam, .i. in Ierusalem, ut scriptum est, “festa celebrabit in loco quem elegerit dominus” [Deut. xvi. 15]. Ad quemdam: studio breuitatis non nominauit eum, et ut sciamus quia non nomina sed opera sanctificant. Et dicite ei, magister dicit, tempus meum prope est: tempus utique mortis; prope est: in quarta decima enim hoc dictum est, et in sequenti quinta decima crucifixus est

Christus. Apud té facio páscha [cum] discipulis meis. Et fecerunt^(est) discipuli sicut praecepit illis: hic notandum, quod ratio est subditorum nec addere nec minuere verba praepositorum. Et parauerunt pascha: iuxta quod in Móys[a]ica lege de agni praeparatione praeceptum est. Vespere autem facto, discumbebat Iesus [cum] discipulis suis .i. finita quarta decima, et quinta decima inchoante, ad solis occasum, iuxta legis edicta pascha comederunt. Et edentibus illis, dixit, amen dico vobis, quia unus uestrum me traditurus est: unus numero, non unus merito; unus nomine, non unus dignitate. Tunc Iudas apostolatium et episcopatum suum reliquit, secundum prophetam dicentem, “fiant dies eius pauci et episcopatum eius accipiat alter” [Ps. cviii. 8]. Et contristati ualde: duabus autem causis contristati sunt, quia Dominus tradendus esset, et quia ex eis proditor erat. Cocperunt singuli dicere, numquid ego sum, Domine? certé iam nouerant undecim apostoli quia nihil tale contra Dominum cogitarent, sed timentes fragilitatem suam plus credunt magistro quam sibi, scientes secundum Iohannem apostolum, “Deus maior est corde nostro” [1 John iii. 20]. Respondens autem ipse ait, qui intingit manum mecum in parapside, hic me tradet: O mira Domni patientia^[1]! primum dixerat, “unus uestrum me traditurus est”; sed quia perseuerat proditor in malo, manifestius arguit et tamen proprium nomen non designat. Iudas uero, ceteris contristatis et retrahentibus manum, nimia temeritate manum cum magistro mittit in parapside^[ab], ut audacia bona mentiretur conscientiam; “[cú] ti[n] etiam buccellam panis porrexero, hic [me] tradet.” Postquam autem intingerat, dedit Iudae” (cf. John xiii. 26)]. Filius quidem hominis uudit, id est, sponte a[d] crucem; uac autem homini illi per quem filius hominis tradetur: hic degradatur Iudas ab ore Saluatoris, quia non dicit uae ‘apostolo’ sed ‘homini illi’ .i. celebri homini illi in malo. Ideo dicitur uae, quia fundamentum est omnis malí in nouo Testamento, et templum diaboli, per quod impií Iudaei tradiderunt^(est) Christum in mortem. Bonum erat ei, si natus non fuisset homo ille: id est, multo melius esset ei non subsistere quam male subsistere, uel utcumque tolerabilior erat poena morientis in uulua quam quae illi post prodicionem contingat. Respondens autem Iudas qui tradidit eum, dixit ei, numquid ego sum, Rabbi? ideo interrogat, ne tacendo prodere uideretur.

Rabbi, signum incredulitatis; ceteri enim 'Domine' dixerunt, iste autem non Dominum sed magistrum uocat, quasi excusationem habeat si, Domino denegato, saltem^[im] magistrum proderet. Ait illi Iesus, tu dixisti: id est, de tuo ore te iudico, cum non sis consonans in armonia. Coenantiibus autem eis, accepit Iesus panem, et benedixit ac fregit, deditque discipulis suis: finitiae paschae ueteris Testamenti sollempn[ib]us, transit ad nouum, et pro carne agni ac sanguine sui corporis sanguinisque sacramentum statuit. Et ait, accipite et comedite, hoc est enim corpus meum: tribus autem modis corpus Christi intelligitur; proprium, quod ex Maria uirgine natum est; secundum, sancta ecclesia, cuius corpus sit Christi; tertium, sancta scriptura. Quaeritur, quare ista conuersio corporis et sanguinis Christi in panem et in uinum facta est? Non sine ratione, quia panis cor hominis confirmat, uinum uero sanguinem operatur in carne; hic ergo ad corpus Christi, illud refertur ad sanguinem; et quia, sicut panis et uinum corporalem esuriem et sitim exting[ui]t, ita panis uiuus qui de caelo descendit spirituales esuriem et sitim exting[ui]t. Deinde quaeritur, cur in hac oblatione cum uino aqua accipitur? Nec immeritò, uinum enim Christum signat, sicut ipse dixit, aqua uero populum, attestante Iohanne, "ego sum uitis uera" [Johm, xv. 1], "aquae multae populi multi sunt" [cf. Rev. xvii. 15]; quia ergo oportet fidelem populum manere in Christo, aqua uero debet misceri. Item, quaeritur, [cur] quotidie^[co] agitur quia semel Christus passus est? Ideo quia opus erat, cum quotidie peccamus, corpore et sanguine Christi quotidie mundari; et ne passio Domini obliuioni trad[er]etur. Quaeritur, quare omnis ecclesia post longa ieiunia hoc sacramentum accipit? quia post agnum ipse discipuli[s] suis panem dedit. Ideo hoc sacramentum illic post agni esum, nullo ieiunij tempore interueniente discipulis dedit, quod pascha uetus prius debuit finire, deinde nouum incipere, nos autem post graue ieiunium ad hoc terribile et admirabile corpus accedere debemus, ut ieiunando et poenitendo ueniam mereamus. Et accipiens calicem: Matthaeus^[athe] unum calicem, Lucas autem asserit duos illic fuisse calices, sed unus ad pascha uetus, alter uero ad nouum pertinet; quem hic Matthaeus^[athe] commemorat. Gratias agit: quia sine peccato pro salute^[ni] mundi passurus erat. Et dedit illis, dicens, hic est sanguis meus novi^[11] Testamenti qui pro multis effu[n]detur in remissionem peccatorum: pro multis dicit, non pro omnibus, non enim omnibus passio Christi prodest; sicut Iudae nihil profert. [In remissionem peccatorum:] non pro ubertate^[uob][?] terrae, non pro fecunditate prolis et longitudine dierum. Dico autem uobis, quia non bibam amodo de hoc genimine uitis usque in diem illum, cum illud bibam uobiscum nouum in regno patris mei: hoc dicit, quod ab hac ora coenae usque ad tempus resurrec[t]ionis, quo in regno Dei erat uenturus, unum bibiturus non esset; postea namque illum cibum^[p] potumque sumpsisse testatur apostolus Petrus, qui ait, “qui manducauimus et bibimus cum illo postquam resurrexit a mortuis” [Acts, x. 41].

“Surgit Iesus a coena, et posui[t] [u]estimenta sua; et cum accepisset linteum, praecinxit se. Deinde mittit aquam in peluem, et coepit lauare pedes discipulorum, et extergere linteo quo erat praecinctus. Uenit ergo primum ad Simonem Petrum; et dixit ei Petrus; Domine, tu mihi lauas pedes? id est, tu Deus, ego homo; tu Dominus, ego seruus; tu redemptor, ego peccator. Respondit Iesus et dixit ei: quod ego faciō nescis modo, scies autem postea. Dixit ei Petrus: non lauabis mihi pedes in eternum. Respondit ei Iesus: si non lauero pedes tuos, non habebis partem mecum. Dicit ei Simōn Petrus: Domine, non tantum pedes, sed et caput et manus. Respondit ei Iesus: qui lotus est, non indiget nisi ut pedes tantum lauet, sed est mundus totus; et uos mundi estis, sed non omnes. Sciebat enim quisnam esset qui trad[er]et eum; propterea dixit, non omnes uos estis mundi. Postquam ergo lauit Iesus pedes discipulorum suorum, accepit uestimenta sua; et cum recubisset, iterum dixit eis: scitis quid fecerim in uobis? Uos uocatis me magistrum et Dominum, et bene dicitis, sum^[suum] etenim. Si laui pedes uestros, Dominus et magister, et uos debetis alter alterius lauere pedes. Exemplum enim dedi uobis, ut quemadmodum et ego feci uobis, ita et uos faciatis aliis” [John xiii. 4–15].

Haec est historia huius lectionis. Habet et spiritualem sensum, ad Christum et ecclesiam pertinentem.

Dies azymorum: nouum Testamentum signat, ut apostolus ait, “itaque epulemur, non in fermento ueteri neque in fermento mali-t[i]ae et nequit[i]ae, sed in azymis^[axi] sinceritatis et ueritatis”

[1 Cor. v. 8]. Accesserunt discipuli ad Iesum : signat fideles credendo ad Christum accedere. Ite in ciuitatem : id est, praedicate Christum in toto mundo, ut Dauid dicit, “in omnem terram exiuit sonus eorum” [Ps. xviii. 5]. Ad quemdam : id est, ad populum Gentilem. Apud te facio pascha : quasi dixisset, ‘tibi proderit passio mea et in te corpus meum offeretur.’ Uespere autem facto discumbebat cum duodecim discipulis suis : signat lege Ueteri finita Christum in ecclesia permanere ; ut ipse ait, “ecce ego uobiscum sum omnibus diebus usque ad consummationem saeculi” [Matt. xxviii. 20]. Unus uestrum me traditurus est : signat illum qui in exemplum Iudae filium hominis tradit ; nam ille Dominum uendit qui eius amore et timore neglecto terrena pro illo et caduca diligit. Qui intingit manum mecum in parapside^[tab], hic me tradet : signat eos qui corpus Domini indigne de altari accipient. Uae autem homini illi, per quem filius hominis tradetur : id est, uae illi homini hodie et semper qui ad mensam Domini malignus accedit. Bonum erat ei si natus non fuisset ille homo : signat quod melius erat in fide non renasci quam sub imagine falsae^[p] religionis corpus Domini pollutis^[pu] tradere membris. Accipit Iesus panem, et benedixit ac fregit : signat sui corporis fractionem non sine sua sponte uenturam ; sicut alibi dicit, “potestatem habeo ponendi animam meam et iterum sumendi eam” [John, x. 18]. Et accipiens calicem, gratias egit, et dedit illis : hoc mystice dictum est ; quia sicut per panis fractionem summi corporis fracturam figurauit, ita et in diuisione calicis effusionem sui sang[u]inis designauit. Dicens, bibite ex hoc omnes : ideo Iudas non excipitur, ut nullus excommunicetur ab ecclesia donec peccatum eius clarescat. Dico autem uobis, quod non bibam amodo de hoc genimine uitis usque in diem [illum cum] illud bibam uobiscum nouum in regno Patris mei : signat Dominum nec ultra carnalibus ceremon[i]is synagogae sed sacramento sui corporis in ecclesia delectari^[dii].

Haec est spiritualis huius lectionis intelligentia.

Sciendum est autem quod duo rei sunt huius oblationis .i. qui cum fiducia accipit habens peccatum, et qui sine peccato nunquam accipit. Duo quoque sunt in hac oblatione perfecti .i. qui sedulo accipit propter honorem Domini, et qui pro humilitate et contemptu suo non accipit. Si enim in linteo^[the] uel uase sordido nemo illud mittere audet, quanto magis in corpus pollutum^[pu] ?

Tres quidem sunt hu[i]c oblationi astantes,—angeli testes, homines offerentes, Christus iudex—Gregorio testante :—quis enim fidelium potest habere dubium in ipsa immolatione ad uocem sacerdotis caelos aperiri, angelorum choros adesse, terrenaque caelestibus adiungi? Consideret ergo unusquisque seipsum, ut non cum temeritate ad hanc coenam corporis et sanguinis Domini nostri Iesu Christi accedat; ut apostolus ait, “quicumque de hoc pane^[1] et calice Domini edat et bibat indigne, reus est corporis et sang[u]inis Domini nostri Iesu Christi. Probet ergo seipsum homo, et sic de pane illó edat et de calice^[ces] bibat; qui enim manducat et bibit indigne, iudicium sibi manducat et bibit, non iudicans corpus Domini” [1 Cor. xi. 27–29] .i. non discernens a communi cibo. Si enim cum timore Dei et fletu et si[m]plicitate cordis et sanctitate corporis non accedamus ad hanc coenam corporis et sanguinis Domini nostri Iesu Christi, facit nos reos corporis ipsius et sanguinis. Si uero cum fide catholica, et opere perfecto, et dilectione Dei et proximi, et misericordia et elemosynis pauperum accedamus ad hanc coenam sanctam corporis et sanguinis Domini, sanctificabit nós ab omni inquinamento corporis et animae.

ON THE DAY OF PENTECOST.

“[C]um complerentur dies Pentecostes, erant^[ent] omnes apostoli pariter in eodem loco. Et factus est repente de caelo sonus tanquam aduenientis spiritus, et repleuit omnem domum ubi erant^[ent] apostoli sedentes. Et apparuerunt eis diuisae linguae^[ec] tanquam ignis, seditque super singulos eorum; et repleti sunt omnes Spiritu sancto, et coeperunt loqui uariis ling[u]is prout Spiritus sanctus dabat eis eloqui. Erant autem in Ierusalem habitantes Iudaei uiri religiosi ex omni natione quae sub caelo est. Facta autem hác uoce conuenit multitudo, et mente confusa est, quoniam audiebat unusquisque lingua sua illos loquentes magnalia De .

Stupebant autem omnes et mirabantur ad inuicem, dicentes : nonne ecce omnes isti qui loq[u]untur Galilaei sunt ? Et quomodo nos omnes audiu[i]mus unusquisque linguam in qua nati sumus ? Parthi et Medi et Elamitae, et qui habitant Mesopotamiam, Iudaeam, et Cappadociam^[p], Pontum et Asiam, Phrygiam^[frig], Pamphylia^[p], Aegyptum et partes Lybiae quae sunt circa Cyrenen^[ciri], et aduenae Romaní, Iudaei quoque, et proselyti, Crete[s] et Arabes ; audiuimus eos ling[u]is nostris magnalia Dei loqui. Stupebant autem omnes et mirabantur ad inuicem, dicentes : quidnam uult hoc esse ? Alii autem irridentes dicebant : quia musto repleti sunt ' [Acts ii. 1-13].

[This is followed by the usual paragraph as to the author, the evangelist Luke, and the context, ' praecepit eis Iesus, né ab Ierosolymis discederent, sed ut expectarent promissionem Patris, quam audistis, inquit, per os meum.' [Acts, i. 4.] Then [53 a 23] follows the comment :—]

Dies Pentecostes .i. quinquagesima dies a die resurrectionis. In ueteri Lege Pentecosten obseruabat populus^[tis] Dei .i. quinquagesiman^[um] diem a quarta decima die primi mensis, qua agnus apud Iudaeos immolabatur, ne legis tradit[i]o obliuioni traderetur ; in nouo autem Testamento Pentecoste[s] cepit exordium quando Christus aduentum Spiritus sancti, quem apostolis promisit, in quinquagesima die a resurrectione sua exhibuit ; et descendente Spiritu sancto super eos, illuminati sunt ita ut ling[u]is omnium gentium loquerentur magnalia Dei ; eaque de causa sollempnitatem misit in posterós.

Concordat uero haec festiuitas Euangelíi cum festiuitate Legis ; sicut enim lex in igne data est, Spiritus sanctus super apostolos hodie in igne uenit ; et sicut lex in s[u]blimi montis Sinai loco tradita est, ita Spiritus sanctus in coenaculo primitias spiritualium mysteriorum aperuit. Erant omnes .i. nullus erat absens de apostolis in die aduentus Spiritus sancti, sicut Tomas in die resurrectionis absens fuit. Pariter : quasi dixisset, ' unum cor et unum animum, unum Spiritum et unum consilium in uoluntate Dei et non in uoluntate diaboli habuerunt.' In eodem loco .i. in coenaculo, in quo Petrus et Iohannes et ceteri apostoli manserunt: numerus autem eorum qui ibi fuerunt, centum et uiginti, sicut Lucas refert. Et factus est repente de caelo sonus .i. cito uenit; gratia enim Spiritus sancti tarditatem nescit humanam. De caelo sonus: conuenit enim ut de excelsis cum sonó ueniret qui sonos docere uenerat. De caelo datur Spiritus, ut diligatur Deus; in terra datur, ut diligatur proximus. Tanquam Spiritus uehementis: quia in comparatione praecedentium uehemens merito fuisse apostolorum gratia describitur. Et repleuit totam domum: Spiritus sanctus coenaculum et habitatores illius repleuit; diues enim Spiritus sanctus in omnes qui inuocant illum. Et apparuerunt illis diuisae ling[u]ae .i. ling[u]ae quae olim iuxta turrem confusae sunt, quam aedificauerunt^[fec] filii Aadae, ut clarificarent nomen suum, siue ut ascensum haberent in caelum, siue ut refugium haberent si iterum ueniret diluuium. Tanquam ignis: quaeritur, cur Spiritus sanctus in igne apparuit? Spiritus sanctus quidem ideo in igne apparuit, quia ab omni corde quod implet, torporem frigoris excutit, et in hoc desiderium regni caelestis accendit. Quaeritur, cur Spiritus sanctus in die super apostolos uenit? Ideo quia aptum erat ut Spiritus lucidus in luce, hoc est, in die ueniret; et ideo in tertia ora, quia in tertia lege uenit—prima lex est naturalis, secunda prophetalis, tertia spiritualis,—et quia in tertia persona trinitatis est. Seditque super singulos eorum: quia sedisse regiae potestatis indicium est, uel certe quod requies eius indicatur in sanctis. Et repleti sunt omnes Spiritu sancto .i. ut alterum^[am] spiritum recusarent; quia plena uasa non recipiunt augmenta. Et coeperunt singuli loqui uariis [linguis]: ling[u]ae autem dicuntur omnes esse numero septuaginta duae, unde et Dominus discipulos secundi ordinis septuaginta duos elegit, ut praeceptorum numerus ling[u]arum numero concordaret. Talis elocutio dupliciter intelligitur; multi enim apostolos omnibus ling[u]is locutos fuisse aestimant, alii uero eos hebraica^[re] ling[u]a locutos fuisse arbitrantur, sed ita ab omnibus esse intellecta ea quae dicta sunt qua[si] singulis propria sua loquere[n]tur. Prout Spiritus sanctus dabat eloqui illis: unde Paulus ait, “diuidens singulis prout uult” [1 Cor. xii. 11]; et alibi dicit, “ Spiritus ubi uult et quando uult et quibus uult, spirat” [John iii. 8 ?]. Erant autem in Ierusalem habitantes Iudaei uiri religiosi: id est qui solita habitationis consuetu-

dine Deum colebant, et qui de longinquo adorationis causa uenerunt. Ex omni natione quae sub caelo est .i. ex omni natione Íudaeorum ; quia persecutione facta sub Antiocho^[cha] rege Graecorum Íudaei in dispersione erant omnibus paene nationibus, et in eorum prouinciis natí sunt ; unde tribus anni temporibus templum Dei petebant, id est, in pascha, et pentecoste, et scenopegia^[pi]. Facta autem hac uoce, conuenit multitudo et mente confusa est : quasi dixisset, confusa est multitudo quia ab apostolis, qui unius ling[u]ae erant, loquentibus magnalia Dei, Spiritum per sanctum ling[u]as^[ss] proprias^[oba] audierunt. Alii autem irridentes dicebant, quia musto repleti sunt : isti^[te] licet ista irridentes dicebant, tamen u[er]a testantur, quia musto spiritualis gratiae impleti sunt ; iam enim uinum nouum in utres nouos uenerat. Sicut enim haec sollemnitatis aduentus Spiritus sancti uenerabilis est in ecclesia caeli et terrae, ita aduentus eius in multis sanctae scripturae loc[is] figuratus et prophetatus^[te] est.

This advent of the Spirit on the apostles was prefigured in the fire that came from heaven on the offerings of righteous Abel, as is testified in Genesis, (the book) of the Law, where it says, ‘respexit Deus ad Abel et ad munera eius,’ when fire of God came from heaven on the offerings of Abel, for they were pleasing to God ; so, too, in the fire that came of yore on the Bush, in prefiguration of the descent of the Spirit on the apostles on this day of Pentecost ;—again, in the fiery column of old, that led the children of Israel out of the Egyptian captivity to go up into the land of promise, in prefiguration of the Holy Spirit, who summoned the apostolic people from the straits of Jewish persecution in which they were held, to go and preach to everyone in every direction ; and He invites the people of the New Testament from the darkness of sins and transgressions to the light of virtuous and goodly deeds ;—so, too, in the sevenfold candelabrum, that illumined the tabernacle of Moses, in prefiguration and foretold of the sevenfold Spirit, that illumined the Church of the Seven Orders in this seven-day festival of Pentecost ;—and in this same manner in many other places the advent of the Holy Spirit was prefigured. It was foretold by the prophets :—by David, the son of Jesse, when he said, ‘fluminis impetus laetificat ciuitatem

Dei [Ps. xl. 5], concerning that honour of the spiritual grace in which the Church rejoices;—by the prophet Joel, son of Phathuel [Salahel], when he said, ‘erit in nouissimis diebus, dicit Dominus, effundam de Spiritu meo super omnem carnem’ [Acts ii. 17], ‘the time will come, saith the Lord, when I will pour out the grace of the Holy Spirit on every holy man of faith in the Church’;—by the Author of every prophecy and of all true knowledge, Jesus Christ Himself, after His resurrection, when He said to His apostles, ‘accipietis uirtutem superuenientis Spiritus sancti’ [Acts i. 8], ‘the grace of the Holy Spirit shall come upon you.’

Haec est historia huius lectionis.

Haec lectio habet et spiritualem sensum. Quinquagesimus numerus requiem designat in aeternum; ideo autem totius quinquagesimae d[i]es post Domini resurrectionem resoluta abstinentia in sola laetitia celebrantur propter figuram futurae resurrectionis; ibi iam non labor sed requies erit et laetitia; ideoque his diebus nec genua in oratione flectuntur, nec consueta ieiunia obseruantur, unde etiam per omnia eandem in illis sollemnitate[m] Dominici diei custodimus, in qua maio[r]es nostri nec ieiunium agendum nec genua esse flectenda ob reuerentiam Dominicae resurrectionis^[eccure] tradiderunt; sed si qui monachorum uel clericorum ieiunare cupiunt, non sunt prohibendi: Paulus et Antonius et ceteri patres antiqui etiam in his diebus in heremo^[ri] leguntur abstinuisse neque abstinentiam soluisse nisi tantum die Dominico. Erant omnes pariter in eodem loco: hoc est, in ecclesia; quicumque enim Spiritu sancto adimpleri desiderant, carnis domicilium necesse est mentis contemplatione transcendant. Et apparuerunt eis diuisae ling[u]ae: signat quod sancta ecclesia per mundi terminos dilatata omnium gentium uoce locuta^[ucus] est. Seditque super singulos eorum: signat requiem quae sanctis tribuetur in futuro. Et coeperunt loqui uariis ling[u]is: uarietas ling[u]arum dona uaria Spiritus sancti signat. Hae multitudines quae hic erant, exercitus ecclesiae noui Testamenti sign[if]icant; istae ergo regiones quas supra diximus circa Ierusalem undique, sign[if]icant omnes fideles ex omnibus mundi partibus ad ecclesiam uenientes per gratiam Spiritus sancti, qui hodie super apostolos uenit. O qualis est artifex iste Spiritus sanctus! nulla enim ad discendum mora agitur in omni quod uoluerit: mox ut tetigerit, mentem docet, solumque tetigisse docuisse est; nam animum humanum subito ut illustrat immutat^[mo],—abnegat repente quod erat, exhibet repente quod non erat: impleuit namque citharistam puerum, et psalmistam fecit; impleuit abstinentem puerum, et iudicem fecit senem; impleuit piscatorem, et praedicatorum fecit; impleuit persecutorem, et doctorem gentium fecit; impleuit publicanum^[up], et euangelistam fecit.

Pensate ergo, fratres carissimi, qualis sit hodierna sollemnitas de aduentu Spiritus sancti! In ista homines facti sunt filii Dei per adoptionem. Si uero remanere carnales in morte nolumus, fratres carissimi, uiuificantem amemus Spiritum. Abstergat ergo unusquisque sordes peccatorum, et paret hospitium Spiritui sancto; magna enim est sollemnitas aduentum Spiritus sancti habere in cordibus.

Let us invite, then, the Holy Spirit to us through purity of heart and mind, as Jesus bids in the Gospel when He says, 'beati mundi corde, quoniam ipsi Deum uidebunt';—through humility and lowliness, as Jesus bids us elsewhere in the Gospel, 'qui se humiliat, exaltabitur';—through the endurance of sufferings and troubles here below, for Jesus promises great reward to patient men when He says, 'beati enim qui persecutionem patiuntur propter iustitiam, quoniam ipsorum est regnum caelorum';—through alms and offerings, as Christ commands in the Gospel, saying, 'date eleemosynam, et ecce omnia munda sunt uobis';—through fasting and abstinence, 'ieiunium enim serat mysteria, incitat virtutes, refrénat uitia';—through prayer, for that is greatly praised in the Scripture, as saith the sage, 'melior est oratio quam totus mundus';—through the expulsion of every vice, and the acceptance of every virtue:—

Ut qui fuit adulter, sit castus; qui fuit gulosus, sit abstinens; qui fuit iracundus, sit mitis; qui fuit tenax, sit largus; qui fuit prodigus, sit modestus; qui fuit mobilis, sit stabilis; qui fuit superbus, sit humilis.

Qui haec omnia mala declinauerit, et opposita bona fecerit, separabitur per Spiritum sanctum a poena sitis, ab esurie panis

aeterni, a stridore dentium, a rugitibus demónum, a diris faucibus^[pus] tortorum, a foetore uermium, ab igne inexting[ui]bili, et ab omni malo; et sociabitur per Spiritum sanctum (in the unity of the patriarchs and prophets, &c.)

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, that we may all attain to that unity and deserve it, and dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

“Omnia ergo quaecumque^[quaq] uultis ut faciant uobis homines, ita et uos facite illis; haec est enim lex et propheta[e]” [Matt. vii. 12].

The prohibitor of every falsehood, the enforcer and teacher of every truth, the peacemaker between God and man, Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the whole world, spoke these words, to instruct His apostles and disciples and the whole Church, about the fitness of charity, viz., that men should act kindly and charitably to their neighbour in all respects as they would desire to be done to themselves; wherefore Christ says, omnia, &c. (as found in the Gospel of Matthew, in continuation of the part where it is said, si ergo uos, cum sitis mali, nostis bona data dare filiis uestris, quanto magis pater uester caelestis dabit bona petentibus sé; wherefore Jesus enjoined this counsel, omnia, &c.).

Quia lex commendat, ‘diliges proximum tuum,’ et prophetae

praedicant. Fīnis enim praecepti caritas est; quia caritas propria et specialis uirtus est Christianorum. Nam ceterae uirtutes bonis et malis possunt esse communes; caritatem autem habere nisi perfecti non possunt; unde Iesus ait, ‘in hoc cognoscent omnes quia discipuli mei estis, si dilexeritis inuicem’; et iterum dixit, ‘hoc est praeceptum meum, ut diligatis inuicem, sicut dilexi uos.’ Qualiter autem ista dilectio sit tenenda ipse insinuat, qui in plerisque scripturae suae sententiis, et amicos iubet diligere in se, et inimicos diligere propter se; ille enim ueraciter caritatem habet, qui et amicum diligit in Deo et inimicum diligit propter Deum. Nam sunt non[nulli] qui diligant^[it] proximos, [non per caritatem] sed per affectum cognationis et carnis: hi nimirum et proximum diligunt et tamen illa sublimia dilectionis praemia non assequuntur, quia amorem suum non spiritualiter sed carnaliter impendunt. Proinde cum Dominus diceret, ‘hoc est mandatum meum ut diligatis inuicem,’ protinus addidit, ‘sicut dilexi uos’; ac si aperte diceret, ‘ad hoc amate ad quod dilexi uos.’ Nulla autem alia causa nisi benignitatis suae gratia Christus discipulos dilexit; si ergo Christus nulla [causa] alia nisi naturali clementia nos dilexerit, sic et nos non carnali cognatione nec huius uitae commodis, sed internae dilectionis pietate proximos diligamus, et omnia quae nobis ab eis fieri uolumus, illis a nobis reddi desideremus; unde hic dicitur, omnia quaecumque, &c. Si ergo ab his nos uolumus esurientes satiari, sitientes potari, uagantes in hospitium recipi, nudos uestiri, oppressos doloribus uisitari, retentos uinculis absolui, sic et proximis, dum ab his omnibus egent, deuota mente reddamus. Et sicut nobis a nemine uolumus laedi, sic nulli nocere desideremus. Et quo modo ab his quibus displicemus^[ipil] nobis dimitti uolumus, ita et a nobis ueniam petentibus toto corde dimittamus. Et unusquisque nostrum prout poterit, aliis auxiliari festinet: qui ergo fortis est, infirmo roboret; qui alacer et impiger^[ngere], torpentem instiget; qui uigilat, deditum^[ta] somno suscitet; qui abstinentis est, immoderatum increpet; qui castus est, fornicatorem castiget; qui largus est^[gin], auarum sua diuidere et aliena non appetere doceat; qui mansuetus est, iratum^[dd] ad mansuetudinem reuocet; qui spirituali laetitia hilaris est, saecularem tristitiam a proximo depellat; qui constans et stabilis est, instabilem et anxiatum^[xant] confirmet; qui uanam gloriam saeculi calcanit^[icat], iactantiam alterius corripiat; qui humilis est, superbiam ad humilitatem inclinet. Cum ergo haec omnia pia intentione proximis fecerimus, tunc hoc mandatum quod hic praedicatur adimplemus, ‘omnia quaecumque, &c., et illud ‘diliges proximum tuum tanquam teipsum.’ Et quamvis hoc mandatum paucis commendatur uerbis, in sensibus tamen latum esse cognoscitur; quid enim in diuina lege praecipitur, quod in hoc mandato [solo ?] non rep[er]itur? ut apostolus ait, ‘plenitudo ergo legis^[gens] est dilectio’ [Rom. xiii. 10]; unde hic subditur, ‘haec est plenitudo ac summa diuinae legis et prophetiae.’ In lege enim hoc mandatum dilectionis commendatur, dum dicitur, ‘si uideris asinam proximi tui s[ub] onere iacentem, non pertransibis sed subleuabis eum’ [cf. Ex. xxiii. 5]. In prophetia quoque de eadem caritate commendatur, dum dicitur, ‘frange esurienti panem tuum, et egenos uagosque induc in domum tuam; cum uideris [nudum], cooperi eum, et carnem tuam ne despexeris’ [Is. lviii. 7]. Quod ergo in his ueteris Testamenti mandatis commendatur, hoc idem in nouo Testamento consona uoce [a] Saluatore praedicatur, dicens, ‘omnia,’ &c. De huius autem caritatis laude per Salamonem dicitur, ‘quia fortis [est] ut mors dilectio’ [Song of S. viii. 6]; sicut enim mors animam a corpore dirimit, sic a terrenis rebus ad caelestia mentem perfectam^[um] caritas eleuat; et iterum dicitur, ‘lampades eius lampades ignis atque flammaram’; lampades sunt corda electorum quae totis se uiribus amori sui auctoris subiiciunt, proximos autem ut se ipsos diligunt; quae perfecto lampades^[pe] sunt ignis atque flammaram; ignis quidem in ea qua ipsi intrinsecus feruent, flammaram uero in operibus iustitiae qua etiam aliis longé lateque clarescunt. Et iterum Salamon dicit, ‘aquae multae [non] poterunt exting[ue]re caritatem, nec flumina absorbent eam;’ [per] aquas multas et flumina, temptationum indicat incursus, quae siue uisibiliter siue inuisibiliter animos fidelium impugnare non desinunt, nam et per apertos fidei aduersarios et per falsos fratres et per occultas antiqui hostis insidias eos superare conantur; nec tamen ullatenus cedere temptationibus norunt corda quae in caritate radicata et fundata esse consuerunt; unde confidenter aiunt cum apostolo, ‘quis nos separabit a caritate? tribulatio, an angustia, an persecutio, an fames, an nuditas, an periculum, an gladius?' [Rom. viii. 35]. 'SÍ dederit homo omnem substantiam domus suae pro dilectione Dei, quasi nihil despici[i]et eam' [SS. viii. 7]: quoniam in quacumque mente caritas abundauerit, mox labantium rerum possessio cuncta uilescit; merito enim terrena despiciuntur^(fieu), cum caelestia comparantur.

Sciendum est autem quod multis in ueteri et in nouo Testamento caritas profuit: in Abél per sacrificium grata, in Nóe per dilúuium segura, in Abrahae peregrinatione^(peri) fidelis, in Móysi inter i[n]iurias lenissima, in Dauid tribulationibus fortissima, in Tribus Pueris blandos ignes reddebat, in Maria praeter uirum, in Paulo libera ad arguendum Petri, in Petro humilis ad oboediendum, in Christianis humana ad confitendum, in Christo díuina ad ignoscendum. Haec uirtus nullo alio modo nisi per Spiritus sancti dispensationem inuenitur, ut apostolus ait, 'caritas Dei diffusa est in cordibus nostris per Spiritum sanctum qui datus est nobis.' Haec est uirtus per quam peccata cuncta dimittuntur, prout Iesus dixit de Maria Magdálena, 'dimissa sunt ei peccata multa quoniam dilexit multum'; et apostolus ait, 'caritas cooperit multitudinem peccatorum.' Haec est regalis uia per quam ad caeleste regnum peruenitur, ut apostolus ait, 'excellentiorem uiam uobis demonstro.' Deum ergo diligit qui caritatem diligit; caritatem diligit qui proximum diligit, qui autem proximum non diligit in dilectione non est. De hac caritate apostolus dixit, 'sí líng[u]is hominum loquar et angelorum, caritatem autem non habeam, factus sum uelut aes sonans aut cymbalum tinniens; aut si habeam prophetiam, et nouerim mysteria omnia et omnem s[c]ientiam, et habuero omnem [fidem] ita ut montes transferam, caritatem autem non habeo, nihil sum; et si distribuero omnem substantiam meam in cibos pauperum et tradidero corpus meum ut ardeam, caritatem autem non habuero, nihil mihi prodest.' Caritas patiens est, caritas benigna est; non aemulatur, non agit perperam, non inflatur, non est ambitiosa, non quaerit quae sua sunt, non irritatur, non cogitat malum, non gaudet super iniquitatem, congaudet autem ueritati; omnia suffert, omnia credit, omnia sperat; caritas nunquam excidit^(ced), [1 Cor. xiii. 1-8]. Caritas inter opprobria^(ob) segura, inter odia benefica^(nif), inter iras placida, inter insidias innocens, [inter] iniquitates gemescens, in ueritate respirans.

Fratres ergo carissimi, sequimini caritatem; (for those who love not this virtue of charity in the present life, shall after death be flung into the pit of hell, to be tortured and damned for ever ;) ubi iudicium sine misericordia erit eis qui misericordiam non fecerunt, ubi omnes impíi ineffabili cruciatu damnabuntur, ubi nullum solatium expectabunt, sed in aeternum in perpetua poena perseuerabunt. Qui autem hanc excelsam, &c. (5936-5943).

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, that we may all attain to that unity, and deserve it, and dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

ON ALMSGIVING.

[68 β 21 = 5967

“Cum ergo facies eleemosynam ^[imoisi], noli tuba canere ante te, sicut hypocritae faciunt in synagogis et in vicis, ut honorificentur ^[cien] ab hominibus ; amen dico vobis, perceperunt mercedem suam. Te autem faciente eleemosynam, nesciat sinistra tua quid faciat dextera tua ; ut sit eleemosyna tua in absconso, et Pater tuus qui uidet in absconso, reddet tibi” [Matt. vi. 2-4].

Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, Saviour of all the world, God and man in the unity of one person, spake these words to instruct His apostles and disciples and all the righteous in the Church,—on the suitable manner of almsgiving, viz., that there should be no boasting in proclamation of it, and that alms should not be given for the sake of human praise, but for the rewards given by the heavenly Father, who sees the secrets and hidden things of the human heart,—in the above text (which is found in the Gospel of Matthew, in connexion with the preceding passage, where Jesus had said, ‘attendite ne iustitiam uestram faciatis coram hominibus ut uideamini ab eis’ [vi. 1]).

Haec enim eleemosyna tertia species iustitiae est. Nam tres species eius sunt .i. eleemosyna, ieiunium, oratio. Sed et eleemosyna ipsa bifarie diuiditur, id est, eleemosyna ipsi homini, et proximo suo; quia, qui uul[t] ordinate eleemosynam dare, a semet ipso debet incipere: qui enim sibi malus, cui bonus erit? In eleemosyna quoque ipsius hominis duo modi occurrunt, animae suae et corpori suo; eleemosyna animae est, ne quis animam suam in peccatis relinquat; corpori quoque suo praestanda est eleemosyna, ne corpus suum ultra mensuram compescat, unde apostolus dicit, “ corpus ‘ redigendum ’ est et non fra[n]gendum, quia uas honorabile est in quo uita aeterna promittitur sanctis.” Item duo modi sunt misericordiae ad proximum;—sicut semet ipsum docet, sic et proximum suum doceat; et sicut semet ipsum corrigit, sic et proximum suum corripiat; et sicut castitatem suam custodit, sic proximi castitatem custodiat; et sicut ipse ieiunat, sic et proximis ieiunium suadeat. Et haec eleemosyna excellentior est quam corporis; multo enim maius est animam ad imaginem Dei factam de spiritalibus alimentis satiare et de peccati nexibus soluere, quam corpus de limo terrae creatum de terrenis necessitatibus^[checi] adiuuare; et praestantioris meriti est de Inferni cruciatibus animam deducere quam multimodis honoribus corpus reficere. Multis autem modis misericordia corpori proximi praestanda^[pro] est; constat enim eleemosyna in sex operibus misericordiae,—in uictu, in potu, in [u]estitu, in hospitio, in uisitatione infirmorum, in ministratione carceris. Inhumanum est enim fratrem non adiuuari a fratre, cum unum patrem habemus, scilicet Deum omnipotentem; unde Iohannes ait, ‘ qui habuerit substantiam huius mundi, et uiderit fratrem suum necessitatem habere, et clauserit uiscera sua ab eo, quomodo caritas Dei manet in [eo]?’ [1 John iii. 17]. De qua eleemosyna facienda Christus hic dicit, cum ergo facies, &c. Non dicit [cui] danda est eleemosyna, sed in Lege Leuitis et sacerdotibus^[doit] decimae et primitiae iubente Domino redditae sunt; in nouo autem Testamento certe pauperibus eroganda est eleemosyna. Ne impense gratiae uicissitudinem requirant, audiant quod scriptum est: ‘ cum facies prandium aut coenam, noli uocare amicos tuos neque fratres tuos neque uicinos diuites, ne forte et ipsi reinuient te, et ne fiat tibi retributio; sed cum facies conuiuium, uoca pauperes et debiles^[is] caecos et claudos, et beatus eris, quia non habent unde retribuere possint, retribuetur enim tibi in resurrectione iustorum' [Luke xiv. 12]. Et sine dilatione tribuenda est eleemosyna; ut Salamon dicit, 'ne dicas^[es] amico tuo, uade et reuertere, et cras tibi dabo, cum statim possis dare' [Prov. iii. 28]. De celeritate quoque eleemosina[e] Iob dicit, 'si negaui pauperibus quod uolebant, et oculos uiduae expectare feci' [Job xxxi. 16]. Peccatori quoque pauperi pro humanitate sua eleemosyna danda est; qui enim indigenti etiam peccatori panem tribuit, non quia peccator sed quia homo est, nimirum non peccatorem sed iustum nutrit, quia non culpam in eo sed naturam diligit. Et hic et ille falsam faciem indigentis praefert, is tamen qui simpliciter reddit fructum misericordiae non amittit. Inimico etiam misericordia facienda sit, dicente Salamone, 'si esurierit inimicus tuus, ciba illum, si sitierit, da ei aquam bibere.' Potest et de corporalibus et spiritualibus alimentis [dici].

Noli tuba canere ante te: id est, ne in uoluntatem cogitationis tuae pro reddenda misericordia elatio ueniat^[et]; quasi hoc diceret, 'quae op[er]ibus facis, sermonibus non glorieris.' Sicut hypocritae faciunt: hypocrita est qui, dum malus intus sit, se bonum palam ostendit; quisquis se uideri uult quod non est, hypocrita est; simulat enim se iustum esse et nec exhibet, quia totum fructum suum in laude hominum ponit. In synagogis et in uicis ut honorificentur^[cien] ab omnibus: ex quo intelligitur hypocritam esse qui quodlibet facit ut [ab] hominibus glorificetur. Non itaque uirtus sed causa uirtutis apud Deum mercedem habet. De laude quaesita ab hypocritis sanctus Iob ait, 'laus impiorum breuis est, et ga[u]dium hypocritarum ad instar puncti. Si ascenderit superbia eius usque ad caelum et caput eius tetigerit nubes, quasi sterquilinum^[stcoli] in fine perdetur' [Job xx. 5-7]. Amen dico uobis, perceperunt mercedem suam: id est, la[u]dem suam ab hominibus quorum gratia exercere uirtutes; suam, id est, non Dei laudem, 'quam seruis meis paraui.' Dominus autem et Saluator noster non laudem suam quaesuit, dicens, 'non quaero gloriam meam sed gloriam Patris qui misit me.' Illi ergo perceperunt mercedem suam, qui non ob aliud eleemosynam faciunt nisi 'ut' glorificentur ab hominibus: non enim 'si' glorificentur. Laus enim non appeti a recte fac[i]ente sed sequi recte facientem debet; ait, 'illi proficiant qui imitari possunt quem laudant.' Te autem faciente eleemosynam, nesciat sinistra quid faciat dextera tua: id est, non se misceat[ⁿ]t facienda diuinum praeceptum cum tendis implere^[p^{ris}]. [?] Ut sit eleemosyna tua in absconso: quid est in absconso nisi in conscientia bona, quae humanis oculis demonstrari non potest nec uerbis aperiri? Tria genera autem sunt eleemosynae, quarum una datur foris et non est intus, ut faciunt hypocritae et superbi pro humana laude; alia eleemosyna, quae in corde tantum est, sicut pauperum eleemosyna est; alia eleemosyna, quae intus et foris est, prout sanctorum eleemosyna est, quam hic Christus commendat^[tur], ut sit, &c. Et pater tuus qui uidet in absconso, reddet tibi: id est, regnum caeleste post diem iudic[i]i. Uidendum uero est quia multi in ueteri et in nouo Testamento, eleemosynis et muneribus offerendis Domino suo placuerunt: Abél quidem iustus et martyr, in oblationibus suis Deo satisfecit sicut in Genesi scriptum est, 'respexit Deus ad Abél et ad eius munera';—Hiob quoque in misericordia et eleemosynis suis placu[i]t Deo, 'ab infantia mea creuit^[creau] mecum miseratio' [Job xxxi. 18], et 'pater eram pauperum' [Job xxxix. 16];—Cornelius centurio, ut Spiritum sanctum acciperet ante baptisma^[aup] eleemosynis crebrisque ieiuniis meruit;—Paulus quoque cum eleemosynis pauperum Christi de Graecia Ierosolymam uenit. Patet ergo quod multis profuit eleemosyna et in ueteri et in nouo Testamento. Qui autem misericordiam in pauperes Dei non facit, poenam luet, Iacobo testante, 'iudicium sine misericordia erit illi qui misericordiam non fecit' [James, ii. 13]. Bona nostra non sunt a nobis, sed ab Eo accipimus haec, a quo factum est ut essent nostra^[essimus?]. i. tanto igitur ea non debemus retinere priuata quanto ea nobis conspiciamus ad communem utilitatem data: incassum se innocentes putant qui commune Dei munus sibi priuatim uindicant^[uen]. Cui et cum accepta non tribuunt, in proximorum nece grassantur; et tot paene quotidie^[quettide] perimunt quot morientium pauperum apud se subsidia abscondunt; nam cum quaelibet illis necessaria ministramus, sua eis reddimus et non nostra largimur. Et de propriis uniuscuiusque eleemosyna danda est, ut Salamón ait, 'redemptio animae uiri diuit[ⁱ]ae propriae sunt' [Prov. xiii. 8]. Qui autem misericordiam in pauperes et faciunt, audiant quid Dominus dicit: 'beatí misericordes, quoniam ipsi misericordiam consequentur' [Matt. v. 7]. Quia qui caritatem non habet, nihil habet; qui autem caritatem habet, omnia bona habet. Nemo ergo putet eum accipere cuius manum uidet; mendicat enim pauper, sed Deus accipit. Das ei qui sumit, et accipit ille qui reddet; quia sinus pauperis gazophylacium^[affilia] Christi est, unde Salamon dicit, 'foeneratur^[turo] Domino qui miseretur pauperis, et uicissitudinem reddet ei' [Prov. xix. 17]. Qui ergo omnino misericordiam egenis et pauperibus non tribuunt, a[u]diant quid Dominus dicet illis, quando ueniet^[at] ad iudicium^[audiidc]: 'esuriui, et non dedistis mihi manducare; sitiui, et non dedisti[s] mihi bibere; hospes eram, et non collegistis^[ig] mé; nudus fui, et non cooperuistis me; infirmus fui, et non uisitastis mé; in ca[rcere] fui, et non uenistis ad me.' Et dicit illis, 'discedite a me, maledicti, in ignem aeternum, qui praeparatus est diabolo et angelis suis' [Matt. xxv. 42, 43, 41]; ubi erit fletus et stridor dentium [Luke xiii. 28] et liquefactio oculorum; ubi erit omne malum, et deerit omne bonum; ubi mors rogabitur, et non impetrabitur. Sanctis uero suis dicit Dominus, 'uenite, benedicti Patris mei, possidete regnum quod uobis paratum est ab origine mundi.' Hi ergo misericordes erunt in caelo, in unitate prophetarum et patriarc[h]arum, in unitate uirginum et poenitentium et sanctorum Domini martyrum, in unitate apostolorum et di[s]cipulorum Iesu Christi, in unitate utriusque ecclesiae, in unitate nouem graduum caelestium qui non peccauerunt, in unitate diuinitatis et humanitatis filii Dei.

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, that we may all attain to that unity, and deserve it, and dwell therein for ever and ever.
Amen.

[XVI.]

“Thousands of thousands of angels were serving the Lord ; and tens and hundreds of thousands stood ever in His presence” [Dan. vii. 10].

The Holy Spirit, the Spirit that is nobler than every spirit, the third Person of the noble Godhead, co-eternal and consubstantial with the Father and the Son, disclosed these mysteries to the Prophet Daniel, of whom the Lord spake thus :—“ O Daniel, man of good will, give heed to the mysteries I will reveal to thee. Fitting was it to call Daniel the ‘ man of good will,’ for the abundance of his desire to know the mysteries and secrets of God, through the subjugation and repression of his body by fasting and abstinence. One of the secret mysteries revealed by God to Daniel is the passage just quoted, “ thousands of thousands,” &c. The passage stands in connexion with what Daniel had said previously :—“ There appeared to me many thrones set in my presence ; and on his throne there sat a noble Senior ; his raiment shining like snow ; the hair of his head like white wool ; his throne a flame of fire ; the wheels of his chariot ablaze ; a swift, fiery stream flowed out before him” [Dan. x. 11]. So that it is on the track of these words the prophet Daniel wrote the following passage :—“ Many thousands of angels were serving the noble king in ruling His creation. The tens of thousands and the hundreds of thousands were ever serving in His presence.” These are the thousands and the myriads of whom the prophet sang, “ many and innumerable are the numbers of the angelic host that are ever rejoicing around the Lord.” It is in describing that multitude Daniel wrote this holy text, “ thousands,” &c. It is not because the number of the company of heaven is a definite one that he defined it in these figures, but because human language cannot express any number of multitude higher than that amount ; for St. Gregory, a man of divine favour, commenting on this statement of the prophet, says that the number of the angelic host is definite to God, but is infinite to the minds of men. These are his words :—

“The host of the company of heaven is both finite and infinite ; finite to God, infinite to men.” The same Gregory also states, that the throng of angels who do service and humility to God is greater than the multitude who dwell in the presence of His countenance. For there are two orders of angels, stantes et ministrantes, i. e., those who are ever silent, and those who are doing service for God. For the angeli stantes are they who remain before the face of God in their holiness and righteousness without ever moving, but who are always meditating on the Lord, as the Holy Scripture saith, that it is on the Lord that these desire ever to gaze ; but the ministrantes are they who go on service between God and men. At one time they go to strengthen the holy and righteous ; at another, to inflict vengeance on kings and nations and cities that are living perverse lives in their manifold sins ; at other times, again, they go to perform miracles and wonders amongst the holy and righteous.

Now, there are nine Orders and nine Grades among the angels of Heaven, as the Scripture enumerates. Seraphim are the first grade, i. e., ‘burning,’ because they burn with the love of the Lord for ever without intermission in the presence of God. Cherubim are the second grade, the translation of this name being ‘multitude of knowledge and wisdom’ ; for it is they who drink most abundantly of the well of the knowledge of the deity. Throni, meaning the ‘seats’ and thrones of the King, are the third grade ; for it is from them that the Lord delivers his righteous judgments on every man in the world. The fourth grade are Dominiones, the powers and ‘lordships’ holding sway over mankind, and because they rule and govern the five following grades. Principatus are the fifth grade ; ‘princedom’ presiding over actions, for they are the high princes of the noble spirits that are placed in charge of the divine services over their subjects. Potestates, ‘powers,’ are the sixth grade, from their authority over mankind. It is this Order that keep down the attacks and inflictions and pestilences of the wicked spirits, the devils, so as not to allow them to assault or vent their rage on men as they desire. Virtutes are the seventh grade, the spirits by whom are effected ‘miracles’ and wonders among the saints and righteous. Archangeli are the eighth grade, i. e., ‘chief messengers,’ for it is they who announce the mighty wonders and the excellent tidings to mankind. Angeli are the ninth grade, i. e., 'declarers,' because they declare the will of God and every just cause to the seed of Adam according to the commandment of the Lord.

This noble assembly of the angelic host do not stand in need of proper names; for even the names we have given them are derived from the services in which they are engaged towards mankind. Thus the name Gabriel means the 'might of God,' on account of the great force and influence on the world of the thing he foretold, viz., the conception and birth of Christ. Raphael is explained 'medicine of God'; it was he who went to Tobit for the assistance and healing he brought to Tobit's eye. Michael, whose festival and memory are observed in the Church of God on the anniversary of this day, denotes 'one who is like God'; and this name is not without special validity and reference to him; for Michael is like unto God in many ways. To him were shown the five victories—1, his being a mighty champion in casting down the haughty demons by the word of the Lord, and in hurling them with his arrow into hell from the upper realms; 2, it is he who fights with the devil for the soul of every believing person when it issues from his body; 3, it is he who will give decision in the presence of God on behalf of the holy and righteous in the day of doom; 4, he will fight against Antichrist on Mount Sion in the end of the world, and will gain the victory and triumph over him; and 5, after this victory he will rule for ever with the saints without end or limit in the heavenly kingdom.

Hence it is that Christians celebrate the feast of St. Michael; and it is on the third before the Kalends of October by the day of the solar month, &c. [Sept. 29]. At that time a church was consecrated on earth to the archangel, in memory and remembrance of the great marvel he wrought on that date. As the writers relate, this church was in a cave on Mount Garganus, in the country named Campania. Many signs preceded the consecration of the church in that spot; for the beginning of the magnifying of St. Michael's name in the present world was the mighty contest he had with the dragon in that place. The demon had assumed the form of a huge dragon, and entered into a cave on the top of Mount Garganus, from whence he assailed the seeds and fruits and cattle of the districts and countries with his plagues and pestilences. The rude pagans were afraid of that, and thought that the dragon, in whom was the demon, was a god, so that they offered sacrifices and almsgiving to him. But the educated Christians and believers besought aid from God with tears and fastings and prayers, praying the Lord that Michael might come to their assistance. Thereafter it was revealed to them one night, that they should go to the mountain on the morrow; and when they went thither, they beheld the archangel, who clave the dragon asunder into nine parts, each part the weight of ten oxen, when it was taken off to be burned. So the name of God and the name of St. Michael were magnified through that miracle.

There was on that mountain a certain wealthy man named Garganus, from whom the mountain was called Mount Garganus. This man lived in the city named Seponte. Once on a time a bull was missing from his herds; and he went with his servants to seek it. On finding it in the mouth of the cave that is on the top of the hill, Garganus shot an arrow against the animal, for he was angry at the loss of it. The arrow came back on him, and wounded him, without inflicting damage on the beast against whom it had been directed. This incident was deemed very wonderful by the companions of Garganus; and it was told after that to the bishop of the city, who enjoined a fast on all the inhabitants, men, women, and children, that God might reveal unto them what was the portent that had happened in that spot. When the three days of the fast were over, Michael appeared in a vision to the noble bishop of the city Seponte, and said to the bishop that it was 'he who had caused the rejection of the arrow from the animal back to Gargan, the man who had shot the arrow'; adding, that that place was his habitation on earth. It was a custom thereafter with the people of the city to offer up prayers to God and St. Michael on that spot. There were two doors to the cave—one of them to the south-east, the other to the south-west: and none dared enter the cave, but waited in the doors of the cave. At that time and season, the Benepontines, who were believers, went to war against the pagan Sepontines. Before the battle the Christians observed fasting and abstinence, in prayer to God, that the Archangel Michael might come to their assistance; and when the Christians went to battle with their enemies, the Archangel appeared to them, and all the mountain of Garganus was shaken, darkness coming over it, with thunder and lightning; and after that the pagans were worsted, and retreated in flight; and but few of them escaped from the sword and lightnings and wild beasts. Seven hundred, indeed, were burnt by the lightning alone, besides those who were killed in battle, and those whom the beasts and birds devoured. Then the Christians went in triumph with thanksgiving to God, till they came to the cave of the Archangel Michael; and they found little marks in the earth at the south-east door of the cave, so they knew that it was the Archangel who had disclosed the sign and token of his presence there.

After that, a church and an altar were founded on that spot; and they offered sacrifices to God and St. Michael therein. The name of the church was Aposonia (or Apodonia), i. e. (costa ?), on account of the marks or of the traces that were therein. They were dubious whether it was lawful for them to enter into that place to consecrate it, and this was the plan they adopted at last; they built a church to the Apostle Peter on the east of the cave, and erected two altars in it,—one to Mary, and the other to John the Baptist. Then they despatched messengers to the Abbot of Rome, who was named Sylvester, the thirtieth abbot from Peter, to know what they should do about the consecration of the church. This was the advice given them by Sylvester, the heremach of Rome,—that they should observe a fast, on the one side the heir of Peter with the Roman people, on the other the inhabitants of the town of Seponte. And so on the last night of the fast Michael appeared to the bishop of the city of Seponte, and said to him:—“What causes you to consecrate the church? for I myself have already consecrated it. Just go into it on the morrow, with offerings and sacrifices, and pray the Lord in my name.” Then he bade them make shrines of gold or of silver in the church, if only purity of heart and mind as well as earnestness of prayer were made therein. After this the Archangel went into it in the form of a splendid bird, and marked out the length, breadth, and height of the church, and he left on the rock the marks of his fingers, which remain there still. Then he enjoined on the people to fulfil the commandment and teaching of the law of Moses and the teaching of the Gospel. There are three columns supporting that church; and at the side of the mid-most column water drips at all times. There is a glass vessel with silver chains under this water, which is divided out among the nations for the maintenance of health. Another water-drip falls near the eastern column, and fills a second glass vessel with water, that is divided out for sacrament and Mass. A third flow comes by the side of the western column, from the hill which protects the church to the north of the altar; a glass vessel is filled with this also, and those who are most faithful among the people, after receiving the body and blood of Christ, go and taste that sweet liquid, which heals every disease and every ailment. And there is another wonderful circumstance connected with it, viz., however great be the flowing and dripping, the waters never overflow; and however great the thirst, the water never fails. And none dare enter that cave during the night; but they go into it at sunset and sunrise for prayer, with hymns and psalms and offerings to the Lord of the elements.

Three refectons only are required to be done in the festivals of the holy saints and righteous: the first is the celebration and preaching of the word of God; the second is the sacrifice of the body and blood of Christ on behalf of the Christian people; the third is the giving of food and clothing to the poor and needy of the great Lord of the elements. Whoever makes these 'refectons' in the name of St. Michael the Archangel, he will be his helper throughout life and on the day of judgment in the resurrection of the holy and righteous, and of all the folk of the world in general.

Now the reason why the Archangel Michael is called the Chief is the following:—When God made the world he appointed a determinate chief to all creatures separately; viz., Lucifer for the demons; the sun for the stars; Mount Sion for the mountains; the river Jordan among rivers; the vine among trees; the dove among birds; the lion among beasts; the leviathan among fishes; Christ over mankind. Thus at that time the Archangel Michael was appointed in the chief place and supremacy over the angels of heaven; it is he who announces in the presence of God the intercessions which the saints make with Him; he is the archangel of the archangels; the star above stars; the brilliant fire: it is he who weeps and laments over the souls that are in hell; for when the folk of hell see the countenance of St. Michael the Archangel, they say:—"O Michael, thou art our chief; thou art our king; thou labourest ever in our behalf." Then Michael makes them this reply:—"I beseech the Lord for ever for the souls of mankind." It is the Archangel Michael at whose voice the human race shall arise from the ashes of the earth at the day of judgment, when there shall be assigned to each what he shall deserve; on that day the unbelieving shall be cast into everlasting fire, a place where they shall have punishment of thirst and hunger, of cold and heat, and unquenchable fire for evermore; where they shall have completeness of every evil and the want of every blessing; there the impious shall be visited after long years, and not for a mitigation of their punishment, as [some] learned men think, but for increase of their punishments. But the saints and the righteous shall enter into everlasting life, after being helped by the Archangel Michael; and they shall shine as the sun in the heavenly kingdom, where they shall be in the unity of the patriarchs and apostles, in the unity of angels and archangels, in the unity that is higher than every unity—in the unity of the holy excellent Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

We beseech the mercy of God, through the intercession of St. Michael the Archangel, that we may all attain to that unity, may deserve it, and dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

ON REPENTANCE.

Who first prescribed originally the performance of penance?

John the Baptist, Jesus Christ, and the Apostle Peter were the first three who originally instituted penance. John the Baptist urged it for the sin of the murder of the holy chief prophets whom the Jewish people slew, viz., Daniel, Jeremiah, Ezechiel, Isaiah, Manasch the son of Ezekias, son of Amos [?], and the prophets in general. It was for the persecution and murder of these that John enjoined penance on the people who had done these evil deeds. Christ Himself enjoined the second penance on Herod and the Jewish people, for the sin of the murder of John the Baptist; for it was by Herod the Tetrarch, son of Herod, son of Antipater, son of Herod of Ascalon, that John was beheaded, and afterwards Christ crucified, and Peter cast into prison. That is a story that is referred to here. It was for the sin of John's murder that Jesus Christ enjoined penance on everyone, as we have just said. The Apostle Peter enjoined the third penance on the Jewish people, for the sin of putting Christ Himself to death. These are the chosen three who prescribed penance for each one, so that, from that day till now, it is on the track of them every Church goes in which penance is enjoined.

There are three species of remedy for every sin men commit, viz., martyrdom, baptism, and penance. There are two sorts to be done by everyone when he performs complete penance: penance for every sin he has committed, small or great, and for every good thing he has omitted when it lay in his power to do it. For every evil, small or great, that a man commits, will be pardoned on earnest repentance, save only the blasphemy of the Trinity; for vain is every good thing a man shall do, if he have been guilty of this. According to Quirinus, the blasphemy of the Trinity consists in attributing the wonders and miracles of the Son of God to Beelzebub and to nonentity in general. But according to Augustine, it consists in neglecting every kind of repentance, or in a person's having an unbelieving heart, without expectation of God's reward or mercy coming to him, but persisting in his evil ways, and sinking into despair.

There are four points in complete penance, viz., the form of the crimes, confession, place, and time. The external form consists in a contrite heart with pain-fraught bitterness, with heavy tears, with great hand-beating, and the wearing of hair-cloth thereafter. There are also two kinds of confession: that which is made to God, and that which is made to men. Further, it is required of everyone to make a change in place when he does earnest penance for his sins, as did our forefather Adam, and our teacher the Apostle Peter. For it was in Paradise that Adam committed his transgression; and he was cast out of the place in which he had sinned into another place, the earth, to do penance. As to the Apostle Peter, it was in Jerusalem that he sinned, viz., when he denied Christ thrice on the night of the passion; so it was in the many nations of the world that he did penance for that sin. Everyone to-day who does penance should follow in their footsteps; and if he commits sin in one particular place, he should avoid that place, and go elsewhere to repent therein, with confession of his original fault, confessing the cause and the place and the time of his sinning, and should earnestly repent thereafter.

There are four kinds of repentance to which God is not gracious, and which aid neither body nor soul: the repentance of despair, such as was that of Cain after the murder of his brother Abel; for he did not repent, but sank into despair, and lost hope in the mercy of God thereafter. So likewise unhappy Judas, after the betrayal of Christ, fell into despair, and put a noose round his neck, and in desperation hanged himself in his misdeeds, so that his soul was the first on which hell was shut, after the Captivity had been rescued from it by Christ. Then there is lazy or slow repentance, that is not done immediately: this is the second species. And the fourth [!] species is repentance from one evil into another evil, or back into the same evil; for unless a man avoid every evil during his repentance, it is vain. It is the temptation of the devil that causes people not to repent at all; for he says to a man, in tempting him to evil:—"Do not repent now, for thy life will be long; trifling is the evil thou hast done; and many there are that have done worse evils than thou hast. Then the extent of the mercy of God is incalculable, and He will pardon everybody his crimes." Hence it is through that instigation of the devil that now they do everything else but earnest repentance to God to have their crimes removed. But David, the son of Jesse, the renowned king-poet, the best that visited earth, to whom Christ Himself said:—"I have found a man after my own heart on earth,"—when this David committed sin, in slaying his own soldier for the sake of this man's wife; yet, on his earnest repentance, as expressed in the famous Psalm, Miserere mei, Deus, God the Father pardoned him all his sins. So, too, King Hezekiah had fifteen years added on to his life, when he repented earnestly unto God.

Good, in sooth, is the reward God gives to him that so repents, viz., length of life in the world, and the kingdom of heaven without end, while listening to the music of the birds of paradise, together with freedom from the anger of God on the judgment-day, when He shall give His righteous judgments on everyone. But shortness of life now, and hell for ever beyond, such is the reward of all who do not repent earnestly unto God, &c.

[XXVII.]

“ Fight ye bravely ; let your heart be comforted and strengthened, all ye men whose hope is in the Lord ” [Psalm xxx. 25].

The Holy Spirit, the Spirit that enlightened the Church of both the Old and the New Testament with the grace of wisdom and prophecy, it is this Spirit who is author of this passage, through the mouth of the king-poet David, the son of Jesse, when he says, “ fight ye bravely.” It is in praise of this same David that it is said in the Psalm, ‘ elegit David servum suum et sustulit eum de gregebus ovium [lxxvii. 70]. It is that David who made the thrice fifty praises to God. It was he who was ordained by God to be king and truth-speaking poet in every kind of prophetic utterance.

This particular verse is equivalent to this : let the good, the priests, [lest they fall] through the weakness of the body from the right course, strengthen themselves, so that they may get the peace and friendship of God. Let there be a manly effort on your part : that is, let not any one of you be found slothful or lax, even though ye be in the distress of troubles and of persecutions ; for he fights bravely who endures full firmly in virtues and good deeds. And let your heart be encouraged : offer faithful hearts to the Lord ; that is, be not ye, in womanly fashion, angry at having to endure suffering and troubles in the world. All ye whose hope is in the Lord : it is not to those who desire and love the world that this advice is given, but to those whose comfort and hope are in God. This exhortation is common to men and women, for it is required alike from both that their energy of service to God should be virile :

let everyone who hopeth in God fight bravely. Now they fight bravely who love the Lord, and go against idols and images, with the martyr's confession, to maintain and fulfil the law of their fathers. Multitudes of saints and righteous, both in the Old and the New Testament, have fought bravely and mightily for God against idols, and have entered into the unity of the company of heaven after the victory of martyrdom; as did the noble, venerable martyrs, the commemoration of whose festival falls at this time, viz., the Macchabees, those holy martyrs who fought steadfastly and manfully in defence of the divine Law and the commandment of God, so that they entered into the victory of martyrdom. The Christians celebrate the feast-day of these martyrs on the Kalends of August, according to the day of the solar month, which falls to-day on this day of the week in the current year.

Antiochus Epiphanes, a certain emperor of [the Greeks], held sway eleven years, after numerous battles with Egypt and with many other countries. He took Jerusalem without a contest, and slew multitudes therein; and, after plundering and wasting the Temple, he appointed therein a steward; and he forced the citizens to obey a law and a teaching different from their own. At that time and period there dwelt in the village called Modin [1 Macchab. ii. 1] a man named Mathias, son of John, son of Simon the priest, of the race of Jobab of Jerusalem. He had five sons: the first, John, had another name, Gades; Simon, surnamed Mathathias; Judas, who is styled Machabaeus (whence the Macchabees); Eleazar, called Saphus; and Abram, to whom gave the name Jonathas.

Now these five men fought in behalf of their ancestral law. Eleazar, indeed [2 Macchab. vi. 18], one of the sages of the law, when a stately old man of ninety years of age, gentle of countenance, was compelled to eat the flesh of pigs, in violation of the law of Moses, which forbade the eating of the flesh of pigs or hares. But this man had determined in his mind that he would not for the love of his life do the things that were not lawful for him to do; for he preferred an honourable death before living in this world hateful to God. Afterwards there came to him in secret, through friendliness, certain men who begged him to eat any flesh that was lawful for him to eat, and then to say that he was partaking of the flesh that orders had been given him to eat, and that his life would be saved by that lie. Eleazar reflected on what was suitable for his life, his advanced age, and his noble birth; he had been trained up from his youth in the law of God, and he replied to them:—"It is not worthy of a man of my age to frame deceit or fiction, so as to make the younger people fancy that Eleazar, a man of full ninety years of age, is perverted to the life and habits of the pagans, whereby they might be vitiated through my falseness, and I should be guilty of that in my old age; for, though I should be delivered in the present life from the punishment and torments of men, I cannot escape from the power of Almighty God. Therefore, I will die worthily in my old age, leaving behind me an example of strength and courage to the young, that they too may be prepared to die in fulfilment of God's law." Then those who were kindly disposed towards him at first were now turned to anger and rage against him at these words, and they deemed that he was mad. But Eleazar said:—"O Almighty God, Thou knowest that I am enduring these pains and torments for Thy sake, of my own wish and will, for it is in my power to free myself from them." And when he had said these and other words, he gave up the ghost.

Then the king after that seized the seven brothers, with their mother, and would have forced them to eat the flesh of pigs and idol-offerings; but the first brother replied:—"What seekest thou, O king, or what is thy wish? We choose rather to die by a dreadful death than to transgress the law of our fathers." Then the king ordered his tongue to be cut out, and the man to be hanged up before his brethren's eyes; and while he was yet in life they placed him on plates of fire to burn him too. Meanwhile the other brothers were strengthening each other, saying:—"God sees the truth, and He will be comforted in His servants and in His people." When the first brother had died thus, the second was brought to the torture; and after his skin had been flayed, and the hair torn off his head, they asked of him:—"Wilt thou eat this flesh before thou be tortured in every separate limb in this fashion?" But he replied:—"I will not do the king's will in this matter." Then, after that, he suffered the same terrible tortures as the first, and, at the last gasp of his life, he said:—"Thou canst destroy us in the present life for our fulfilment of the law, but the King of the universe will raise us from death in the glorious resurrection into eternal life." Then the third man was brought to the torture. He stretched out his hands, and spake thus:—"From heaven I possess these limbs, but I despise them in behalf of the law of the Lord; and I hope that I shall recover these same limbs again." Such was the force with which he uttered this, that all wondered at the sturdy courage of that youth, for the tortures inflicted on him were as nought in his judgment. So he gave up the the ghost. Then the fourth brother spake in this wise:—"Well is it for them who are brought to death for the Lord, for they shall be healed by God; but the impious shall have no resurrection in the Judgment." And on his death, they tortured the fifth, who fixed his eyes on the king, and said:—"Thou canst kill us, and thou doest whatsoever thing is pleasing to thee; but do not thou imagine that our race is abandoned by God, for He is patient: observe His vast power, and [thou shalt see] how He can torment thee and everyone as befits you." After that the sixth brother was brought to the torture. And when he had come to his last moments, he said to the king:—"Persist not in error and injustice any longer, for we are suffering these miseries for our own sin, and for our transgression towards God; but thou shalt be punished for evermore, because thou hast fought daringly against the Lord. But we shall get every good promise that He promised us for our fulfilment of this commandment and law."

Very wonderful and worthy of remembrance is the mother of these sons. Happy the holy mother, Machaba; for though she saw in one day her seven sons killed in her presence, she was not sorrowful thereat, but was joyous and glad-hearted, for she hoped that they would receive a great recompense from the Lord. So then she had a manly soul in her woman's form, and she bravely encouraged each son of her sons separately, saying thus:—"I know not how ye were in my womb, nor was it I who placed in you the breath of life, and put together the limbs of your bodies; but it was the Creator of all things: He will re-create you, and will give you breath and everlasting life; because ye have deemed yourselves of no account, in order to fulfil His law and rule."

Now when Antiochus the king perceived that he himself was scorned, he ridiculed and made light of the woman's voice, and reproached her greatly. And as the youngest son remained yet untortured, the king declared, and attested it with an oath, that he would give honour, and rank, and friendship, to that son if he would honour the idols. But when the youth did not listen to him, and would not receive these words, the king took the mother and began to instigate her to save her son from the hands of the executioners. The mother, however, laughed at the cruel impious tyrant, and spoke thus:—"O my son, I carried thee in my womb nine months, and gave thee for three years the milk of my breasts, and I nourished thee up to this. I beseech thee, therefore, to look upon heaven and earth with all things that are therein, and reflect that the Lord made them out of nothing; so then fear not this executioner, but accept death of thy own free will, that God may give thee eternal life together with thy brethren." When the woman had finished these and other words, the youth spoke thus:—"O king, I act not according to thy bidding or enticement, but I accept and conform to the teaching of the Law that was given us by Moses, for whom the Lord wrote with His finger the commandments of the Law on the tables of stone on Mount Sinai. For though God for our chastisement is angry for a little while, He will afterwards give us consolation. My brethren whom thou hast tortured with brief torture, are now in the glory and gladness of eternal life; I too, like my brethren, devote my body and soul to the law of our fathers, and I beseech the Lord to show kindness and mercy quickly on our race and our people, and that thou, O iniquitous ruler and tyrant, thou, the worst of men in the world, mayest be tormented with scourges and great miseries, that thou mayest not escape the vengeance of Almighty God, so that thou mayest learn and confess that He alone is King and Ruler over all things." Thereupon the sinful impious king was inflamed with anger and intolerable rage against the youth, and had him tortured yet worse than his brethren. And so died the youth, trusting utterly in the Lord before his death. After her children had been strengthened by their mother, and had been slain by king Antiochus, she herself in the end was dragged to suffering and torture, and, having endured everything, she gave up her soul to heaven.

It was reported to the king [2 Macchab. iii. 6] that the temple of Jerusalem was full of gold and silver; so he sent thither the man named Heliodorus, that all the wealth of the city might be brought to him. When Heliodorus reached Jerusalem with his army, he came into the temple with his followers to take the treasure out of it. Meanwhile, the Jews stretched out their hands to heaven in despair, imploring help of God; and on the instant there appeared in the temple [ibid. iii. 26] two beautiful youths, of great brilliancy: these scourged Heliodorus grievously, so that he fell to the ground nearly dead. Afterwards the high-priest prayed the Lord for him, and he was healed immediately; so he gave thanks to God, and offered sacrifices to the Lord in humble lowly mood. Thereafter he presented himself before the king, and said to him:—"If thou hast any man who is hateful to thee, send him to Jerusalem! and he will return to thee thus—scourged; for the power of God is in that spot, and He who dwelleth in heaven is guardian and helper of the place, and will destroy everyone who doeth evil in it." Antiochus, however, was filled with pride and anger, and began to . . .

"[Et] post dies octo^(ta) iterum erant discipuli eius intus et Tomas cum eis. Uenit Iesus, iannis clau[s]is, et stetit in medio eorum, et dixit eis, pax uobis. Deinde dixit Tomae, infer digitum^(dcs) tuum huc, et uide manus^(nuus) meas; et affer manum tuam^(um), et mitte in latus meum, et noli esse incredulus^(dib) sed fidelis. Respondit Tomas, et dixit ei, Dominus meus et Deus meus tú es. Dixit ei Iesus, quia uidisti me, et credidisti: beati qui me non uiderunt, et crediderunt" [John xx. 26-29].

John, son of Zebedee, the beloved disciple of Jesus, the heir of the Virgin, the twelfth apostle in the order of the apostolate, the fourth Evangelist who wrote the Lord's Gospel, recounts the great and noble deed preached on this day, telling how the apostles and disciples of Jesus were in one apartment with closed doors, and Thomas with them, on the eighth day after Christ's resurrection, and how Christ came to them, though the doors were closed, to strengthen their belief in the resurrection, and how He stood in the midst among them, and blessed them. Hence John says, et post dies octo, &c.

(As to the connexion and context of this lesson, it follows immediately after the passage in which John had revealed Christ's previous appearance, as is told before in the Gospel in these words [John, xx. 24]:—)“Tomas autem, unus de duodecim, qui dicitur Didymus^(dedi), non erat cum eis quando uenit Iesus. Dixerunt ergo ei alii discipuli, uidimus Dominum. Ille autem dixit eis, nisi uidero in manibus eius fixuram clauorum, et mittam manum meam in latus eius, non credam.” So that it is in continuation of these words the apostle wrote the words of this lesson. Et post dies octo: id est, a resurrectione Christi, iterum erant discipuli eius intus.

Sexta ostensio hic narratur; quinque enim uicibus^(p) prima sabbati Dominus Iesus gloriam suae resurrectionis reuelauit;—prima, mulieribus ad monumentum; secunda, eisdem in itinere^(itene) egredientibus a monumento; tertia, Petro tristi post negationem Domini sui; quarta, duobus discipulis euntibus in uillam cui nomen erat Emmaus^(im); quinta, pluribus discipulis in Ierusalem [Luke, xxiv. 37-43].

“Et illis se spiritum uidere existimantibus dixit, uidetis quia spiritus carnem et ossa non habet, sicut mé uidetis. Adhuc autem illis non credentibus dixit, habetis hic aliquid quod manducetur? At illi obtulerunt ei partem piscis assati, et fauum mellis. Et cum manducasset e[or]am eis, sumens reliquias dedit eis. Gausi sunt ergo discipuli, uiso Domino.” Sexta, quando Tomas erat cum eis, ut hic praedicatur; septima, piscantibus a[d] mare Tiberiadis^(briati); octana, in monte Galilaeae illis undecim, sicut dixit ante passionem suam; nona, egredientibus illis undecim die qua ascendit in caelum, sicut Marcus dixit; decima, quando uiderunt eum ipsa die non iam in terra positum^(itci) sed eleuatum^(im) in caelum. Intus: id est, in domu

clausa erant propter metum Iudaeorum^[dico], ut Lucas dixit. Greges enim timidi^[tuis], pastore non apparente; discipuli pauidi, magistro ad horam moriente; nati territi, pio patre non praeueniente;—propter has igitur causas in domu clausa erant, et Tomas^[te] cum eis. Cur Tomas hic separatur? ideo uidelicet quia prius iste unus discipulus defuit^[diffe]. Reuersus quod gestum est audiuit; audita credere renuit. Uenit ergo iterum Dominus Iesus, et non credenti discipulo latus palpandum praebuit et manus ostendit; et ostensa^[nsu] suorum uulnerum cicatrice, infidelitatis illius uulnus^[un] san[auit]. Plus nobis infidelitas Tomae profuit ad fidem, quam fides credentibus discipulorum; quia dum ille ad fidem palpando reducitur, nostra mens omni dubitatione postposita in fide solidatur. Uenit Iesus ianuis clausis^[auis]: queritur, quomodo corpus dominicum uerum fuit, quod ianuis clau[s]is ingredi potuit? non enim corpora resurrectionis^[exi] penetrabant^[bert] dura et impenetrabilia. Resurrectionis quidem corpora nimirum subtilia erunt per effectum spiritualis potentiae, palpalia uero per ueritatem naturae. Pro miraculo ergo, dominico corpori assignatur clausa penetrare. Quid uero mirum est si^[is] ianuis clausis^[auis] post resurrectionem in aeternum iam uicturus intrauit, qui mo[r]iturus ueniens non aperto uirginis utero exiuit, qui siccis pedibus undas maris calcauit? Nihil enim ualet omnis natura contra Dominum naturae. Et stetit in medio eorum: nunc Christus implet quod discipulis promisit, dicens, “ubi duo uel tres congregati fuerint in nomine meo, ibi ego ero in medio eorum.” Et dixit eis, pax uobiscum: pacem praemittit, ut libentius^[le] a[u]diatur. Pax pacem praedicat: “ipse enim est pax nostra, qui fecit utraque unum” [Eph. ii. 14]. Pacificus Deus pacificis pacifica uerba loquitur^[oci]. Deinde dicit Tomae: oportebat ut ad illum^[am] uerba prae ceteri[s] flecteret, propter cuius documentum et ad firmandam fidem ueniret. Ad hoc enim Uia uenit, ut uiam erranti demonstraret;—ad hoc Medicus uenit, ut salutem infirmo praerberet;—ad hoc Lux uenit, ut in tenebris uersantem illuminaret. Infer digitum^[des] tuum huc et uide manus meas: id est, proba nunc quod prius dubitabas^[bis]. Paruum fuit oculis se uidendum praebere, si non praerberet etiam manibus contractandum. Et affer manum tuam, et mitte in latus meum^[am]: et noli esse incredulus, sed fidelis. Non solum manus et pedes, ut ait Lucas, indicat quibus clauorum claruere uestigia, sed etiam latus, quod unus militum lancea aperuit, ut Iohannes ait, ostendit, uidelicet latus dextrum. Respondit Tomas, et dixit ei, Dominus meus et Deus meus es tu: apte ab apostolo duobus nominibus appellatur, qui duabus substantiis humanitatis [et diuinitatis] adunatur, qui duabus legibus, i. e. uetere et noua praedicatur; cuius praecepto praesens uita contemnitur et futura acquiritur. Dixit ei Iesus, quia uidisti me, et credidisti: id est, quia uidisti signa passionis, credidisti gloriam resurrectionis; quia uidisti humanitatem, credidisti diuinitatem; quia uidisti oculis, credidisti corde. Beati qui me non uiderunt et crediderunt: laetificat nos ualde haec sententia, in qua nimirum nos signati sumus, sed si fidem nostram operibus^{lober} sequamur: ille etenim uere credit qui operando exercet quod credit. Hic eis beatitudinis praemia promittuntur, qui Dominum oculis corporalibus non uiderunt sed corde credulo credunt et ore confitentur. Haec est enim uera fides,—crede quae non uides, et quod ratione confirmas auctoritate custodias, ut ad ueram speciem peruenias.

Haec lectio sensum habet spiritualem, ad Christum et ad ecclesiam pertinentem. Mystice ergo, octo dies octo libri sunt Noui Testamenti, qui nomine dierum nuncupantur, quia sicut corporali lumine nostrum^{mm} corpus illuminatur, ita spiritali lumine nostra anima ad Domini mandata dirigitur, Christo dicente, “si quis ambulauerit in die, non offendit.” Inoffensum enim iter agimus, si secundum scripturam^{rarum} diuinam totius uitae nostrae cursum peragamus. Discipuli autem intus significant ecclesiam remotis Iudaeis et schismaticis et hereticis et falsis fratribus in secre[to] dimissis, sanctitatis suae sedibus societa[te]^{ctat} [et] pace sedere. Tomás autem, qui abyssus scientiae interpretatur, doctores ecclesiae significat. Sicut enim sine dentibus caput aegrotat, ita sine doctoribus ecclesia non ualet. Uenit Iesus ianuis clau[s]is: significat signa aduentus Christi; id est, pax et ser[e]nitas, concordia et fra[ter]nitas, unitas et caritas, mansuetudo atque simplicitas. Et stetit in medio eorum: significat presentiam diuinitatis Christi in ecclesia catholica permanere, sicut ipse ait:—“ecce ego uobiscum sum omnibus diebus usque ad consummationem saeculi.” Et dixit eis, pax uobiscum: significat ecclesiam pace contineri^{tere}, ut est:—“pacem meam do uobis.” Infer digitum tuum huc: significat ecclesiam uocari ad fidem per gratiam Spiritus sancti, qui est digitus^(deci) Dei. Uide manus meas : id est, crede humanitatem^(mun) et potestatem meam : “ data est mihi om[n]is potestas in caelo et in terra.” Et affer manum tuam et mitte in latus meum : id est, in scripturam sanctam. Respondit Tomas : id est, credit ecclesia dicente^(dec) scriptura. Et dixit, Dominus meus et Deus meus es tu : significat fideles diuinitatem et humanitatem Christi credentes.

Hæc iuxta sensum dicta sunt.

Moraliter autem, octo dies octo uirtutes animae sunt, quibus unusquisque iustus regnum pertingit æternum. Prima^(mac) uirtus animae fides, secunda castitas, tertia humilitas, quarta caritas, quinta prudentia, sexta temperantia, septima fortitudo, octaua iustitia. Discipuli autem Christi, qui intus perseverant; id est, perfecti homines qui semet ipsos considerant, qui semet ipsos despiciunt^(discip), qui nec proximos iudicant. Qui sic uiuit, ‘intus’ uidetur et inter discipulos Christi uere connumeratur. Tomam autem moraliter nobiscum tenemus, (qui abyssus scientiæ interpretatur,) si cuncta quæ agimus per spiritum sapientiæ secundum scripturam sanctam ordinemus. Sapientia^(fac) enim nos illuminat ipsa, nos ordinat ipsa; ipsa nos s[ua]adet mundum despiciere^(discip), Deum diligere, nudos uestire^(uis), pauperes satiare, caduca contemnere, æterna^(nc) complecti. Omnia bona quæ agimus, esse bona per sapientiam noscimus; et mala quæ fugimus, esse mala per sapientiam discimus. Uenit Iesus, ianuis clausis^(auis): id est, Christus ad nos, sensibus nostris contra mala^(hi) obduratis, intrare festinat. Oportet enim ut nostra uisio corripiatur^(rup), ne aliena concupiscat, ne rem proximi desideret, ne sæculi uanitatibus^(p) occupetur, ne præconum aspectibus delectetur^(dii); ut possimus cum propheta dicere:—“oculi mei semper ad Dominum.” Oportet quoque ut aures claudant[ur], ne uocem obtrec[ta]toris recipiant,—in hoc enim uitium paene^(ueni) uniuersum genus humanum labitur; ne uerbum otiosum audiant, ne otiosis et inanibus fabulis delectentur^(dii). Oportet quoque [ut] labia obstruantur, ne mendacia loquantur, ne stultiloquia, ne scurrilia, sed sobria et pia et iusta; ne respondeant maledictum pro maledicto, sed cum Dauid dicant:—“benedicam Dominum in omni tempore.” Istis igitur sensibus per ordinem obstructis, Christus in suum tem[p]lum adest, et pacem inter corpus et animam facit, ut caro sublatum spiritui et spiritus Deo, terrena deserens desiderio

Christi inardescat, ut cum apostolo dicat :—“ utinam [!] dissoluⁱ^[dens] et esse cum Christo ” [Phil. i. 23].

Haec iuxta moralem intelligentiam.

Octo autem dies, per anagogen, octo^[ta] tempora uitae sunt. Expletis enim sex uitae praesentis temporibus, et tempore sanctorum patrum requiescendi extra corpus consummato, octauum tempus futuri examinis adueniet^[ta]. Post illud ergo futurum tempus erunt discipuli Christi intus : id est, uniuersalis ecclesia et plenitudo corporis Christi in regno caelesti. Et Tomas cum eis ; id est, abyssus scientiae ; non enim tunc latebit quod nunc latet, nulla enim erit ignorantia quando fons scientiae potabitur, nulla[e] tenebrae erunt quando uera^[ro] lux apparebit. Tunc tota trinitas apparebit. Tunc humanitas Christi apparebit : “ ubi enim fuerit corpus, illic congregabuntur aquilae.” Ianuis clau[s]is : tunc enim ianua regni caelestis cl[au]sa erit ; nullus enim fornicator, nullus auarus, nullus iracundus^[co], nullus superbus, nullus inuidus aut dolosus, in illud caeleste regnum intrabit. Nulli denegabitur [dig]no, nulli praestabitur indigno. Tunc summa pax erit, summa quies ; nullus labor, nullus dolor, nec paupertas nec senectus, nec ulla mors, nec ulla nox, nec ulli cibi desiderium, nullum sitis aggrauabit^[rabat] incendium ; sed erit praesentia humanitatis et diuinitatis Christi, et praesentia summae sanctae trinitatis, Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti.

THE EPIPHANY.

Joseph received holy Mary to guard her according to the counsel of the angel under the name of wife, till she brought forth her first-born son ; so that it is on the track of these words that Matthew relates [what is told] here. [The text is, however, not given.]

The time when the Christians celebrate in each year this festival of the star is on the sixth of January, by the day of the solar month, which falls on this day of the week in the current year ; but John Cassian says that the Egyptians and all the Church of the South do not observe a distinct festival for the birth of the Lord and for the appearance of the star. This is owing to the fact that the Egyptians celebrate their festival on the first day that this star appeared, viz. the sixth of January; while the Christian Church in general celebrate it on the last day [that it was seen], on the sixth of January. For it is a journey of twelve months from Arabia to Judaea, but through a miracle of the Lord the magi came with so much speed such a long journey by sea and land.

Now the Church's name for this festival is "theofania," "apparitio Dei," which means the "appearance of God." That was natural, for it was on this day the Son of God appeared to the magi by the Star; and it is the name of the same day on which the holy Spirit appeared upon Him in the form of a dove in the hour of His baptism; so that it is to commemorate that circumstance the name was given, according to the meaning of the name applied to this festival, "the appearance of God."

The Bethel of Judah that is mentioned here is a city of King David, in which Christ was born; its name at first was Ephrata the fruitful, because the land was productive and fertile, and further because the fair fruitful produce, the Saviour, was born therein; for Bethlehem, according to the explanation of the name, denotes "house of bread." Fitting in truth was it that the King's Son should be born in a royal city, and that the everlasting Bread, Jesus Christ, should be born in the house of bread. It was right, too, to add Bethel of Judah, for there is another town of the name in the tribe of Zabulun.

Varied and doubtful are the accounts given by authors of the genealogy and family of this King Herod. According to Josephus, the chief historian of the Jews, Herod was an Idumæan by paternal descent, but an Arabian in the line of his mother. His father, Antipater, who was the son of a Herod, was captured in his childhood by Idumæan robbers, and was for long brought up by them in their evil ways; for owing to the poverty of his father, who was a priest of the temple of Apollo in Asculon, he could not redeem his son from them. When Antipater was familiar with the Idumæan land, he often used to go to Jerusalem, and there he formed a friendship with the priest Hyrcanus. The same Antipater had a son, the Herod here spoken of, in whose reign Christ was born. And it is from the friendship his father had with Hyrcanus, that he entered into union with the Romans, so that he purchased the kingship of all the land of Judæa from Octavius Augustus; and he was thirty-three years ruler over the children of Israel. This Antipater, the son of Herod of Aseulon, had a son Herod, in whose time Christ and John the Baptist were born, and it was this Herod that slew the children in Bethel of Judah. His son again was Herod the Tetrarch, in whose time Christ and John suffered death. But Herod Agrippa was the son of Archelaus, brother of the Tetrarch; by him Peter was cast into prison, and James the Great, son of Zebedee, was put to death.

So much for the history of the Herods.

It is enquired now, whence the race of the magi, and from what land came they? for many varied names are found applied to them in authorities, such as Chaldæans, Persians, Sabæans, and Arabians. They were called Chaldæans on account of their skill in art; or else they are called Chaldæans and Persians from the neighbourhood of their dwelling-places; but, according to their land and race, their proper denomination is Arabians and Sabæans. As the Scripture testifies when it says, "royal magi were these magi in their own lands"; and they came with great multitudes and varied gifts, to worship the Lord.

Why came they to Jerusalem rather than to Bethel of Judah? The reason is, that the star left them when they had come with it as far as the land of Judæa, and so they entered into the most celebrated city that was in the land, viz. Jerusalem; for they thought that the person they were seeking would be born of Herod, as he was king over that city, which indeed was his native place.

It is a question whether the star sprang into birth all on a sudden, or whether it had been long ago placed among the other stars, and became again invisible afterwards[?]. What authors mostly assert is, that it was produced suddenly from the ethereal light, and that it was resolved into the original nature of the elements immediately after the performance of its office ; just as the holy Spirit appeared suddenly on Christ in the hour of His baptism, and after that was resolved into the nature of the elements of which it was made ; or else, it was an angel of God that appeared in the form of a star, as is the opinion of St. Augustine. Authors discuss about the size, and height, and brilliancy of the star : some say that it was larger than the moon, and brighter than the sun, for the sun's light in the daytime did not obscure it, as any other star ; it appeared in the midst of the disturbed atmosphere, between the moon and the earth, but nearer to the earth than to the moon. When the King of heaven was born upon earth, the earthly king was perturbed ; for every earthly prince is weak in comparison with the heavenly power. Et omnis Ierosolyma cum eo : it was through flattery that they agreed with him ; or it was out of real hatred they had for Christ, for perverse limbs often agree with a perverse head. It was for this reason that they assembled the sages and leaders of the people, to know what was the opinion about the king promised to them of their own race, and to learn from them the city in which he was born ; hence it was that the magi were sent out by Herod to find out about Jesus. At illi diverunt, in Bethel Iudae : it is evident that the Jews utterly deserve the condemnation brought on them by God, because they not only knew long before the birth of Christ that He would be born [but also where], though they denied it. Tunc Herodes, clam uocatis magis : he called them apart, that they might regard it as a form of honour, in having their conversation with the king in secret, but also that the Jews might not know his intention about the child, and so might not in any way hinder him from putting to death their own real king. Et mittens eos in Bethlem dicit, "ite et interrogate diligenter de puero, id est, in ciuitate an extra ciuitatem, qua die vel qua hora et quibus parentibus natus sit : and when ye find him, tell me, that I may go with you to worship him ;" different is what he said externally in words, from his inward thought ; for outwardly he promised to worship the Lord, but in his mind he had determined to kill Him. Qui cum audissent regem, abierunt, et ecce stella quam uiderant in oriente antecedebat eos, &c : this is why the star failed the magi, that they might make clear to everyone the miracle that had been shown them, and that they might be the more rejoiced at leaving the star that had failed them ; as is plain from the sequel of the lesson, which says, uidentes autem stellam, gauisi sunt gaudio magno ualde, et intrantes domum inuenerunt puerum cum Maria matre eius ; and when they had opened their coffers, they gave Him these three treasures, gold and incense and myrrh : gold, in right of His kingship, for gold surpasses every other metal, as the king is above all men ; incense, in right of His divinity, for the smoke of it after burning rises up into the heights of heaven, in keeping with the nobility of the Deity ; myrrh, in right of His humanity, for it is customary to put myrrh round the bodies of men at burial, that they may fade away the slower, as was afterwards done in the case of Christ's own body.

Nomina et habitus, &c. [7024-7034.]

Et responso accepto in somniis, 'ne redirent ad Herodem,' per aliam uiam reuersi sunt in regionem suam : that is, not by the way they came from Jerusalem to Bethlehem ; or else they did not go back to their own land the same way they had come from the East, for they went by land, but they had come by water ; and they landed in the neighbourhood of Judaea, where a great storm overtook them, and wrecked their ships, in fulfilment of what the prophet had foretold, saying :—“ I will smite the ships of the sea with a great storm ; ” and God permitted this shipwreck that it might be a sure sign to the Jews to believe in Christ, i. e. through the fulfilment of the prophecy concerning Him, and that the magi might not go back to their country by the same way they had come, by reason of mysteries in keeping therewith.

This miracle of the star was prefigured long ago by the old sages : in the fiery column that went before the children of Israel from the land of Egypt to the land of promise, a sign and token of this star going before the magi from the same land ;—it was figured in the holy spies that were sent by the people of God to Jericho to see the land of promise, and who were sent back to their people by another way, to avoid the ambush laid for them when they were detected in their spying. The noble prophet Isaias foretold it, in the words :—“ There shall come many hosts from the land of Arabia, bringing gold and incense and myrrh in offering to God.

and they shall give glory and praise to God through their offerings." David, the son of Jesse, prophesied of it, saying:—"A gift shall be brought to Christ, of the gold of Arabia."

Such is the literal meaning. The spiritual significance is the following:—

The three magi who came to worship Christ: denote that all the races born of the three sons of Noah would believe in Christ and worship Him. They came from the East: referring to all the faithful who came to worship the Lord from every quarter; for the Sun of righteousness arose on every side for them, and illuminated the whole world,—never setting for the righteous even in the night, but it sets even at mid-day for sinners. They came to Jerusalem: i. e. to see peace, for 'peace' is a name of Christ, "for Christ is our peace; it is He who hath united both Churches," i. e. the family of heaven and of earth. The star before the magi: denotes the brightness of the Gospel, which brings men to the knowledge and belief in Christ. Audiens autem rex turbatus est: denotes the ruin and subversion of the devil, the prince of this world, by the obedience of Christ; for as the devil, through envy, brought death upon men, so He, through love, brought in everlasting life. Et mittens eos in Bethlem: refers to the faithful when they abandon the world, to apply themselves energetically to the hidden life, i. e. the Church, to partake of the everlasting food, the body and blood of Christ. And when they came into the house, they found the child in the lap of His mother: this denotes Christ being found in the church by the faithful folk who frequent the church, as says the Psalmist:—"I will go frequently to Thy house, O Lord, and will worship Thee in the holy temple where Thou dwellest." Et apertis thesauris suis: this denotes the three interpretations that the Church finds in Holy Scripture, viz. historical, mystical, and anagogical; or else, the three gifts offered to Christ by the Church, i. e. virginity, penitence, and lawful marriage. They went to their country by another road, i. e. when the faithful have put away from them the lordship of the devil, whom they formerly served in the way of injustice, they now, in the way of the Catholic faith, worship the true God, who is believed in unity of nature and in trinity of person, so that they serve Him alone, as the Scripture enjoins, saying :—“ Honour the Lord thy God ; and Him only shalt thou serve.”

This is the spiritual sense of the lesson.

In the moral reference, the three magi who came from the East : denote man in his threefold aspect, body, soul, and spirit, which after being illuminated by the light of divine instruction, bring the threefold gift, faith, hope, and charity, to the triune God, the Trinity. The star before the magi : denotes the mercy of God aiding man to love the doing of good, and to desire the worship of the Lord by offerings ; as the prophet testifies :—“ The mercy of God Himself stimulates me to every good thing I do.” Herod’s being troubled : denotes the subjugation of pride by lowliness and humility in the man who does the will of God ; as Solomon says :—“ The Lord removes from us the vice of pride by the grace of humility.” Apertis thesauris suis : i. e. when the righteous man observes the variety of virtues in the casket of the soul, he chooses out from them the virtue that is fairest before God, and offers it to Him. For the man who offers ‘ gold ’ to God is he to whom God has revealed wisdom, when he makes it of service to everyone by his teaching ; as the Scripture saith :—“ Though music and feasts delight the mind of man, far more does the divine wisdom.” He offers ‘ incense ’ to the Lord who supplicates with a pure heart in his prayer ; as saith the prophet :—“ May my prayer arise straight unto Thee, O God, as the smoke of incense which is burnt in offering to Thee.” He offers ‘ myrrh ’ to the Lord who subdues the vices of his body by abstinence ; as saith the apostle :—“ Subdue your body by fasting, that its desires may perish in that wise.” The magi who came to worship Christ with various gifts in various ages, in youth and ripe manhood and old age : denote, in the moral reference, that it is fitting for us to serve God in every age, and to offer Him these precious gifts, good thoughts and words and deeds. The magi went back to their country by another road : this refers to the faithful, who turn from the love of this world whose king is the devil, and walk according to the will of God in the direct way of the faithful, i. e. in Christ ; for this is a name of Christ, ego sum Via et veritas et vita : He is the way, for it is by Him that the righteous go to their fatherland, the heavenly kingdom ; He is the truth, for every good thing here below is false in comparison with the good things that are given by Him in the next world to the faithful ; and further, He is the life, for in Him the holy remain in their places, without age or end or decay.

Such is the moral sense of this lesson.

Dies ergo venerabilis est, &c. [7127-7141.]

We implore the mercy of God that we may all attain that unity, may deserve it, and dwell therein, for ever and ever. Amen.

[XXXIII.]

[It is unnecessary to translate the first part of this homily, which tells [7171] the story of St. Michael's saving the bull in the door of the cave, of his victory over the beast on Mount Garganus, and of his aid given to the Christians in their battle with the Pagans (Saracens). See the account (6276) supra. This homily continues as follows (7268) :—]

Be it known to you that Michael will come again to the help of the human race. For a man named Antichrist shall be born in the end of the world, his mother being his own sister. There is a grey protuberance in the exact middle of his forehead, in the centre of which is the one eye in his head ; he has one eyebrow, which stretches from one ear to the other, beneath his eye ; his whole body is one flat surface, as are also his feet. He pulls trees up from the roots, thrusts them upside down into the ground, and puts leaves and fruit on the roots and bottoms of the trees. He will make gold and silver out of the manure and dung of horses and camels, and from every useless thing besides ; and he will sow disbelief throughout the world. Water will not drown him, nor fire burn him, nor iron touch him. Now Eli and Enoch are still alive in paradise : great jealousy shall seize them, so that they will come to battle with Antichrist; but they shall have no success, for they will be slain. Then Michael will come from heaven, with his red, fiery sword in his hand, and he will slay Antichrist. Thus he will get rid of that plague. After that the day of judgment shall draw nigh. Michael will blow his trumpet, so that all will rise from their graves. The Judge will come to judge the human race; He will put the accursed children on His left into everlasting fire; but the holy and righteous children, i. e. the folk of charity and mercy, He will place on His right, to go to the kingdom of God, to partake of the feast prepared for them from the beginning of the world, in the unity of the almighty Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, through the intercession of the Archangel Michael, that we may all attain that unity, deserve it, and dwell therein for ever and ever. Amen.

[XXXIV.]

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

It is said in the twenty-ninth chapter of the book of Matthew, that a certain man came to the Heavenly Father, to ask of Him how he should get his portion of the heavenly kingdom. This was the brief reply He gave him thereon:—"If thou wish to go to everlasting life, keep the commandments we left with Moses, the son of Amra, between two tables." Some of these are negative, others affirmative. Those that are negative must be ever observed; but it suffices to observe the other portion when the time comes for observing them. It is thus that the learned understand this reply which the One God gave, viz. that every one who shall not keep His commandments shall have hell for his permanent abode. All such shall be cursed by God; as saith David:—"Accursed are the men who go astray from Thy commandments." And in the twenty-fourth chapter of the book of Moses we find that God commanded Moses to curse dreadfully the violators of the commandments. In the same book we find the blessing that God gives to those who keep the commandments, viz. everything that God promised them in this world, and the kingdom of heaven hereafter. "Thus, then, keep the commandments," saith God Himself, "and they shall keep thee."

The first commandment is this:—"Honour not false gods, but Me alone; believe Me, and on Me, and in Me, and put My love above everyone; and love thy neighbour as thyself." And the learned say that the ten commandments are (contained) in these two commandments: for if a man love his neighbour, he will not break one commandment of the seven commandments that refer to one's neighbour; and in this commandment [is involved] a non-belief in casting lots, in philters of women, in the voice of birds, in visions, in the moon's time, in forbidden days, or in any prophecy of men now living.

The second commandment:—"Take not the name of thy God in vain." This commandment is violated in three ways, viz. the first way, when a true oath is taken, either without cause or with a cause that entails a deadly sin; this portion of the oath is a lie on its being taken, and it is not permitted to fulfil it;—the second way in which it is broken is when an oath is taken, even though it be true, 'by the wounds of Christ,' or else 'by the limbs of Christ,' and this is a greater sin than the first, because they put an insult on God in naming His limbs separately like a created thing; and there is a figure about that in the book called Leviticus, how God Himself charged Moses 'to stone the woman who did the like of it'; and one cannot number how often and strictly God imposed heavy penalty on this sin;—but these two ways of sinning are petty in comparison with the third way, viz. the lies with which an oath is taken, for the fitting punishment for perjurers is to hang their bodies in this world, and in the next to torture their souls in hell. Now the sin of perjury is this: when a man swears on a book of the Mass or an image of God or of one of the saints negligently, so that this is the meaning of his oath: "I give up my pardon and my claim on the Mass-offerings, and on the assistance of the saints and on their glory; and I take to myself my share of everlasting punishment; not only so, but as to every limb which I move in proceeding to this oath, I forfeit every good deed I have done before through that limb, every 'Pater' that I have repeated before with my mouth, and every good word I have said, I give up all into the devil's hand." And as a man presses a kiss on the book after taking the oath, this is a taking leave of God for separation from Him. If this be so then, have cause for thy oath in taking it, and that too a right cause and for the truth, or take none at all.

The third commandment: "Remember to keep holy the Sabbath days," i.e. to do pious works thereon, as is said in the Apocalypse, and as saith Solomon in the nineteenth chapter of Ecclesiasticus:—"Do what is good on the good day, and do no whit of evil thereon"; for this is the highest form of keeping this commandment, and it is perilous to break, i.e. to avoid deadly sins on Sunday; there is a prefiguration of this in the twenty-fifth chapter of the book of Numbers, when Moses and Aaron cast into prison the individual they caught gathering his fuel on the Sabbath, till they should learn what judgment God would inflict on him; and the judgment God gave against him was that he should be stoned forthwith. The offence is thus made the weightier, as says Augustine, to him who does not avoid deadly sin on the Sunday especially; for it is a heavy burden which weighs the soul down with it to the lowest hell; it is of this burden that the prophet Jeremiah speaks in the twenty-seventh chapter:—"Increase not burdens on the Sabbath," i.e. sin; so, too, David in the psalm says:—"My sins are a heavy burden on my neck." Let us avoid sins on Sunday in particular; not that they are permissible on any other day, but by committing an offence on Sunday, breaking of this commandment intensifies the offence itself. And not only is sin to be avoided on that day, but it is also not allowed to do any act of service that would extend to sin, but the day must be held in honour; for it is said in the twentieth chapter of Exodus:—"Do thy works, the works of the body, on the other six days, but do no work on Sunday." And in token of this God did the six-days' work on those other days, but rested on the Sabbath. Well, then, since the soul is nobler than the body,—and not only so, but one soul is nobler than all the bodies which have come or will come into being,—since six days have been given for the service of the body, and this one day for the soul, it is not permitted to do aught thereon but the works of the soul, i.e.

offering and prayer, the reading and writing of divinity, almsgiving to the poor and works of mercy in general. And comprehend under this commandment every holiday, on which the Church enjoins its observance as the Sunday.

The above are the three commandments in reference to God; the seven following bear on our conduct towards our neighbour.

The fourth commandment:—"Give honour to thy father and thy mother," bodily and spiritual. There is many a reason why they must be honoured: in the first place, to lengthen thy life; for God Himself promised long life to each in reward for this, as is said in the twentieth chapter of Exodus, and also in the third chapter of the book of Solomon:—"Whoever shall pay this honour shall live for long." The second reason is, for a continuance of thy race; for God promised in the same book:—"Whoever shall pay this honour, shall have fair offspring." Another reason is given in the same book, where God said:—"Honour thy father, and thou shalt have the blessing of the Heavenly Father at the last day." And again:—"It is a glory to the son to honour his father, and it is a great disgrace for the father to be held in dishonour." And further, as Tobit says in the fourth chapter:—"Remember how thy mother bore thee in her womb for the space of nine months, and what pain she suffered in bringing thee forth, and her trouble and annoyance in nurturing thee; bear that all in mind, and recompense her, remembering the time when thou hadst no other support for thyself"; so then, when thou hast strength, give unto them as they gave to thee, for even were it not made incumbent on thee by God's commandment, nature itself enjoins this, through the tie of blood, and by the fact that nature is well-pleased in seeing the return of good for good. Well, then, since Christ has enjoined this on thee, and since He did so Himself before thee, as is said in the second chapter of Luke, that Christ was obedient to Mary and Joseph; and as the book of Kings says, that Solomon went to meet his mother to show her honour; and Ambrose says in the Hexameron that 'the stork puts its feathers and wings under its father when he is old'; so do thou take heed to pay this honour without reproaching them; show all reverence to them, and provide them with everything their body needs; and if thou see in them ignorance or evil habits, instruct and correct them without offending. Seeing that this would be required from thee to be done to any other person in the time of necessity, surely far more oughtest thou to help thy bodily father, or thy spiritual father, in their life, and after death, to bestow mass-offering, and almsgiving, and prayer, and to purchase for them their release from purgatory into the Kingdom; for this is nobler than any honour, and it is fitter to serve the soul than to pay honour merely to the body. And unless thou act thus, it shall be done to thee as was done to Absalom, who expelled from the kingdom his own father David: thou shalt have short life here below, and eternal death in the world to come. Not only so, but there is no boon thou wouldst get by keeping this commandment, of which thou shalt not get the very opposite by breaking it; for it is not to human beings that the learned liken those who do not keep this commandment, but to dogs: for as long as the dog is a whelp, he acknowledges his mother, and she is dear to him; but when he grows up, he no longer distinguishes his father or his mother from other dogs. Thus it is with such an one: nay, he is worse, for the soul of the dog perishes with it, but the soul of the wicked man lives in hell, as long as the glory of God endures.

The fifth commandment: "do not commit adultery." Under this commandment is included every form outside of marriage, though there are many [criminal] forms, one worse than another, it is right to avoid this for many reasons. The first reason is, that there is dishonour to God therein, in polluting and defiling with lust God's own temple and house (viz. the heart and body of the man or the woman that He redeemed and purified for Himself, when He enjoined the water of baptism to be sprinkled over either by the Church), and letting the devil lie there in his place; as the Psalm saith, "they kindled with the fire of lust the temple of God," i. e. man's body. Another reason for which it is right to abstain from this sin is, that it is a source of woe to the angels of heaven; as saith Isaiah, that "the angels cry bitterly when lust is perpetrated, whereby men have broken the tie of purity that connected them with the angels"; for, according to Augustine, the nature of men and angels is the same; and when a man hath sinned, he hath severed himself from the angel. The third reason why it should be shunned is, that it is a glory to devils ; for the sin of impurity is dear to the impure spirit. Ambrose saith, that though dear to the devil is every sin, this is second dearest to him in the world, the other sin being offering to the gods ; for by them body and soul are defiled, and man is sundered from his kingdom. And Augustine saith, that man is filthier than the devil, for the devil, who instigates the foul deed, flees away from it whilst it is perpetrated. The fourth reason is, that the sin of lust entails a loss on one's neighbour ; as saith the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians, " Let us not commit this sin as do other men " [1 Cor. x. 8], where the gloss says that twenty-three thousand people died through the women of the Midianites ; and through the sin of one night that was committed with the wife of the deacon, there died thirty-five thousand. Well, then, take heed to shun completely this evil thing, for it is of its nature to communicate contagion even to those who do not commit it, if they stay in its neighbourhood ; and remember not to tolerate its perpetration by thy neighbour or thy companion, if thou canst repel it from them ; for if thou tolerate it, thy soul will be responsible for it for ever, and probably its leaven will communicate itself to thy body, as it has done in other cases. Another reason for which this sin is to be shunned is its ugliness, for as a man would not like filth to be flung on his garment externally, just so, but more disagreeable by far would it be to have his body, the soul's garment, defiled. To prove this, we have what Job said in the tenth chapter ver. [11], " thou hast put flesh and skin like a garment about me " ; and Solomon saith that a lustful man doeth no more service to God than the brute beasts, for these eat and drink, live wantonly and in promiscuous intercourse ; just so do these men. It is a wretched thing for a man to go through life submissive to the corruption of the soul, and giving up to vice the pure, reasonable soul that God formed in His own likeness. And the apostle saith, " those whose life is passed in pampering their body according to its desires, will, after death, have hell as their life " ; about which Job said, that it is death without death, and end without end, and loss without loss, i. e. the death there will be living death, and the end ever beginning, and the loss knows not how there shall be the loss of itself. In sooth, then, foolish is the merchant who barter the glory that hath neither end nor beginning for the transitory glory of deadly sin and for everlasting punishment.

The sixth commandment :—“ do no murder.” There are five species of homicide, the first of which is ‘ bad example.’ It is this that prelates commit when they set a bad example in deed or word, or in negligence through failing in the correction of the people ; for the example and conduct and teaching of prelates is spiritual life to all that are under them : therefore when these get not their proper food, their souls must perish. As saith Gregory, “ every man that perisheth through failure of instruction, it is his bishop himself that hath slain him.” And this is far worse than killing the body, for when the body is killed, nothing happens but the separation of body and soul, the soul remaining none the less ; but when the soul is killed, it is forthwith severed from God, and that is the real death. The second species of homicide is ‘ hate ’ ; as a proof of which it is said, in the third chapter of the [first] epistle of John, “ the man who hateth is a murderer ” [iii. 15], for he hath slain his own soul ; as saith the Apostle Paul in proof of this, “ if I were to give all I have in the world to God’s orphans, and my body also to be burned for the love of God ; and if I were to do every good deed that heart can imagine, yet if hate of any man dwell in my heart, and I were to die therein without repentance, I should be in hell for ever.” The third species of homicide is ‘ killing by the tongue.’ To this class belongs backbiting, and also giving evil counsel towards murdering a man, as the Jews murdered Christ, and David Urial, and Herod’s wife John the Baptist. The fourth species is ‘ the murder committed by hand,’ as when Cain slew his brother Abel.

This is a terrible thing to do, even though it be done with justice ; [but] as Jerome saith, “ whoever is wont to commit murder and other evil deeds, such as theft and violence and perjury continually, the shedding of his blood is not murder, but obedience to God and the law.” But if homicide be committed otherwise than on such grounds, there are many things against it. The first is that nature is against it, for we are the children of one father and one mother, Adam and Eve ; and we have one spiritual father and mother, Christ and the Church. If so, since all of the race of Adam are doubly brethren, it is unnatural in us to murder one another. Further, homicide is against reason; for reason saith it is not fitting for thee to do aught to another that thou wouldst not wish to be done to thyself; as says Tobit, in the fourth chapter, "since it is manifest that thy abhorrence of death is above every other abhorrence, desire not to inflict death on any other man." Another argument for keeping this commandment is found in the fourth chapter of Malachi, where he saith that 'the murderer puts himself into a separate hostility against each person of the Trinity': he sets himself against the Father, in murdering His child, for every Christian is a child of God; against the Son, in murdering unjustly the man whom Christ redeemed, and that not with corruptible gold or silver, but with His own body and blood; against the Holy Spirit, for when the man was baptized, there was put over him externally the oil of consecration, which is understood as a sign of the Holy Spirit's being placed in his heart: hence, whoever slay him hath heaped dishonour on the Holy Spirit in that he hath violated His sign. To prove that, the sage saith, "Alas! what will the wretch do, who will have to fall, under the judgment of the three Persons in one Person, on that day when the doom is pronounced, when he shall have no advocate, but shall have to listen to the words, 'depart ye cursed into everlasting fire!'" And the book of Kings saith "that there will come a blast over murderers against the blast of the anger by which the murder was caused; and they shall be swept away like gnats into hell." The sixth species of murder lies in 'plundering a man of the means with which he makes his livelihood'; and this is the species of homicide committed by the lords, lay or ecclesiastical, who make the occasion of seeking their just right a ground for harassing their subjects, and not with a view to correcting them, but with a desire of gain; and if they do not do it themselves, they are at any rate thieves by means of their agents;—it is the sleep of the lion that such affect—with their eyes open, their stewards and agents plundering everybody while they themselves are asleep. God Himself hath foretold of this class, by the mouth of David, when he says, "they swallowed my people like a piece of bread," i. e. as bread is the first of all food that is made, so through every agency they set on foot for their lord's behalf, it is the property of the subjects that is plundered. Thus there are two sins in this deed : there is on thee the responsibility for the life of the man whom thou hast deprived of his livelihood, and the sin of the violence itself ; and it is necessary that thou be cleansed of everything thou in this way obtainest, before thou come into the presence of God.

The seventh commandment :—“ thou shalt not steal.” Under this commandment is included every unpermitted seizure of a thing which thou takest from a stranger without its owner’s permission, unless thou do it in the idea that it was granted by him. Consider whether there is relationship or intimacy with the person from whom thou hast taken it, on the strength of which it might be probable that he would give such permission ; and if there is not, thou art a thief in seizing it, even thou didst think that he would grant it thee ; for that was an unwarranted thought. But, if the relationship does indeed exist, and thou hadst no thought of ill-doing, thou art no thief, for stealing without the intention of stealing is not stealing. And for the same reason, when a man’s body is in need of a little food to keep him from starving at a particular moment, it is justifiable for him to take from a wealthy man (or it might be clothing of which he stood in need), provided that thy poverty did not arise from thy ill-behaviour, but is either voluntary poverty, or a dispensation of God, and provided that no deterioration in thy conduct arise thereby. For God hath left every good thing a common possession to everyone in the time of necessity ; and so, when thou art in need, thine own is everything thou shalt take from the wealth of that man, i. e. from his superfluity ; and since it is thine own, thou art no thief in seizing it, if thou do it without the intention of stealing, but thou art acting in obedience to the law, since the wealthy man was not willing to give it of his own accord. And not only is thieving but ‘ violence ’ [of robbery] under this heading ; only it is far worse. The violent seizures committed by plunderers are worse than mere thefts ; and therefore greater importance is attached to them here and hereafter. For according to the law and the canon, thrice as much and the restitution of the object itself are demanded from the plunderer ; while only twice as much and restitution are exacted from the thief, unless the latter is caught in the very act of thieving ; and so, as the bodily penalty for plundering is greater here than that for theft, the punishment of the soul will be greater in the world beyond.—The third kind of stealing is ‘usury,’ which makes money out of the difficulties of one’s neighbour. This is against the law of love; for it were incumbent on thee to aid the needs of thy neighbour, and to lend to him without extracting gain from him, unless such as accrue naturally to thee from the fruit of thy bargain; and to prove that every one who exacts usury is a thief, Matthew’s Gospel, in narrating how Christ expelled the merchants from the temple at Jerusalem, gives His words, “My house shall be called a house of prayer; ye have made it an abode of thieves.” And usury is worse than theft; for the thief carries off nothing but what he takes secretly, and it is mostly from strangers he robs; whereas the usurer plunders alike neighbours and strangers, both openly and secretly. Therefore it is that God Himself hath instructed us in the person of the prophet Jeremiah, “let each man guard himself concerning his neighbour”; and let him not take advantage of his brother on the score of usury, nor take this as gain; for Augustine says, “accursed is the gain out of which thou hast made thy fortune, and for which thou hast abandoned thy Lord”; and Luke says, “if it were the whole world thou shouldst get along with the loss of thy soul, what better wouldst thou be for it?” and where would be the disadvantage in a man’s losing the world, and saving his soul? Well then, since ill befalls him from the traffic the usurer adopts with a view to profit, he is deceived in his share of the transaction, i. e. he hath sold to the devil the valuable permanent thing for the thing which does not remain with him. As Solomon says, in Ecclesiasticus [x. 13], “there are three heirs of a usurer: beasts and serpents and worms;” his treasures remain with the beasts, viz. the friends of the flesh; his soul is left with the poisonous serpents, the devils; his body comes to the worms; and not one of these will give up its own share for the two other portions.—And not only are plunder and theft and usury included under this commandment, but ‘simony’ also, i. e. whatever shall be got for the gift of the Church or of any other spiritual thing, or the (spiritual) life that is got for money. Aye, and there is more evil in simony than in usury, because he who gives and he who takes are alike guilty of simony; but in usury there is only one offender, viz. he who exacts it.—Under this commandment also comes 'gambling,' for he who plays is a thief, and is far worse than the thief. To prove this, we say that he carries off the thing which is not his, without having any warranty but a title that is proscribed by the law of God's Church, by law and canon. This makes a thief of him in the first place, and next a plunderer; for the stake is exacted against the heart's wish of him from whom it is taken; so there is a twofold violation of this commandment therein.—And under it is further included 'avarice,' the root out of which grows every evil. Greed of thy neighbour's goods breaks other commandments: it causes perjury and lies and vain oaths without number—thus breaking the first commandment; it arouses anger and sorrow and hate, and often enough shedding of blood; it causes the abandonment of every good work; it wastes over ill arts the time that was given thee for God's service. Woe, woe, saith the sage, to him who takes the short road to hell, in doing this one evil thing in which every evil is bound up!—So, too, under this commandment comes also the 'taking of everything that is got by false witness and deceit', the invention of a false tale by which thou wouldst extort from a man what he will not otherwise give thee. And in general, the obtaining of everything thou gettest by doing something which is in itself a sin, comes under this command, so that there lies against thy heir an action during his lifetime according to law, by the person from whom was plundered any of the things we have mentioned above: if the person who got them repents, he will have to restore them in his lifetime, or in his time of purgatory, according to the decision of his confessor; and if he repent not of his sin before death, hell will be his portion, and a separate penalty for each of his sins, so long as God shall exist in His glory.

The eighth commandment:—"bear no false witness." He who bears false witness is he to whom witness is permitted in reliance on his integrity, and he makes a lie of the truth, and puts an oath on it as a seal thereof; as Beda says on the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew, "the man who is guilty of false witness follows in the track of Judas"; for he sold Christ, i. e. the truth, for falsehood. Such an one hath also insulted God, for he hath defiled the name of God as much as he could; and Leviticus saith, "do not defile the name of thy God," i. e. take not that name in perjury. Such a man is merciless towards God, i. e. he falsifies the seal of God, and hath further charged God with being false; as is said in Dialogo, "it is the name of thy God that is an oath to thee"; and God ordered this name to be put as a seal on the truth; therefore, whoever hath put this seal on that which is false, he hath asserted that God is false; and there is not one of the limbs of a false witness that does not enter into separate hostility with God. And not only so, but he hath inflicted death on himself; for in the first chapter [ver. 11] of the book of Wisdom it is written, that "the lying mouth killeth the soul"; and therefore, since this is so, the lie on which was put the seal of God, after being stolen from Him, would kill him, [i. e.] the oath that was taken in the name of God, or in that of any consecrated being whatever, if it had any such guarantee; for it is not allowed to take an oath on unconsecrated creatures, such as man, or the earth, or air, or any such thing. And if thou art not satisfied with what is said here on the score of perjury, look back to the second commandment, and more will be found there on the subject.

Further, the false witness does what is unlawful to his neighbour, as is said in the book of Proverbs [xxv. 18], "the false witness is to his neighbour a shot with a poisoned arrow and a sharp sword." This is an incurable sin; as Solomon saith, "it is impossible to cure a wound without knowing its depth, or till it be known"; thus it is not possible to cure the spiritual wound that false witness inflicts on the soul, till the evil that has arisen from it be remedied; and to find out how to do this is not easy, if, as a result of the lie, thou hast given one man's share to another, for the man cannot without injustice hold the thing thus gained, and thou art liable for the crime of the sin of both; and, therefore, it is incurable. And the prophet Isaiah saith that the man who bears false witness is like the beast locusta [or its name is bruchus till wings grow on it, and when they grow, it gets its name locusta, i. e. longa hasta]; it was the eighth plague inflicted by God on Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and his people, when He hardened them against Himself, and He sent ten different plagues on them. The first plague was, all the water turning into blood; but the names of these plagues are found in the book of Exodus. Now God gave the ten commandments to Moses and to the children of Israel over against these ten plagues; well, the plague that corresponds to this commandment about false witness is the locust, for this beast has three natures that are compared to such offenders: the first characteristic is that its teeth are hurtful, inasmuch as it bites off by the head fruits and vegetables and vines with its teeth: just so does the false witness, with his tongue, destroy men at their roots, in depriving them of their inheritance;—the second characteristic is the numbers in which they come: just so the world is filled with liars;—the third characteristic is that it makes its onslaught in the summer, and keeps close to the house in the winter: just so false witnesses leap from one sin to another during the whole of this life; and when the winter comes, viz. their death, they stop their playing, for there is no play where they then shall be, viz. in hell. It is certain, therefore, saith the apostle, that whoever during his lifetime is like this beast, shall have, as part of his suffering in hell, those same beasts gnawing his flesh and sucking his blood continually, as long as God is in heaven.

There are, besides, two other groups of false witnesses, viz. those who say evil things that are false, and those who say good things that are false. The first of these groups are backbiters, whom Scripture compares to unclean animals, such as the poisonous serpent, the asp, the fox, the pig, whose nature it is to seek the place and eat the food of the filthiest kind, but to shun clean places and meats: just so, when backbiters perceive any virtue or good deed in a man, they leave such without mention, and pounce upon every defect and blemish they find in people, and not for the purpose of correcting, but of reviling. But let backbiters take heed that they are doing injustice to themselves, to their neighbour, and to God; for they are robbing God when they take from Him His servant, i. e. when they make out the good man to be a bad man, they have given him to the devil as much as they were able; they also do wrong to their neighbour, when they filch away his good name, for a good name is better than gold; and they do wrong to themselves besides, for they give their own soul to the devil. There is an allusion to this in the nineteenth chapter of Leviticus [xix. 14], where God saith, “curse not the deaf man”; for it is the same thing to curse a deaf man and him who is not present. And be it known to thee, further, that this injunction extends also to those who give ear to the slander; for John Chrysostom saith that "the doing and the hearing thereof are the same," i.e. it is a sin in thee to tolerate such a man's doing harm to himself (by slandering others), and it is further a sin to tolerate him in taking away any man's good name. And, secondly, just as the tribe of disparagers break this commandment, so those who give false praise act in violation thereof: for the sage saith, "he who giveth deceitful praise is like Judas," viz. in praising and kissing a man whom one is giving up to his enemies, the devils. This is exemplified in the case of Joab, who gave a kiss to his own brother Amasa: he put his right hand around his head to kiss him, and held the sword in his left to smite him.—Another similitude is found applied to such false praise-givers: the devil's musicians, who sing sweet strains to sinners in order to lull them to sleep; as Isaiah [v. 20] saith, "woe to those who call evil good and good evil"; they are further called the devil's dogs, that bite the back parts of a man, while they pretend friendship to his face. Here, too, Isaiah [iii. 12] saith, "all men who call thee good or whatever deed thou do, deceive thee," for they have thereby hardened thee in the same evil. Whoever then shall praise a deed that is a sin in itself, that is the same as praising him for being against God, for thou hast thereby taken him in the devil's net; and so thou hast killed him spiritually, and hast slain thyself besides. For God's sake, therefore, avoid being an agent of the devil.

The ninth commandment:—"covet not aught of thy neighbour." Here note that the mere idea coming into thy head does not ruin thee, nor any thought however bad, unless thou grant it thy consideration and consent; as saith St. Bernard in his sermon, "no evil desire on the part of a Christian damns him unless he assent thereto." And therefore, the breaking of this commandment consists in the united imagination and reflection on the obtainment of a thing in an evil way, or in thy having an excessive desire for something on which thou shalt set thy heart, and which would hinder thee from the service of God, though thou mightest obtain it in a just way.—And this prohibition has two causes: first, as Daniel saith, "it awakens God's anger": in their desires they have ignored God, i. e. they have abandoned Him, abandoned the soul's Husband, who never goes away from His partner, unless the latter puts Him away; as God hath said, in the person of Matthew, "I am with you always": now, if so, when one abandons Him for the sake of an unsteady, false paramour, viz. the wealth of the world, what wonder that jealousy and anger should be aroused in God thereat? And the sage saith, that this bargain is a childish one, for it is the nature of a child to desire the thing that is worst, which is just what the covetous man does: he rushes eagerly to the various imaginations of his heart at once, to see how he could manage to obtain something, and having got it, how he might keep it, and how he might make additions to it; so that he defiles the bed of the Holy Spirit by these imaginations. And just as the child does not perceive the damage of the weapon or of the fire that threatens him, till he is burnt or till he is cut, so the covetous man does not notice the hurt inflicted by wealth till he falls into the cave of death; as saith Ecclesiasticus [iii. 27], "he who loves danger shall find death therein." And a parallel is found to him in the love that the bird has for the net or for the bird-trap, for the sake of the little morsel that is under them; and as the mouse loves the food in the mouse-trap, without understanding their danger; till the setters of those traps come for them. Just so are the people who love the world: they do not perceive that it is the devil who has set the trap, till, after death, they see him coming to them to take them out of his springe.—The second cause why covetousness is not praiseworthy, as the sages say, is that the covetous man is preparing a place for the devil. For it is in the trees that are hollow from fire or rottenness that foxes make their abode, and [on the top of which] crows make their nests: just so in the case of the covetous man, who is burnt up and rotted with greed, he becomes a nest for devils to dwell in his upper parts and excite him to the sin of covetousness, while he affords them caves in his lower parts for the devils to stir him up to the sin of the body. If this be so, then it is a crime not to hinder the thing that tends to arouse the anger of God and to prepare a place for the devil; as the apostle saith, "give no place to the devil" [Eph. iv. 27], i. e. be not covetous; give not to worldly defilement the love that is due to God. Observe that it is not the mere possession of wealth that is bad for thee, provided that it be got justly, and that it be put to a good use; the latter is not the case with an excess of wealth, but it blinds men; for as the blind man can neither work nor walk, so he can do nought who hath lack of grace; for he cannot distinguish good from evil, and thus, as his heart is blind, the devil carries him off in his ignorance. So, therefore, he who is thus blind and hindered by love of the world from doing the service of the soul, viz. charity and prayer, is thus warned by Matthew in his Gospel, "this is his special punishment, to be bound hand and foot, and be cast into the lowest darkness," where he shall never see light till the judgment, nor ever after that; where there shall be weeping of eyes and gnashing of teeth for the crime of the desires of his eyes and his mouth. And so, O man, for the love of God, devote thy life to lawful work, expended either on thy kindred [?], or for charity, but possess nothing in an evil way.

The tenth commandment :—"covet not thy neighbour's wife." The gloss adds that the mere wish for the sin is included under this commandment; for it is forbidden thee to harbour designs against thy neighbour's wife, even though thou do not effect thy purpose. And it is on account of the horror of this sin that a separate commandment is assigned to it, apart from the other species of concupiscence; for there is a heavy account of this sin given by Solomon in the twenty-third chapter of Ecclesiasticus [ver. 33]. In the first place, whoever breaks this commandment hath disbelieved God's law; for though every item of the law comes from God, yet the ordination of marriage is an immediate ordination of God, who, in the beginning, Himself made the marriage of Adam and Eve, i. e. in paradise, in the state of innocence before sin. The second evil such a one commits is the breaking of a vow. When a marriage is contracted, the man and the woman make a vow mentally that they will not be separated from each other till death. The third evil is adultery, which is the same as theft, the seizing of another's bed to defile it; and so, if the theft of cow or horse is evil, far worse is the theft of a human being; as the apostle saith, "the power over their own bodies no longer belongs to the married man or woman, but each belongs to the other" [1 Cor. vii. 4]. Wherefore, thou art a thief in taking from either what does not belong to that individual, as is also the latter a thief in giving it to thee. Nor is that all ; but many other mischiefs spring from the adultery : e. g. righteous heirs are for ever thrust out of their inheritance ; for when a man thinks that he has a son really his own, he makes his heir of him ; and in case he be not really his son, and he make of him an heir, the danger is great that the inheritance may be permanently diverted from the real heirs ; and since it is not possible to tell how to do away with the evil, the mischief it causes is incurable. From this sin there arises also an intermixture of blood ; for a man marries a woman in the expectation that he has no blood-relationship with her ; and so it may at times happen through this sin, that it is a blood relative he marries. Now the sage saith, “ woe to him who cometh into this world, and causeth these evils ” ; as also the Gospel saith, “ woe to him through whom offence cometh ; better were it that he should not come into life than to come thus. ”

Well, then, since these dreadful results attend adultery, it is right for thee, say the sages, to avoid carefully the things from which there would be a likelihood of an irresistible desire for committing the sin ; such as glances of the eyes, for the philosopher saith, “ the eye is the door of death ” ; and if this door be opened, and the devil be let in, he will turn the heart upside down, i. e. the temple of the Holy Spirit, and will take power over all this fort, the body, and will compel all its members to serve him thenceforward. On this account, Job saith [xxx. 1], “ I made a covenant with my eyes, ” against my doorkeeper, viz. the eyes, to keep them against evil glances, and to keep the heart against evil imaginings ; and Solomon also saith, “ my eye made a breach in my soul. ” And it was the gazing on the tree of transgression that Eve was guilty of in the first place. So the prophet Jeremiah [ix. 21] saith also, “ death entered in through the doors of my body and through its windows ” ; my eyes and my ears, and got power over me within. So, then, since these are the steps by which adultery arises, viz. the glance, then the interview, followed by paddling with the hands, and the deed in the end, be assured that each step in the series, together with even the intention, is a mortal sin. And the special punishment of this mortal sin, the breaking of the marriage tie, is the death of the first-born in this world, and the eternal death of the soul in the next. For pure actions are the children of the soul ; and since faith is the earliest of these actions, it is killed by adultery ; as saith the sage, “ adultery is not committed without the destruction of faith ” ; and when faith is destroyed, there is no value of service in anything that is done without a foundation. Therefore, O man, spend not thy time in obeying the desires of thy flesh ; for if thou do, Solomon saith, in the twenty-eighth chapter of Ecclesiasticus, that “ the flesh will deliver over thy soul in triumph to its enemies,” the devils of hell, a place where there shall be stirred up to fight against thee everything for which thou didst nourish an unrighteous desire, viz. thy five bodily senses, as is said in Ezekiel [xxiii. 2], “ ecce ego suscitabo omnes amatores tuos contra te,” &c. Finit, amen.

[XXXV.]

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

“ Sic ergo uos orabitur : Pater noster qui es^[eis] in caelis, sanctificetur nomen tuum, adueniat regnum tuum, fiat uoluntas tua sicut in caelo et in terra, panem nostrum quotidianum^[co] da nobis hodie, et dimitte^[t] nobis debita nostra sicut et nos dimittimus^[t] debitoribus nostris, et ne nós inducas in temptationem, sed libera nos a malo, amen ” [Matt. vi. 9].

The discoverer of every good thing, the mediator between God and man, Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, is the author of this prayer, to instruct His apostles and His disciples and the faithful in general till the end of the world, about the propriety of praying, when He said, “ thus shall ye pray,” &c.

Matthew, son of Alphæus, the celebrated sage of the Hebrews, wrote this prayer in the body of the Gospel, that the Church might not forget the order of the making of prayer, saying in the track of his Master, Jesus Christ, “ thus shall ye pray.”

As to the connexion and train of thought of this passage, it is found in the sequel of what Christ had said before while instructing

His apostles :—" When ye pray, do not have abundance of utterance, as the Gentiles are wont, for they think that the more heed shall be paid to them for the abundance of their speech. Do not, therefore, imitate such ; for your heavenly Father already knows what ye need from Him, even before ye ask and implore Him " [Matt. vi. 7-8.]; so that it is on the track of these words Christ said, " thus shall ye pray," &c.

It is asked, since the Lord knows everything that we need from Him, even before we beseech Him, why does Jesus command us here to pray at all? The answer is, that we might the more willingly set our mind and thought upon prayer to the Lord, who is ever ready to give every good thing we ask for ourselves ; and also that there might grow from this prayer a sanctity and consecration to the inner man, the reasonable soul. Hence it is that Jesus bids us here pray, in the words just quoted :—" thus shall ye pray," &c. ; as if this were what He said to His Apostles :—" Since I have forbidden you to make outcry and abundance of utterance in the hour of prayer, I now prescribe for you a model of short prayer, so that this is what ye shall say when praying :—" Our Father," &c.

Now it was for three reasons that Jesus provided this short prayer, the pater noster ; the first reason being that prolix prayer-making might not hinder the apostles from the order of preaching and the doing of wonders and miracles ; the second reason is, that it might be the easier for all to remember from its being short ; and the third reason, because there is not needed abundance of utterance in asking the Lord, as Jesus Himself testifies, when He says :—" Your Father, the Heavenly Father, knows already the good things ye stand in need of from Him, even before ye implore Him " ; hence it is that Jesus bade us pray, and say as we pray, " Our Father," &c.

When we say "Father" to the Lord in prayer, we confess thereby that we are children of the Lord God, and that the Heavenly Father is a father to us. The sages of the Old Testament, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, did not get this great honour of such a name from the Lord : naturally so, for it was more through fear of Him that they served Him in those times than for love and affection to Him ; but to the people of the New Testament, for whom were prepared a reward and the entry into the kingdom of heaven, God gave the great honour of this name, to say when beseeching and imploring Him, "O Father!"

Herein Jesus admonishes the wealthy and well-born of the world o exhibit no pride nor haughtiness over the poor and the lowly-born; for they have the same father whom they both acknowledge when they say in prayer, "Our Father"; for the wealthy and well-born cannot recite this prayer righteously and piously, unless they have a real belief in their confession of brotherhood with the poor and the lowly-born. Let us, therefore, arrange the order of our life on a virtuous and moral basis, so that we may be found brethren of Christ and chosen children of the Heavenly Father. For how dare the man who openly violates His will and commandment, address the Lord by this name, Father? For the Heavenly Father seeks to have holy children serving Him. What now is fitter for children than that there should be none dearer to them than their kind father? For what good thing will not the Father give to His children, the faithful, who pray to Him, since He has given to them the privilege of being counted as His own children, and that they should address Him as "Father"? Thou art for ever, without beginning, without end, as the prophet testifies, saying:—"Thou alone, O Lord, art He who endureth always, without limit, without end, to thy kingdom." "Thou art in the heavens," i.e. amongst the saints and the righteous who fulfil Thy will and Thy teaching; and the name of 'heaven' is given to them for their light and their brightness.

Hallowed be thy name: we ask the sanctifying of Thy name, O God, not in Thee Thyself, for it is ever holy, but in us ourselves of a truth, i.e. that we may be holy and unstained under Thy name. Now the sanctifying of God's name truly in us is, our being made perfect under its protection while we are in this world; as Jesus enjoins on the faithful, in another place in the Gospel, when He says:—"Let it be thus that the light of your virtues and your good deeds may be manifest to all," i.e. that the Heavenly Father may be praised and worshipped through your good deeds.

Thy Kingdom come: viz. the judgment-day; for the saints and righteous shall then receive every good thing complete from the Lord. It is a great audacity in a sinner to ask for the coming of the Lord's Kingdom, i.e. the judgment-day, without fearing the punishments and torments that shall be given to sinners in that judgment; for this is what in fact we ask when we pray for the coming of the judgment-day; and it is right for us to avoid, as far as lies in our power, the very great punishments that sinners shall suffer in that day.

Thy will be [done] on earth as it is in heaven : as are the angels of heaven, in obedience to Thee, without sin and without transgression, grant unto mankind that they may serve Thee on earth holy and unstained; or, as Thy will is [done] among the saints and righteous who fulfil Thy commandments and teaching, grant the grace of conversion unto sinners, that they may serve Thee in like manner; or, as the head of the Church, the Lord Jesus Christ, is in obedience to thee in every way, grant to Thy spouse, the Church, that she may serve Thee righteously and perfectly after that example.

Give us to-day our daily bread : the name of daily bread is put here for everything by which the earthly life of men is supported here below in this life; or, it is put for the mystery of the body and blood of Christ, of which the faithful partake every day at the Lord's table, the holy altar; so that it is in enjoining this duty Jesus saith in another place in the Gospel:—"Unless ye eat the flesh of the Son of the living God, and unless ye drink His blood," i.e. unless ye partake faithfully of the mystery of my body and my blood, "ye shall not get eternal life to satisfy you" [John, vi. 54]; or else, indeed, the name is put here for the spiritual joy that is in heaven at the holy and righteous fulfilling the will of God and His instruction. Give us to-day: to-day we seek that excellent nourishment, for it was not sought for in times past while men were in the darkness of sins and transgressions; but to-day, indeed, it is sought for, i.e. in the light of knowledge and confession, and in the presence of the Sun of righteousness, the Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God.

And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors : since we every day ask forgiveness of God, it is clear that we every day commit sin for which we need forgiveness; and as we daily ask forgiveness from God for ourselves, so let us daily grant forgiveness to those who annoy us. It is, indeed, required from every man in general to ask forgiveness, for there is none in this world without some sin or other accompanying him, even though he be a child of but one day or night; as saith the apostle John:—"If we say that we have no sin, we tell a lie about ourselves therein, and it is not true that we are so." Forgive us our debts: the debts we ask to be forgiven us, are the debts of our sins and transgressions; when we say this in our prayer, we confess thereby that we are sinners, and that we are dead in our sins and in our vices; for it is in truth death to any one whatever to be separated from God through transgression, but life to be converted to Him through good deeds; for disobedience to His teaching is departure from God, while coming to Him means the fulfilment of the divine commandments. As we forgive our debtors: what Jesus says here is, that we ourselves shall not get forgiveness from God, unless we grant beforehand forgiveness to those who have annoyed us; as He certifies in another place in the Gospel, saying:—"If ye forgive not willingly those who may have offended you, your Heavenly Father will not grant you forgiveness of your sins and your transgressions." Whoever shall not with heart and soul forgive his neighbour, it is not forgiveness he is asking for himself from God thereby, but punishment and suffering.

And leave us not in temptation: leave us not in despair or in intolerable temptation that we cannot support. It is not, indeed, right for us to ask of God, that no temptations at all should be put upon us—for often good arises out of them, such as the putting away of vices and the increase of virtues—but it is fitter for us to ask of Him what the prophet asked before us, saying:—"Try me and prove me, O God, with temptation not beyond my power." When we say in the Lord's prayer:—"O God, leave us not in temptation," we do not thereby ask that no temptations should be put on us, but what we ask is, that there should not be given us temptations beyond our power, which may sever us from spirituality and truth.

But deliver us from every evil: it is not enough for us to ask to be delivered from the evil which we have not committed, but that we should be freed also from the evil which we have done; for if God free us from each of these kinds of evil, there will be no peril nor danger to us from them afterwards. When we say in our prayer, "deliver us, O God," we call God to us to deliver and protect us, and we confess humbly and lowly that we are in bondage to our sins and our vices; for who would ask to be freed and released, unless he felt that he was in some way in bondage and evil plight? From evil, i. e. from sin, from the devil, from hell, from unbearable temptation. Amen, i. e. be it true; this is the lock and fastening of the Lord's Prayer. It is interpreted 'fideliter,' 'trustworthily,' by Aquila, and by Quirinus 'uere,' 'truly'; for it is true and trustworthy that there shall be given by God to the faithful all the blessings they ask for spiritually in this prayer.

It is right for us, moreover, to know that, however many other prayers are put up along with this prayer, we do not in them ask anything but what is contained in the Pater noster; whoever, therefore, in his prayer shall desire thus, "O Lord, grant me abundance of wealth and merits, such as Thou hast given to this other man; increase my honour, and my estimation, and my power in the world," and if he ask this with a view only to his own desire and his own eager wish, and not for the benefit of others, he cannot find in the Pater noster anything to which such requests correspond; whoever, therefore, prays in this fashion, God is not at all responsive to his prayer.

The Pater noster is recited in a whispered voice for six reasons:—first, to follow the advice given by Christ to Hisⁿ Apostles:—"O man of faith, when thou prayest, go into a secret place, and shut it behind thee, and there pray the Lord in secret;"—secondly, as a distinction from the prayer of hypocrites;—thirdly, for the honour and maintenance of the prayer itself, because to recite it in a whisper shows the completeness with which it is in the understanding and mind of each;—fourthly, to show that the Lord is nigh to them who implore Him faithfully, even though it is in a whisper they make their intercession;—fifthly, according to the practice in all counsel, for every secret counsel that exists between friends, is rightly held in a whisper;—sixthly, for betrayal, because it is usual to betray one's enemy in a whisper; and therefore the holy and righteous betray in this wise the old enemy, the devil, to the Heavenly Father, when they say in their prayer to Him, "deliver us from evil," i. e. from the devil.

This prayer was prefigured in many visions of the sages of the Old Testament: e. g., in the ladder of seven rungs that was shown to Jacob between heaven and earth, in token of this seven-membered petition, by which the faithful mount up to heaven;—it was prefigured, too, in the seven trumpets which the priests of yore blew at Jericho, when there fell at once the seven walls of the city, and the eighth wall was stricken, in sign and token of this prayer, by means of which are broken down the seven walls of the devil's city, viz. the seven capital sins, and by which the eighth wall is loosened, viz. the vice of gluttony;—as it was figured in the patriarchs, so it was foretold by the prophets, e. g. by Isaiah son of Amos, when he said:—"The Lord will make a short prayer, by which all their sins and vices shall be forgiven to men."

This is the iron hammer by which the power of the devil is broken, as saith Job in the person of the Lord:—"I will break thy power, O devil, saith the Lord, with an iron hammer," viz. with the Pater noster. It is the Lord's own prayer; it is the special prayer of Christians; it is a prayer reposing on the mystic number, seven, which is usually employed in Scripture to denote mystery and completed significance; it is a prayer that surpasseth every prayer; for seven excellent gifts are enumerated as belonging to the Holy Spirit; among the sages of the Old Testament seven days were devoted to the celebration of the Passover; and there are seven weeks of festival from Easter to Whitsuntide.

By these seven petitions of the Lord's Prayer, together with the general introduction which stands before them, the eight capital sins are put to flight, viz., pride, lust, avarice, haughtiness, gluttony, anger, sadness, melancholy;—because lowly entreaty of the High Father puts down pride; the sanctifying of God's name in us through chastity puts away lust; the continuous supplication for the coming of the kingdom of God removes avarice; the desire of performing God's will lowers boastfulness; the asking for daily bread restrains gluttony; the forgiving of sins without maintenance of hostility subdues anger; serenity and constancy in the endurance of persecution and temptation puts away from us the vice of earthly sadness ; and freedom obtained from the Lord removes melancholy.

There are multitudes in the Old and New Testament whom prayer profited ; thus it availed Moses, the leader of God's people, when he vanquished the Amalekites, and that not by the might of spear or sword, but by the might of prayer ; so when, as is told in Scripture, the believing king, Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz, put up fervent prayer to God on occasion of his being besieged in Jerusalem, the angel on that night smote one hundred and eighty-five thousand of the Assyrians ; further, when the same Hezekiah, being in intolerable disease, so that he was nigh unto death, offered prayer and made fervent repentance, the Lord added fifteen years to his life ; again, the believing woman, Anna, of whom mention is made in the Book of Kings, had the famous son, Samuel the prophet, given to her, when she fasted and prayed earnestly to God ; so, in the case of the publican, whom Jesus commemorates in His parable in the Gospel as coming into the temple of Jerusalem, where he beat his breast in humble and lowly fashion, saying as he prayed :—" Lord, be merciful unto me, and grant me forgiveness of my sins and vices," there was given him full pardon of his sins and transgressions for that prayer. It is plain from these examples, that there are many in both Testaments to whom prayer hath been of service.

" Dear brethren," saith the sage, " if we would wish forgiveness from God, let us pray fervently and willingly to Him, as the apostle enjoins on us in the words :—' pray without remissness ' ; hence, whoever makes it a habit to pray spiritually, let him avoid perishable things, let him desire those that are permanent, let him yearn to gaze upon the Sun of Righteousness, Jesus Christ, in heaven, as he cannot now see Him on earth. Let us, in all good will, turn our eyes and our thoughts to God, if we would wish to dwell for ever in the land of the living, in the Heavenly Kingdom ; for if in this world we fix our hearts and minds cheerfully on the Lord, we shall at some time attain to the excellent welcome that hath no limit nor end, when we shall find these blessings, everlasting festival, peace without strife, rest without disturbance, in the unity of the patriarchs and prophets of the world, of the martyrs and apostles of the Lord, of the saints and holy virgins of heaven's family, in the unity that is higher than all other, the unity of the high and reverend Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

We implore the mercy of Almighty God, that we may attain to that unity, may deserve it, and dwell therein, for ever and ever. Amen.

[The Latin comment [248 β 7] is as follows :—]

Qu[ae]ritur cur^[cum] qui nouit quod necessarium nobis sit priusquam petemus ab eo, orare nos praecepit? Unde dicitur hic, “sic ergo,” &c.; ac si diceret, dum clamorem et multiloquium prohibui in uobis, breuissimae orationis definitio^[definitio] regulam, dicendo, “Pater noster,” ut supra. Tribus autem causis breui^[a]ta est haec oratio. Scit enim Pater noster quid opus sit uobis antequam petatis eum. Dicendo Patrem nos filios esse confitemur, &c. Hoc priuilegium non acceperunt patriarchae^[arum] .i. Abraham et Isaac, et Iacob, et caeteri sancti in ueteri Testamento, sed seruire nomen timoris .i. Dominum [MS. nesse; this should prps. be read nosse, dependent on privilegium (?)] a[d] timorem non ad dilectionem. Utitur ergo nouus populus noua uoce ad aeterna[m] beatitudinem uocatus, et dicit, “Pater noster.” In his [i]taque moribus ita uiuendum est ut filii Dei et fratres Christi esse possimus. Nam quomodo Deum patrem suum uocabit qui uoluntate eius degenerat? Mundus enim pater mundos filios quaerit. Quid autem filiis carius esse debet quam pater? Qui[d] enim petentibus filiis non dabit^[t] pater, cum et hoc ipsum ante dederit, ut filii essent, et dicant, “Pater noster qui es in caelis”? Qui es in caelis .i. sine initio et sine fine, ut dicitur, “tu autem idem ipse es^[ess], anni tui non deficient” [Ps. ci. 28]. In caelis .i. in sanctis et in iustis. Sanctificetur nomen tuum: non in te sed in nobis. Sanctificatio autem nominis Dei est perfectio nostra, quando glorificatur Deus in operibus nostris, ut dictum est, “sic luceat lux uestra coram hominibus, ut uideant opera uestra bona et glorificent patrem uestrum qui in caelis est” [Matt. v. 16]. Adueniat regnum tuum: iudicium^[nucium]. Uox audax est peccatori, ut regnum Christi quod est iudicium roget uenire et iudicium non timere; dum ergo optamus iudicium, deuitemus gehennae supplicium. Fiat uoluntas tua:

hoc est, sicut angeli sine culpa^[ai] tibi seruiunt in caelis, ita homines quomodo decet et quantum possunt, in terris; uel, sicut in sanctis et iustis, ita et in peccatoribus; uel, sicut in Domino Iesu Christo, ita et in ecclesia sponsa eius. Panem nostrum: panis quotidianus^[co] aut pro his omnibus dictus est quae huius uitae necessitatem sustentant, aut pro sacramento corporis Christi quod quotidie^[cotidē] accipimus; hinc Ueritas dicit, “nisi manducaueritis carnem filii hominis et biberitis eius sanguinem, non habebitis uitam in uobis,” [John, iv. 54]; uel certe pro spirituali cibo^[p], de quo Dominus dicit. Da nobis hodie: hodie quoque petitur hic summus panis, quia in tempore^[noc] peccati et ignorantiae non postulabatur, sed hodie, hoc est, in lumine fidei et scientiae et in sole iustitiae, qui est Christus. Et dimitte nobis, &c.: qui quotidie^[co] nobis dimitti^[mito] petimus, quotidie^[co] facimus quod^[si] dimittendum^[t] sit; et qui quotidie^[co] dimitti petimus, quotidie^[co] dimittamus. Omnibus autem dimitti orandum est, quia nemo potest esse sine peccato, etiamsi infans^[nc] unius diei sit, ut Iohannes^[is] dicit, “si dixerimus quod peccatum non habemus, ipsi nos seducimus, et ueritas non est in nobis,” [1 John, i. 8]. Debita nostra: debitum quid est nisi peccatum? Dicentes ergo ‘dimitte nobis,’ peccatores nos esse confitemur et mortuos;—a Deo enim exire, mori est; ad Deum uero reuerti, reuiuiscere est; a Deo exire .i. a mandatis eius declinare; uenire utique ad eum, praecepta eius implere. Sicut et nos dimittimus, &c.: hoc pactum signif[ic]at, nos non posse ueniam peccatorum aliter promereri, nisi prius delinquentibus in nos aliis relaxemus, sicut paulo post dicit, “nisi dimiseritis hominibus peccata^[to] eorum, nec Pater uester caelestis dimittet uobis peccata uestra,” [Matt. vi. 15]. Quisquis autem non ex corde dimiserit, non indulgentiam sed condemnationem a Deo deprecatur. Et ne nos inducas in temptationem: .i. in desperationem aut in aliam rem quam sustinere non possimus. Non enim orandum est, ne temptemur, sed potius cum Psalmista dicamus, “proba me, Domine, et tempta me” [Ps. xxv. 2]. Cum ergo dicimus in oratione Dominica, “et ne nos inducas in temptationem,” nonne hic petimus, non temptari sed ut non feramur in temptationes quas sustinere non ualemus. Sed libera nos a malo, amen: non solum orandum est ut non inducamur^[iudic] in malum quo caremus, sed ut ab illo liberemur quo indu[c]ti sumus:

quod cum factum fuerit, nihil formidolosum manébit. Dicendo [“libera nos”], unum Deum quem credimus ad liberandos nos inuocamus, confitemur sí[c] nos esse captiuos et in terra captiuitatis morari; quis enim liberari orauit, nisi qui in captiuitate seruiuerit? A malo: .i. a peccato. Amen: signaculum orationis Dominicae, quod Aquila interpretatur ‘fideliter,’ nos ‘uere’ possumus dicere.

Sciendum autem, quod ali[i]s uerbis licet oremus, nihil tamen plus dicimus, si recte oramus, quam quod in ista oratione positum est. Qui ^[quod] autem dicit in oratione, “Domine, multiplica diuitias meas, aut da mihi tantas quantas illi,* honores meos auge, fac me potentem atque clarum in hoc saeculo,” et eorum habet concupiscentiam, non id appetens ut ex hoc secundum Deum prosit hominibus, puto non eum invenire in oratione Dominica quo possint haec uota adaptari;—quisquis autem sic orat, oratio eius non est acceptabilis apud Deum.

Sex autem causis haec oratio silenter canitur;—prima, ut adimpleretur quod Iesus dixit, “intra cubiculum^[dic] tuum, [et], clauso ostio, ora Patrem tuum in absconso”;—secunda, ut oratione distaret hypocritarum;—tertia, pro honore^[oir] orationis, et ut plenior esset in pectoribus et in ore uniuscuiusque;—quarta, ut sciamus quod prope est Dominus inuocantibus eum etsi in silentio sit uocatus;—quinta, more uniuscuiusque consil[i]i: quodcumque enim consilium secretum fuerit inter amicos, in silentio sit;—sexta, fraudis consuetudine; mos enim proditorum^[pōit] [?] inimicum prodere silentio; in silentio igitur omnes sancti antiquum hostem produnt Patri caelesti, dicentes “libera nos a malo.”

Haec autem oratio Dominica figurata est in scala uísa ab Iacop in Bethel, cum septem gradibus attingente a caelo usque ad terram;—figurata est in septem^[vi] tubis erga Hericó clangentibus et muros diabolicae ciuitatis subuertentibus. Prophetata^[f] est per Isaiam [?] prophetam, dicentem, “faciet Dominus uerbum breuissimum super terram, uerbum consummans et breuians iniquitates hominum.” Hic est malleus ferreus, quo contritus est diabolus,

* I have given conjectural emendations on this corrupt passage, which stands thus in MS. [249 β 64]: “quantas illi homines meos auge fac me hñs concupiscentiam potentem atque declarantem in hoc saeculo et hec etiam eorum hñs concupiãam non id appeteres ut ex hoc ser. dñm posit hominibus, puto . . . ocaptañ.”

sicut dicitur, “ malleo ferreo conteram soliditatem tuam.” Haec est oratio Dominica; haec est oratio Christiana; haec est oratio mystica, consistens consecrato frequenter numero septenario^[tia] in scripturis; haec est oratio orationum. Septem enim dona Spiritus Sancti^[tus] sunt; septem dies celebrationis paschae; septem hebdomadae a Pascha usque ad Pentecosten. Hīs septem petitionibus cum praefatione communi septem principalia uitia abiciuntur; hoc est, superbia, fornicatio, auaritia, cinodoxia, gastrimargia, ira, tristitia, accidia:—Patris excelsi humilis inuocatio superbiam excludit^[cau]; sanctificatio nominis Dei per castitatem in nobis fornicationem retundit; regni aduentus imploratio^[ia] auaritiam expellit; desiderium uoluntatis Dei cinodoxiam deprimit; panis quotidiani^[co] postulatio gastrimargiam iacit; dimissio peccatorum iram aufert^[aff]; non iactari fluctibus temptationum tristitiam abstergit; libertas a Domino quaesita accidiam retrudit.

Multis autem profuit oratio: Moysi quidem, quando cum Amálech non gladio sed oratione pugnavit;—Ezechie, quando cum populo in obsidione positus orauit, propterea angelus centum octoginta quinque millia occidit:—item Ezechie, quando in exitu mortis orauit, et quindecim annos aetati additós inuenit;—Anna uxor Elcana inanem cibo uentrem filio meruit implere;—publicanus^[pl] in templum ueniens orabat, et percutiens pectus suum, aiebat, “ esto mihi, Domine, propitius peccatori,” et uen[i]am peccatorum accipere meruit.

Fratres ergo, si ueniam peccatorum accipere uolumus, deuota mente oremus^[ra] ad Dominum; scriptum est, “ orató^[tes] sine^[m] intermissione.” Qui enim frequenter orat, desideria terrena fugit, aeterna desiderat, solem iustitiae uidere in caelo cupit quem in terra uidere non potest. Oculos ergo leuamus ad caelum, si in terra uíuentium mánere cupimus; et si toto corde et amore hic ad Dominum tendimus, ad supernam laetitiam quandoque perueniemus; ubi sollemnitatis sempiterna^[nai], requies segura, pax uera.

[XXXVI.]

Through the Spirit that illuminates and reveals the gifts and mystery of the divine deeds, David, the son of Jesse, the king and celebrated poet, asked, saying:—"O Lord, who shall dwell in the lowest tabernacle Thou hast, and who shall rest in the height of Thy excellent kingdom among Thy holy angels?" [Ps. xiv. 1], He is answered by the Holy Spirit in these words:—"He who is chaste, without defect (i. e. sin) cleaving to him, he who ever fulfils righteousness, he who doeth every good thing in his power, he who speaks the truth in his heart without deceit or art, he who doeth no evil to his neighbours, he who seeketh not benefit for himself alone, but common blessings for the human race, and he who annoyeth not his brethren by any kind of evil." So that it is to fulfil this Jesus said in his Gospel, "Amen, dico uobis, nisi conuersi fueritis, et efficiamini sicut paruuli, non intrabitis in regnum caelorum" [Matt. xviii. 3].

For it is a difficult climb for the soul to climb the seven heavens. This is what St. Augustine says:—There come two hosts to meet every soul on its parting from the body, viz. a host, vast, intolerable, bright, with the brilliancy of the sun, with radiant light, with sweetness of music, quiring of angels, unspeakable welcome from angels of heaven, to meet the soul if it be happy and righteous;—but if it be sinful and ill-fated, there cometh a host, great, black, dark, many-stenched, all-glowing, contentious, wrangling, smiting, hasty, foul, empty, angry, wild, charred, yelling, noisy, bitter, sharp, mournful, fierce, merciless, grievous, murderous, ruinous, cruel, pitiless, awful, fierce, poisonous, hostile, despicable (?) perverse, very subtle, courageous, evil, reviling, quarrelsome, of demons to meet the soul of every sinner. That host is the instigator of every evil, and the hinderer of every good thing. And it is thus these hosts present themselves, with fiery clubs flaring in their hands, and bearing red fiery spits, heavy iron sledge-hammers, mighty red-hot battle-stones, sharp spear-pointed nails, red very rough spears, strong fiery swords, heavy sharp-edged axes, charred (?), old-rough flails, and all devilish weapons in general. To smite and torture the soul of every sinner comes the vast host of the demons with these weapons ; and they thus address the soul :—" O miserable soul, in whom the instigation of every evil was easy, and that did not accept any good thing at all, where art thou now ? art thou in thy body ? and if thou art, listen to us till we speak to thee now " ; for they had not yet caught the soul out of the body. " Why art thou exhibiting no pride now ? for never till to-day didst thou abstain from showing it ;—why art thou without blasphemy, and abuse, and anger, and greed, and the desire of every evil thing ? for thou wast never before without doing some of these evils ; and why art thou now inactive therein ? Thou didst love the world greatly of old ; and it is the world that hath beguiled thee ; it is it that now gives thee up into our hands," said the devils to the wretched sinful soul. " What means thy present silence ? Rise now, and go up to the world so dear(?) to thee of yore in its contentiousness, for the abundance of thy love for it. Why art thou now without desire for the food, to which once thou didst show so much love ? Why drinkest thou no more now at the banquet, and no longer seekest thou for varied dishes ? for thou wast not slow in seeking them hitherto. What is this rolling thine eyes are making in thy head, and why starest thou so now ? What is this quivering over thy lips ? for we see thy teeth all laid bare. Why are thy lips growing pallid and black-blue ? and why are thy feet growing cold and black now ? What silence has come over thy deceitful heart, that no longer is engaged in plots and lies, such as were concocted by it ever before till to-day ? Why lettest thou not thy breath out now ? for often thou didst heretofore after gratifying thy will in every kind of wickedness."

Therefore, the enormous, vast, black, dark hosts of the demons sing a diabolical quiring and a bitterly harsh mockery of song without melody or pleasure to the sinners, i. e. to the sinful soul on its exit from the body, for up to this time the soul was yet in (?) its body : and this is what they say :—" Arise, ye demons, and take your fighting weapons, and smite this wretched body that hath done despite to God's will in the past, and hath done the will of our master, Lucifer, with his rabble rout ; aye, and bruise and wound the soul that hath consented to that body in offences and sins, and hath not obeyed its Creator by the performance of good and lawful deeds : and after smiting it, drag it away with you into the pit of hell, over bare red-hot stones, over red spits of iron, over deadly-cold red streams of fire, and to all the other manifold tortures of hell." After this the demons seize those varied weapons to torture the unhappy soul.

Thereafter, the soul goes to the mouth to see if it can get away through it ; but death says to the soul, " come not this way, for I am here." Next, the soul goes to the nose to pass by it ; but death comes to meet it, saying, " this is not thy way, for I am here." Then it goes to the eyes for the purpose of getting away through them ; but death says to it, " go to some other place, for thou shalt not come here." Then the soul goes to the cavities of the ears, if it may perchance find entrance ; but death says, " come not against me, for I bar thy way." After that the soul goes up by the crown of the head, and alights on it outside ; and thus it speaks in its astonishment at the garment of air that it has round it :— " Whatever is this garment that is around me ? and who hath given it me ? this garment of perturbed air that is around me ; but I never knew it in times past, and this is not my own garment at all. Where is my garment ? the bright, beautiful garment I put round me at first when I entered into this corrupt body. And though it was beautiful and bright with the light of the sun, with the brilliance of the everlasting light, when this garment first came, it is murky, filthy, dimmed, horrid, frightful now, with the heavy aspect of its sin on it. And now who has torn from me my original dress ?" says the soul ; " who hath dared to deprive me of it ? where is it, that I may again put it around me ?" Then the demons reply, as they smite it, saying :— " O wretched soul, haunt of the devil, treasure of anger, keep of avarice, eager desire of vain praise, foster-mother of the poisonous demons, recollection of every evil, forgetfulness of every good, stinking corner of all sins, real contriver of manifold deceits, door of hell, hurdle against heaven [?], worthy wife of the devil, spouse of the family of hell, sport of these black demons, expectation of the darksome host, stronghold of the demoniac throngs, neglecter of the Saviour of mankind, adamant for thy hardness in listening to the teaching of God's word, greedy of worldly treasures, and withal unmunificent therewith, uncharitable to God's orphans, full of complaints, reproaches, prejudices, full of evil speaking, trickiness, and coarseness, haughty, never refusing (?) any sort of evil, listen to us now, till we speak with thee," say the demons to the wretched sinful soul. "It was by us was given to thee that garment that is around thee, thou miserable soul! the garment of death and sin, which has become foul itself as thou art foul.

"It is not unnatural for thee to have that robe about thee," the devils go on to say to the soul, "for many before thee have worn it, though it was grievous to them. First Adam wore it after his sin of transgression. Then his son Cain wore it after slaying his brother Abel through jealousy. Judas Iscariot, too, put on the same robe when he betrayed Jesus Christ, the Saviour of mankind; and the Jewish high priest Caiaphas, when he urged Christ's crucifixion. Why, therefore, should we cast it up against thee, as if thou wert alone in the wearing of this robe? Why, almost the whole human race have worn that robe, i. e. the robe of sin." Then they say to it:—"O wretched soul! cast a glance on thy body now, and see the black, dark, gloomy habitation in which thou didst dwell in times past, the place whence thou hast come hither to meet us." Thereupon the soul doeth eager, woeful, sad repentance, with loud outcry and penitent utterance that availeth it not: the name of that repentance in the Holy Scripture is sera penitentia, which serveth no man. And the soul saith:—"Almighty God, now I do earnestly repent unto Thee of my many sins. I am sorry for them now, though they were dear to me when I committed them." At this expression of repentance the demons let the soul go heavenwards, for the purpose of mocking it. So it goeth thitherwards on being allowed to escape; but then the demons rush against it, vengefully and dreadfully, roughly and mercilessly, with violence of language, and an eager desire to torture the soul, so as to stop it and hinder it from getting to heaven; and they say to it:—"We see plainly that thou wouldst fain now go to heaven; but we never noticed that wish in thee hitherto; neither from thy actions, nor thy good will, nor thy humanity, nor thy humility, nor thy lowliness, nor any kind of good deed, did we perceive that thou hadst any desire of going to heaven, whilst thou wast eager for the wealth of the world. Whither goest thou, wretched? How darest thou go? What good thing hast thou [to show] in seeking heaven, as is now thy wish? Turn back now, thou miserable soul!"

Thereupon the soul returns to the body, against which its anger is aroused, so that it proceeds to heap reproaches on the body, saying:—"O stubborn body, temple of the devil, black, dark, miserable, devilish abode, stinking well, nest of worms, treasure of the collection of every sin, [filled with] readiness to meet and converse with the devilish throngs, but with neglect and laziness in respect of fasting and prayer and listening to God's teaching, place pleasing to the devil with his rabble host, neglect of all preaching and teaching, thou all [boasting?] and empty glory, thou storehouse of old sins and addition of new sins, with thy face towards faults and thy back towards good deeds, ashamed of good, without shame of evil! I shall only be a short while remaining with thee now, during which I will cast up against thee thy evil and unbelief and sin, so that thou shalt be accused in the presence of these devilish throngs. O stubborn body, hardened against the fulfilment of God's word, obedient to thy foe the devil, disobedient to thy friend Jesus Christ; thou king merciful and tender in pardoning thine own evil, judge iniquitous and merciless in respect of the sins of all others, adamant towards the divine counsels of God and towards the will of thy bodily parents; thou stinking body, filthy ashes, clay jet-black with the burden of manifold sins, treasure of foul blood, outburst of all outcries, thou arrogant child [?] of lustfulness, thou permanent abode of gluttony, in sin that damns the soul [?], thou unceasing, causeless pride, thou worthy habitation of the devil, maintenance of anger, forgetfulness of pardon, often hast thou set thyself about a multitude of sins. Go now to thy master, the devil; for him thou hast served up till now, so that he may carry thee away with him to thy prepared abode, viz. in the black, deep, dark, smoky, sorrow-fraught, deadly, ruinous prison-chambers of the lowest depth of hell; thou dark den of the ever-deceitful foxes, i. e. thou image of a fox for thy abounding deceit and artfulness, in beguiling everyone, thou poisonous hiss of the serpent, thou worthy organ of the devil, thou candle lit with the fire of sins, i. e. as a candle is ever ablaze, just so, no kind of teaching lessened the abundance and blazing heat of the manifold sins that clave to thee till now, wherefore it is that I am now plunged into the pit of the depth of hell; thou maintenance of anger, support of pride, never avoiding avarice, nor forgetful of gluttony along with the satisfaction of lust, thou flesh of worms, thou stall of beasts, thou rendezvous of the devil, abode of the black-blue beetles! woe, woe, woe is me, who have come to thy dwelling, for this is what sinks me into the pit of the pain of hell; for hadst thou not drowned me in the crime of thy sin, punishment would not now be upon me; and thus it is that I am made to suffer for the abundance of thy evil; I am twisted and tortured and drowned and racked at the hands of these devilish throngs for the multitude of thy sins. Ah, but I will curse thee for ever! and this shall be my business amid the throngs of demons where I am tortured, to be cursing thee and speaking ill of thee, and accusing thee, as thou hast offended against the Lord of power." Thus speaks the soul to the body.

Thereafter the body replied to the soul, saying:—"O stubborn soul, hardened, black, dark, low-born! O rock for hardness in the matter of receiving the teaching of God's word, thou dry soil, wretched, ice-bound, inveterate(?), thou black, dark well, in which the demons oft bathed after thou hadst done thy pleasure, thou stinking puddle, thou noose leading captive the body at the instigation of the devil, thou hill of haughtiness of these horrid black demons, thou knoll of meeting and assembly of all outeries, thou house of pleasure to all the demons, thou fountain for the thirst of the poisonous demons, thou image of land without water, for the iron (Ir. slaidé, ?) which is in land without water cannot be inhabited because of the multitude of various beasts therein,—just so the teaching of God's word cannot abide in thee for the multitude of the gloomy demons, after they have taken up their abode in thee, enjoining evil on thee, and hindering thee from every good thing up till the present moment, and now coming to meet thee in order to torture thee in the depth of hell. Thou, the worst of all created beings, thou hast fulfilled and hast remembered the hard teaching of the devil; thou hast passed by the merciful, kindly instruction of the mighty Lord; evil is thy recompense to me now, thou impure soul, for I should be free from torture and suffering, like mere earth, or stone, or short-lived tree, if I had not taken thee into union with me; and it is thou who art now giving me over to the clutches of the devil to torture me for evermore, thou unrighteous soul." Thus speaks the body.

Then the soul, cursing, and being cursed by the body, goes out from it among the demon throngs, and then the body says to the soul:—"Go now into the hands of the demons, and of the devil with his rabble host, where there will be all fulness of every evil and the want of every good thing, in the presence of the folk of the devil, to be tossed on bare red-hot stones, in deep fiery glens, on glowing rough spits, on reddened fiery swords, on poisonous streams of venom, on hard rocks of ice, on lakes stiff and frost-bound, on crooked rugged (?) trees, on big sharp-pointed lances, on horrible awful (—?); into the dry, fiery, stinking, terrible, ponderous, watery, dirty, wretched, deadly, destructive, dark, black, smoky, nasty, gloomy, accursed abode, with a multitude of all kinds of beasts torturing the sinful, on thick, heavy, frozen, stinking, glowing walls, on heavy streams of fire, on streams of black, dark, bitter waters, on stinking beastful lakes, on hollow fiery islands, on keen sharp-pointed iron spears, on dense rough rugged(?) mountains, with grim deadly nails of poison, with cold icy swords, with horrible cry of woe, with pitiable (?) yells and screams, with intolerable howling, with fruitless wailing by the souls of the sinful, who are being tortured, burned, hacked by the black slavish hosts of the gloomy demons, dragging along with them the sinful souls, to the manifold pains of the lowest hell; with red, heavy, fiery chains, with red iron mallets, with heavy edged flails, with long, truly deep streams, with a multitude of various beasts in them, carrying red maces of brass in their hands with which they smite the souls of the sinful." Thereat the sinful souls raise the vast, intolerable, unbearable, miserable, indescribable, merciless, painful, hostile, unmeasured outcry of the oppressed wretched, crying aloud as they are punished and tortured by the devilish throngs, separated for evermore from the face of God, and going with the devil's people into hell without end or limit.

After that, a vast, bright, shining, calm, beautiful, splendid, manifold, cheerful, kindly, blessed, psalm-skilled, bright-pathed, pleasant, well-formed, loving host, with abundant delightfulness, with melody of song, with quiring of angels, with abundance of everlasting light, with very sweet utterances, with words of union, with dignified divinity (?), from the eternal light, i. e. from the heavens—a host of splendid angels, to meet and accompany the soul of the righteous, to whom they say :—“ O holy soul, that dwellest amidst the saints for ever, O worldly cross, thou prepared reward, lord of the heavenly palace, foe of the devil, bright friend of the mighty Lord, own sister of the King of all beings, storehouse of piety, treasury of the everlasting blessings, forgetful of all outeries (?), welcome patron of the family of heaven, faithful treasure for the Universal King, counsel indefinite towards God (?), hill of meeting for the angels, rejection of the devil and his temptations, distinguished beauty of the angelic paradise, unquestioning guardian of the divine secrets, worthy daughter of the King of all, trusty love of the heavenly angels, unconquerable hate and despite of the devil, heart relying on the secret mysteries of God, everlasting seat of the King of heaven ! Sing now a little, a sweet strain, with poetry and admirable skill, and melodious, assenting, harmonious music along with us, for ever and ever, to thine own worthy King, to Him for whom thou didst abandon every evil thing, and didst perform every good deed—Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, King of heaven, and earth, and hell. The demons dare not come into the place where thou shalt be, and they shall never hurt thee, and this because of the extent to which thou didst avoid them in the world. Come now forward a little into the hands of angels and archangels, that we may go together into the bright, everlasting kingdom that is with the Lord, for His saints and the righteous, in the presence of the face of Almighty God ; in the unity of the nine grades of heaven that have not transgressed, of the patriarchs and prophets, of the apostles and disciples of the Son of God ; in the unity that is nobler than every unity, the unity of the Almighty Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

We beseech the mercy of Almighty God, through the intercession of all the saints, that we may attain to that unity, may deserve it and dwell therein, for ever and ever. Amen.

GLOSSARY.

a. I. pron. poss., his, her, (its), their.

A. As to the changes produced by the pron. on the initial letter following, it is to be observed that: 1°, a, 'his,' aspirates a tenuis, s or f; 2°, a, 'her,' prefixes h to a vowel; and 3°, a, 'their,' prefixes n to a vowel, and an assimilated nasal to a media [m(b), n(d), n(g)]; it sometimes infects f [192. 386. 993], and doubles l [1036. 4628. 29. 4670. 5103, 36. 6658], rarely r [393. 7003]. [There are, however, many cases of merely inadvertent omission of the mark of aspiration; e. g. after a, 'his,' f 70. 80. 418. 494. 576. 2628; s 122; c 85. 87. 943. 1023. 1323. 1680. 2275. 2301. 2440. 2648. 3115. 3309; p 302. 977. 1386. 1595; t 2283, 85, 92. 93. 3118]. Sometimes, in the case of a 'their,' thinned off into i before the nasal: cf. 6685 i ndochum. Occasionally the pron. is omitted after prepp. ending in a vowel: cf. 2896 ó 'mullach; 6637 o 'meor (but 6834 o n-a meor); 2801 o 'chind co a chois; 4902 o 'athair; 7716 le 'cheli; 2659. 7776 re 'cheli.—The pron. is frequently met in compound prepp. or adv. phr.: cf. i n-a agaid, (as) a aithle, im-a-cuairt, a dochumm, dí-a deoin, im-a-sech, i n-a thimcell; see under the last element in each case.

B. Besides its familiar use as a possessive pron., the following peculiarities may be noticed;—1°. It is used pleonastically; 134 im a chend in crochda; 857 for a gualaind na mná; 1037 a n-anmunda in morfesir út; 1945. 2177. 6299 a ainm in hídail; 5116 a remess in tíí Iúdaís; 6928 a fhót in inntig-sin; 6964 a cenel na údruad;—2°. Idiomatically in expressions of quantity, number, resemblance, &c.: e. g., a oenur, 'alone,' 'he (she) only,' 871. 875. 1599. 1746. 3356 léic he a oenur, 'leave him alone'; 4725 co mbá dó a aenur fhogna, 'him only shalt thou serve'; 5753. 6645. 7087;—a hoenur 66. 4881 in fhirinde a hoenur, 'ipsa Veritas';—a údís, 'the two of them,' 862. 4968;—a tríúr, 'the three of them,' 'all three,' 2004;—a becc, 'a little of it,' with neg. 'any whit of it,' 124 na faebam-ne a bec do neoch do-ronsat, 'we will not omit aught of what they did'; 256 ni dernsat a bec dib; 266 tucad a bec do'n fhuil; 2622 ni ro-phaccaig a becc, 'he sinned no whit'; 2908 ni mirbuile itir a bec, 't'is no miracle at all, not a bit!'—[? a chách, 'at all,' 1970, 71];—119 denum-ne a choibes 7 a maesamla;—497 tuc a leth dam-sa;—3091 tria tharmeruthugud a letheti, 'the like of it';—61 a lor adartha, 'their fill of adoration'; 410 cen a lor bíd;—a met, 'to such an extent,' 83. 1121. 1590. 1906. 6192. 6589. 8342;—a shamail, 'its equal,' 7328.

7639: cf. 141. 7736. 7920.—³. In the phr. riocim a less, 'I stand in need of,' 3494 no-co recat a less omun in choimded do beth forru, 'they do not need to have the fear of the Lord upon them'; 1521. 3963. 4373. 4839, 57. 4960. 5205. 5814, 20, 49. 6001. 7402. 7843, 46, 63, 66. 7939; even with the verbal noun, 5816 ir-riachtanus a less taige óiged, 'in need of hospitality,' 7554, 67; 6041. 6157.—⁴. With independent numerals, 7499 a haen díb, 'one of them'; 5220 a dó indises Lueás, 'M. says one, L. says two'; 5482 a do ar sechtmogat, 'the number is seventy-two'; 3374 da fhiadain no a tri, 'two witnesses or three.'—⁵. In phr. as a used as a substitute for the genitive of the rel. pron.: cf. 1354 in bannscál is a mac no-s-ícc G., 'the woman whose son G. had healed'; 6261² Michael, as a lith 7 as a foráithmet, 'M., whose festival and commemoration'; 6391 in t-árchangel as a guth res-a n-erigfe, 'the archangel, at whose voice will arise'; 6491 a uli doine is a sailechtu fil, 'O all ye men, whose hope is in the Lord'; 6510, 12². 6958. 7161; with omitted pron., 6667 in t-í is 'aitreb fil a nim.—⁶. Often used with verbal nouns expressive of state, position, in conjunction with the prep. in, to form a sort of present participle; 623. 629 i n-a shessom, 'standing'; 92. 102. 550. 639. 1981. 5159. 6222 i n-a tost, 'silent'; 762. 1010. 2316. 5846 i n-a lige, 'lying'; 1084. 3170 i n-a suide, 'sitting'; 3048, 49, 60 i n-a cotlad, 'asleep'; 7488 i n-a chómmaide, 'dwelling'; 7532 7 iat féin i n-a suan, 'while they were asleep.'—⁷. Idiomatically used with the verb to be, when is is not employed, the predication of a noun being only possible by this periphrasis: cf. 376 co mbui i n-a lobar moel, 'he was a bald leper'; 2573 ro-bói 'n-a rig, 'he was a king'; 2677 beth 'n-a mac mna pósta, 'he was a legitimate child'; 3623 co ra-b 'n-a luathred, 'the earth will be burnt up, so as to become ashes'; 6269 a beith i n-a chóraid chalma; 7238 co mbatar i n-a niúl gel imme, 'so that the angels were a white cloud round him'; 7321. (7612. 7706, 75. 7809) adbar ata 'n-a peccad, 'a cause that is a deadly sin'; 7322 ata i n-a éthech; 7324 luige, ce raib se i n-a fhir, 'an oath, though it were a truth' [cf. 7343] 7359; atat mo pheccaid i n-a n-erithrom, 'my sins are a heavy burden'; 7415 in conifhat bís i n-a chuilén, 'while it is a puppy'; 7430 ata sí i n-a dubachus d'ainglib; 7435 a beith i n-a glóir ac diablaib; 7442 ata . . . i n-a digbáil do'n chomarsain, 'it is a loss to him'; 7449 dia ra-but 'n-a comarsain dó, 'if they are neighbours to it, stay near it'; 7534 bís arán i n-a thús da ceoh caithem, 'as bread is chief of all food'; 7595 co mbí i n-a shimontaig;—even with omitted verb, 56 ceu fis acuu beos he buden i n-a cristaige, 'that he was a Christian'; 2770 ro-ordaig C. 'n-a iúdic, 'he appointed him (to be) judge.' Hence its use with other verbs, 2728 gabaim nem 7 talam 'n-a fhiadnab, 'I take heaven and earth as witnesses'; 2945 ro-gab grian 'n-a fiadain; 5387 tarrustar ann i n-a chendaige; 7237 ro-artraig i n-a smút chéó; 3750 ro-gab i n-a nóidin, 'he took him while yet a child'; 6948 ro-hergabaid i n-a gilla bece he, 'he was captured in his childhood.'

C. 1^o. It is in very common use before infinitives [verbal nouns] to denote the subject or the object of the verb, according as it is intransitive or transitive;—with neuter verbs, it denotes the subject; cf. a beth 837. 1324. 2030. 2379. 2677. 5153. 6051, 53, 86. 6124. 6268. 7387. 7435; a dul 2364. 4271. 5223; a tidecht 2283; but with transitive verbs, it invariably denotes the object; cf. 245. 257. 399. 475². 516. 552. 631. 664. 807. 941. 1218, 92. 1436, 52. 1528, &c., passim.

[The invariableness of this usage casts light on the construction on the following passages:—864 boi Eoin oc a fhurail for Hiruath in mnai colaig do léud uad, 'John kept enjoining on Herod this, viz. the repudiation of the concubine'; 4816 ro-fhodamair Ísu do diabul a imluad, where a does not refer to the devil, but to Christ; 5892 ro-gab Petar uad-som a chairiugud, 'Peter took kindly from him (Paul) the reproof of himself (Peter),' for a chairiugud cannot mean 'his (Paul's) reproach'; 6733 dorat a thob 7 a lámú di-a túr do Thomás, where a does not refer to Thomas, but to the side and hands.]—2°. Here, too, the pleonastic use is very common, esp. with pron. follg.: cf. 211 oc a hadrad hi; 243 oc a rada sin 2138: cf. 2164. 2440. 2935. 4003. 4456, 67. 5085. 5490. 6150. 6933. 7393. 7482. 7518, 26, 98. 7647; with follg. noun, 163 a aisneis t'umla; 166 a indissin met t'fhoiten: cf. 581 with 589 di-a fhiss in sceoil; with follg. rel. pron. ntr., 501 a assneis in a fuarus; with name follg., 1526 imraidset a marbad Necodim; or with explanatory clause follg., 2012 a chinded di, na findfad oentaíd fherseáil, 'a resolution by her to this effect, that she would not know union with a man'; 2036 a dérbad co n-id fír; 2361 cindus a ráda co ragad di-a deoin: cf. 2458. 2669. 2738; very common in phr. a fhiss with clause follg., 1067 is áil a fhis uaib, caitt a fhil; 2302 bíd a fhis lib, co; 2969 ata a fhis ocum, co: cf. 3422. 4999. 5093. 5325. 5479. 6096. 7268. 7689. 7809. 8001. 8150 di-a fhis in fétfad, 'to see if it could.'—3°. This use of the obj. pron. before the inf. gives a quasi-passive construction, the agent following (a) under the government of the prep. ó; e.g. 2020, 4705, 41 ro-p áil dó a aimsiugud o diabul, 'to be tempted by the devil': 3632 tanic di-a mess o beoanib, 'to be judged by the living': 5401 a linad ó rath in spiruta;

5581 a thadall o'n spirut nóeb; 7168 a stiurad o'n Michael-sin; 7197 a thorumao oolithrechaib; (b) but also di, [do], or oc, e.g. 559 a leges oc in papa, 'his cure at the hands of the pope'; 841 a breth uada di-a brathair; 1320 a fhéad do neoch, 'his being seen by anybody'; 2012 a chinded di, 'its being resolved by her'; 2362 a thidnocul di-a descip-laib, 'that he was delivered up by his disciples'; 4084 a riarugud do cách, 'that he should be obeyed by all'; 4467 a thóduscad-side do-som ab-bás, 'that he was raised by him from death;—very commonly used in construction with prep. iar; e.g. (a) 3793 iar n-a faill-siugud dam o'n Spirut; 4537 iar n-a chetugud o Chir; 5424² iar n-a linad 7 iar n-a n-inorchugud o'n Spirut; 7092. 7745 ar n-a brénad o'n t-saint; (b) 243. 425 iar n-a rada-sin dó, 'after that had been said by him'; 3315 iar n-a crochad do na mílelaib; 4244 iar n-a tócbail do doinib; 6650 iar n-a marbad oc in rig; 6402 iar n-a fhortacht tria M.; hence frequently without any denotation of the agent, 951. 1993. 3287. 5718. 6666; 7020 iar n-a hadandad, 'after its being lit.'—The passive force is noteworthy in pron. with infin. after verbs of ordering, hearing, saying, &c., e.g. 1237 atbert a thobail, 'he ordered him to be seized'; 1273 forcongair a thabairt chuige, 'to be brought before him'; 1403 atberam-ne a dichendad, &c. Here, too, the pron. is often used pleonastically; 841 o 'tchualae . . . in mnai . . . a breth uada, 'when he heard that the woman was taken from him'; 972 atbert cech oen no-gébad . . . a marbad, 'that everyone who accepted (Christ), should be slain'; 7402 gach ní ele . . . a údénum dó; so also in connexion with ntr. verbs: 837 amal itcu-lae . . . in bannseal . . . a beth i n-oen-tuma, 'when he heard that the woman was marriageable'; 1826 atbert in uli popul . . . a titecht: 2677 do-derbatar

Ísu a beth 'n-a mac mna pósta, 'certified that Jesus was a legitimate child': cf. 1317 atchi ní ba machtad le .i. in gabul tirimm a beth fo blath, 'she saw a thing she deemed wonderful, viz., the dry beam being under blossom.'

a. II. pron. rel., who, which; that, that which.—A. There is no independent, simple relative* pronoun in the nom. or [verbal] accus., the construction being in either case paratactic: cf. 40 na nechí follsigim-sea, 'the things which I show'; 196 na ferta do-roine, 'the miracles he did'; 241 in mac ro-chroch-sat, 'the son whom they killed'; 124 in lucht ro-chroch-sat, 'the people who crucified'; 92 in fer tanic, 'the man who came'; 239 in uóit dlegar, 'the vow that is due,' &c. (The possible cases of an infixed rel. pron. will be considered elsewhere.)—This paratactic construction is sometimes used, even when the rel. pron. is oblique: cf. 83 a met tuc na hathise, 'the extent to which he launched abuse'; 1121 a mét ro-s-lin oman, 'the extent to which terror filled them'; 4472 is-na ferannaibse ro-po rí foraind t'athair, 'in the lands in which thy father was king over us': cf. 5071.—When the verb is in the 3 pers. pres. or fut. of the active voice, a special form of the verb is employed, the so-called relative form ending in es, as, us, ius; fes, fas, fus: cf. 238² in spiritur bethaiges 7 inorchaides, 'the Spirit that vivifies and illumines'; 462 cech duine shirfess ní fort, 'every man who shall ask aught of thee'; 717 cindus tóchas in géntligeacht a cend; 799 co nach mesa labras mo thenga; 1041 finnta latt cid thaeras Déice di-ar ndáil, &c.—In negative relative clauses, the rel. is shown by the form of the negative [na, nach, not ní]: cf. 474 each oen na cretfed, 'everyone who would not believe'; 666 in lucht na r-dhelig marttra, 'the people whom martyrdom did not sever'; 757 baile na hadardom Crist, 'place where Christ is not honoured.'

B. In obl. cases governed by prepp., the rel. pron. is u(n) [for older san, the original s being preserved in connexion with the prepp. co, for, fri, iar, la, re, tre, in the forms cos-a, fris-a, íars-a, las-a, res-a, trias-a (esp. with this last); and in the case of as (= ex), with s intact]. The final n of an, which is preserved before initial vowels, is liable to the usual changes before consonants, becoming an assimilated nasal before a media [m(b), ñ(d), n(g)], occasionally infecting f, and sometimes assimilating itself to initial l, rarely before r, once before m (4549), and disappearing before n (or a tenuis, which is preserved from aspiration, the n, however, sometimes being irregularly preserved: cf. 2734. 7429. 7496). With the purely vocalic-ending prepp., do, de, o, which do not tolerate the assumption of the s, the disappearance also of the final n often involves the further absorption of the vowel, so that there is no visible remnant of the rel. pron.: cf. 6458 do' nach buidech Dia, 'to which God is not gracious'; 7212 do na tabrad; 7611 do nach tibre; 8391 do na dlegar: cf. also ar na 6623. 7741. 7834; ic na 7468; o na 7502. 7787, contrasted with co-s' na 1307. 5299; fri-s' na 3395. 4439. 5337; [also before r, cu-s' ro-, 4605. 6306; so, too, as ro- 5747, and even as bud 7794]. With la, the fuller form is preserved in la-sn- in la-sn-ad, 'apud quem est' 1421. 2411; but also 7323 le mbrister, 7526 le ndíngned, 7653 lé r-buail: cf. also the use of re and tre, given below. In the case of the prep. in [in an], the two forms, both containing final nasal and vague vowel, i or a, being thus brought together, we find two types ina and the far commoner in: cf. 78 i n-a raibe, but 73 ir-roibe, 2603 i ra-ba; in atchimm. 'to see'; [A] (adei), atci, [Z] acci.—(1.) In general in [A] the i is accented: cf. 1182. 1795. 1835, 66. 2035. 2180. 2467. 3157. 4606. 5951, 58. 6575. 6731. The e was no doubt aspirated, as it is frequently written so: cf. also the forms atithi 1214, aticeva 1182, for at(ek)ithi &c. The prefix is always at, never ad; do occurs twice in the pres. stem, 3784, 8130, and once in perf. 6295.—(2.) The orthotonic forms of the perf. are got from another verb [ad-con-dark], atchonnare. In these forms, as the m is often written nd, the e left unaspirated, and the pretonic vowel dropped into i, we have the varieties of spelling ^ate(h)on_dⁿ, which I have not thought it needful to detail, save in 3 sg. With the longer suffixes amar, abar, atar, the post-tonic vowel disappears, carrying with it the radical r, hence atchonn (r)₂*amar*.—(3.) The enclitic form in the perf. stems takes only ae-, acc-, while in the pres.-fut. stem we find always aie-, aiee-; prob. therefore the strange forms accara are to be connected with the perf. stem.—(4.) In the enclitic forms appears the so-called prothetic f, facea, which, however, is usually inflected; and it probably always was null in pronunciation, save after na, nach, see 91. 1871. 1900. 7759: cf. the orthotonic pass. atecëss with the enclitic na fâcus;—ind. pres. 1 sg., [A] atchiu 1392; atciu 1795; itechiu 1835. 2467; atchimm 509. 1056, 72. 6641;—3 sg., atchi 1317 (i). 4606. 5951, 58. 6094 (ci). 6575. 6731 [ch]iî; 1 pl., atchiamait 2658; dochiam 8130; 2 pl., atithi 1214; atithi 1846. 3792 (ch); 3 pl., atchiat 6389.—pres. sec. 3 pl., atchitis 959. 6707.—fut. 2 sg., ateife 2035;—3 pl., atchifet 2806; docifet 3784; fut. sec. 3 pl., ateifitis 3416.—pret. 3 pl., atchiset 6079 (?);—fut. 2 sg., atichera 1182; atichithera 1685. 4961; [Z] pres. 2 sg., aicce 1748; 3 pl., faicit 7740;—consuet. pres. 3 sg., aicend 1927;—pres. sec. 3 sg., co fhuicced 1115; cein co n-aicced 6731;—fut. 3 sg., faicfea 7759.—subj. 3 sg., faicca 7402; 3 pl., faicet 7678, 79.—dep. subj. pres. 1 sg., 6694 mi-ne fhacur, faicer 1871; 1 pl., co n-accamar; 3 pl., 1352 co nu-s-acatar;—[? perf. subj. 2 sg., accara 4960; faceara 5846, 50;—3 sg., faceara 6006]; [A] perf. 1 sg., atconnare, itechonnare, &c. 99. 445. 1490. 2182. 2613. 2787. 3729, 96. 4269; 2 sg., itconnarcas 6678, 6785, 86, 87, 88; 3 sg., atchonnaire 77. 412. 426. 1126, 47, 88. 1230, 98. 1303, 13. 1695; atonnaire 1728. 1877. 2309, 20. 2444. 2640. 2750. 2900. 3182. 3206, 80. 3902. 4140. 4522; itonnaire 1322. 1993. 3359. 6610; itchonnaire 8401;—1 pl., atchonnemar 122. 2965. 3702 (mair), 06 (mair), 74. 6692; 2 pl., atconnabar 1711, 13;—3 pl., atconnatar 355. 966. 974. 1120. 1335. 2252. 2511. 2605. 6720; dochon-catar 6295;—[Z] 1 sg., facea 1539. 2786;—2 sg., 2706 facea [?];—3 sg., facea 91. 421. 4790, 91. 7201; acca 1227;—1 pl., accamar 3356; acumar

Esp. noteworthy is the use of co n-epert, co n-apair, to express the interjected 'saying,' cf. co n-epert 5036, 65. 5111, 15, 40. 5285, 94. 5310. 5533, 35, 40. 6346. 6626, 64. 6755. 6825, 82, &c.; co n-apair 5404, 09. 5518. 5603, 11. 5741, 83. 5841, 53. 5958, 79. 6005, 09, 18, 27, 31, 42, 60, 70, 93, &c., and even the fut. (though rarely,) co n-epera 3626. 6155; [D] till-clause, it being not always easy to decide whether the clause is not simply a purpose-clause: e.g. 1407 (tairisim) co ndernar; 1415. 2472. 2759. 2963. 3749. 3810. 8117, 82, &c.;—220 co tucad in digal; 639 co tarnic a scel d'aisneis, 'till he finished'; 1907 co mad marb; 2936. 3021. 3691. 5408;—3439 co nualland uasu; 4257 co nd-erchrand in fechtnaige; 6359 co lin and lestar;—774 co ndeachaid diabul do-ridisi is-in errig.—In ordinary construction, the verb comes first in the clause, so that if any other notion is to receive prominence by being placed earlier than the verb, it can only be done by its introduction after a form of the verb to be as copula; hence the frequent usage of co n-id: cf. 2223 daig co tuicet, co n-id conderelí fil oc muintir Ísu, 'may understand that mercy distinguishes the Christians'; 2351 co n-id for-dáig hícea na dóine tanic mac Dé; 2374 co n-id di-a deoin dochoid fri eroich; 2388 co n-id tré chrand eroehi ro-marbad in bás; 2409 co n-id do'n péin . . . a menma do thabairt, &c. So with other forms of the subst. verb: cf. 5102 co mbad am-laid domeltis hé, 'that they should eat it thus'; 5468 co mbad í sóillsí no thísad in sp.; 5746 co mad do charraic dognethe side; 6144 co mbad do doberad almsain; 6598 ni ra-gba-su ocut ar cenel-ni co mbad deligthi o Dia, 'do not imagine that our race is,' &c.: cf. also 5133 co mbad moti no-gonfad; 5207 co mbad lugaide dechsad i dermat. [To be noted also is the singular usage, by which the subject of the clause is taken out of its logical position, and placed (under the government of the principal verb, though often almost absolutely) before the introductory conjunction and copula; e.g. 6746 is demin cuirp na hesergi co mbat foille; cf. 1189 atéu-sa tusa co ngébai, 'I see that thou wilt receive'; 240 cretmít Dia athair, co n-id nemgeimnte he; 1293 no-chredind Apaill co mba tigerna dam, 'I believed that A. was my lord'; 1371 do-rignis do fblai-thius co n-ad etargnaid do cách; 1737 atbertís, in t-íí Simon co r-ba drúid; 1844 tuicfe-sin sinne, co n-id fir-epertaig, 'thou wilt perceive that we are truth-speakers'; 1813 co fesara na dóine-sea, co ndat togothaig, 'that thou mayst know that these men are deceivers'; 4015 dogéna a naimtiu, co mbat síthamla dó; 4232 dogniter na tíre co ndat ambrite; 4273 finnad in rí a chumahta co n-id aimsrda; 4622 dofornet in duine, ro-hathnaiged . . . cu tógand dó na súalchi; 5376 na-chluined cách na hapstail co labratís, 'each

The inf. is a verbal noun, liable to all the incidents of an ordinary noun, and in fact it is often found in the ordinary relation of one noun governing another in the gen., itself standing in its own relation; e.g., 2072 doerad na hanna; 2661 marbad na maccraide, 'the murder of the children'; 4513 tomus in argait; 4514 cennach na máine; 6154 imgabail in luic-sin; 6888 etarsearad mo chuirp; 7479 dentar scarad cuirp 7 anma; 7605 dortad fola; 7606 tregen cech deg-obri, caitheam na haimisre; 7804 faicsin craind an imarbais; 8035 noemad auma Dé. Hence it will stand in the dat. with do, after verbs of motion; cf. 391 tanic . . . do marbad na mac; 1405 teit do chomallad a duthracha; 1877 téit . . . do nige etaig; and in general after any verb to express a purpose, thus 164 ro-gabais colaínd ndoenda do shlanugudín chiniuda; 385 ro-scailset fócha-thrachaib, . . . do thínol na maeráide; 2078 do-ratsat refeda . . ., do tharraing in hidail. So far there is nothing unusual. But the use of an inf. with do once established, involved or permitted its employment when the relation of the clauses was not dative: in these cases the usage was regulated by definite principles which seem to have been clearly grasped, which are, at all events, almost invariably followed. After the dat., the most general relations of the clauses to each other are the nom. and the acc.; in these cases, the relation that should have held between the inf. and the principal clause, was transferred to the object of the inf. [or its subject, in the case of intransitives]; e. gr. nom., 1832 is lat-sn Símon do thraserad, 'it is your duty to overwhelm Simon; acc., 1713 iteonnabar bar náimtiú do bádud, 'ye have seen that your enemies were drowned.' [The presence of a nom. or acc. before inf. being thus familiar, a confusion arose, viz. (a) a nom. being used before the inf., where the relation was really objective, e. gr., 7426 da-ordaig tond baitsi do chur air, 'he ordered that the water of baptism should be sprinkled over him'; and (b) an acc. being used, where the relation was really nom., e. g. 861 ba lonn lais, in mnai do beth oc H., 'it was grievous to him that the woman should belong to H.'] This tendency to weld clauses together by external case-relation is notably shown in the obl. cases, e. g. 1000 daig bíd do chennach, 'for the sake of buying food'; 2130 ar-dáig na ndóine do breith o chomrorcain; 2370 ata (ocum-sa) cumachtu m'anma do chur uam, 'I have the power of putting away my life from me.' So much for the relation of the inf. and the principal clause. Within the inf. clause it is important to note the distinction in the use of nouns or pronouns in direct connexion with the inf. itself. In the first place, when the infin. is transitive, the noun (or pron.) immediately preceding will stand in acc. relation, whereas in the case of an intrans. infin., the relation is nom. Of this examples will be given in abundance, but it is important to note an exception: if both subj. and obj. of the trans. inf. are mentioned, (as often in cases corresponding to Lat. acc. cum inf.), the subject of the infin. precedes the infin., and the obj. follows in the gen., unless the obj. be a pron., when the ordinary prefix possess. is used. This may be most conveniently illustrated by the cases of the explanatory inf. after is; cf. intrans., 303 is and digal Dé fair is enáim bratain do lenmain 'n-a brágait; 374 cruice do máidm; 375 mill duba do thidecht; 413 Pol do thidecht; but trans., 364 na huli Xtaige do chomceniugud; 372 téidm do thabairt; 381 iachlind do dénam; 457 tempuil do scailed; 479 a indmas do bein uad; 813 do mog do marbad. [The point to be remembered is, that a substantive cannot stand as subject to a transitive inf., unless the inf. is folded by a depend. gen., or preceded by an pron. obj.] The following examples will illustrate this use of the subj. before the trans. infin., (and this whether the relation of the infin. clause be obj. or subj. to the principal clause); 2838 o 'tchualaid na draíde do thabairt ascad do, 'when he heard that the magi had given gifts to him'; 2918 o 'teualatar . . . Iósep do chunchid cuirp Ísu, 'when they heard that Joseph had asked the body of Jesus'; 3661 do thaircetul in gnám[a ?] .i. Ísu . . . do shaerad . . . na braithe, 'the deed, viz. that Jesus would redeem the captives'; 4501 firt is moui. in t-oen duine . . . d'indarbud . . . na slóg mór, 'the greatest miracle, viz. that the one man drove out the vast multitudes'; 5059 mírbuil .i. Xt. . . . do thidnocul glanrúine a chuirp; 5238 démnigid . . . Ísu do chaithem bíd, 'he attests that Jesus ate food'; 5567 doforne . . . ind eclais . . . do erdarcugud in choimded, 'denotes that the Church glorified the Lord'; 5738 cubaid . . . Moysé do erdarcugud na himdíbe, 'suitable, that Moses should speak highly of the Circumcision'; 7060 doforne, na huli che-nela . . . do chreitem XI.; 7094 doforne-trócaire Dé do fhortacht in duine. In the same way when a pron. acc. precedes the infn., cf. 4587 Ísu di-a rad friu, 'the fact that Jesus spake thus to them.'

Before exhibiting the details, it should be observed that there is no do in the case of (a) an intrans. inf., when the subj. is not directly expressed: e. g. 2439 pian, beth beo co fotai; 5259 is móo do peccad dó, fédlíugud . . . andás tuidecht ass, (contrast with 5200 dlegar, popul . . . do fhedlíugud); 6440 dul i ndérchained; 6455 dul il-loec aile; 6571 ferr, epilt o bás adéig; 6749 as gabtha do churp . . . dul is-in tegdais; 7296 mad ail duit, dul dochumm na bethad; 7460 is trug do'n duine, techt anns-a saegul; 7520 d'a n-a hégen, dul fó breith; 7584 áille fer, dul a mbisech; 8068 mad ail leind, fedlíugud i tír; 2050 ro-léici dam, dul; 2062 do-chetaig dam, labra; 2099 abert fris, dul; 2226 cetaig do, tocht; 2467 ní fhetaim dul beo esti; 2608 focrais, techt; 2640 ro-fhuabair, ergi; 2739 ro-forcongair, dul as in pelait; 2835 triall, dul amach; [b] a transit. inf., when the obj. is prefixed as a poss. adj. to the inf.: e. g. 1149 abert a thabairt; 1233 forcongraid a dicheannad; 1237 abert a thocbail; 1262, 66, 73; 1394; 1401 triallaid ar malairt, 'they try to destroy us'; 1526 imraidset a marbad; 2077 dogén bar mbaitset; 6566 connigimm mo shaerad; 6583; 6597, 99; 6638. But the (apparent) omission of the obj. before a transit. inf. does not involve the omission of the do: e. g. in the case of relat. or interrog. clauses, where the (understood) rel. is in direct relation with the inf., esply. in the case of rel. clauses beginning with the verb to be; cf. 2734 in duine, atathai do chasait frim, 'the man whom ye are accusing unto me'; 2812 eia dib is ail duib do shaerad; 2930 fer ele . . . , ro-bás d'iarraid, 'another man, who was being sought'; 3172 in fhir . . . atathar do crochad; 3262 eia dib . . . is ferr lib do léuc ass, 'which do you prefer to have released?'; 3535 etargna . . . is cubaid . . . do fhóglaim, 'an interpretation suitable to be learnt'; 3981 tesmailt is coir . . . do sechem; 4085 eia is éora . . . do thoccrad; 4315 todernam, nách sochma . . . d'indissin; 4323 documul, i mbet d'fhulang; 4342 bethad, bud fherr d'fhadbail; 6544 na hí na-ptar dílmáin do denum; 6547 feol, ba dílmáin dó do chaithium; so in the case of intrans., 8055 in puplican, taith-metus . . . do thuidecht.]—1°. in. def. art., 'the.' In our text the art. has assumed nearly the Mod. Ir. forms, the distinctions of the O. Ir. being still, however, in many cases recognizable; and, indeed, it is hardly possible to understand the Mid. Ir. forms without the aid of the O. Ir. paradigm, which may be set forth as follows:—

SINGULAR.

| | mas. | fem. | ntr. |
|----|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| N. | in [t-] | in* | a† |
| G. | in° | na | in* |
| D. | [s]in* | [s]in* | [s]in° |
| A. | [s]in† | [s]in† | [s]a†. |

PLURAL.

| | mas. | fem. | ntr. |
|----|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| N. | in* | na | na |
| G. | na† | na† | na† |
| D. | [s]naib | [s]naib | [s]naib |
| A. | [s]na | [s]na | [s]na. |

In the above paradigm, * denotes: 1°, additional l used before initial vowel, expuncted f (fh), or liquida (l, n, r); 2°, aspiration of follg. initial tenuis; 3°, t inserted before initial s, which is also aspirated (sh); — † denotes: 1, additional n used before initial vowels; 2, an assimilated nasal before media; — the bracketted letters t and s occur as follows: t in mas. sg. nom. before initial vowel; s in the dat.-acc. cases, where the initial s of the art. (sind, stem prps. sanda) is preserved by its assimilation with the final consonant of prepp. that originally ended in a (dental) consonant; thus asin [= as (Lat. ex) + sin], cosin [= con + sin], forsin, frisin, iarsin, isin, lasin, resin, trisin, tarsin; ["a, ren, corn, con cum dativo; la, fri, tri, tar, co cum accusativo; in, for cum utroque casu," Z², 209]; pl., asnaib, &c.; but disappears after prepp. originally ending in vowels; [cf. our do'n, fo'n, o'n; and with inserted helping vowel ico'n, imo'n; pl., do na, fo na, &c.]. Of the paradigm, the follg. are O. Ir. examples:—of the *, [a] mas. (ntr.) sg. gen.: 1°, indoesa; indfoguir; indrig, indrecto; 2°, incháich; 3°, intsailm; [b] mas. (fem.-ntr.) sg. dat.: 1°, dondathir; ondfogur; isindluc; 2°, donoimdid; 3°, isintsailm; [c] fem. sg. nom.: 1°, indalmsu; indláilte; indrann; 2°, inchathir; 3°, intserc; [d] mas. pl. nom.: 1°, indaingil; indtir; indróib; 2°, inphreceptóri; 3°, intsonmai;—of the †, [a] ntr. sg. nom.-acc.: anaccobor; ambás; andlilig; [b] mas. (fem.) sg. acc.: lasinnathir; [c] mas. (fem.-ntr.) pl. gen.: innanaile; innamball;—of the t of mas. sg. nom.: intathir; of the s between prepp. and art., in mas. (fem.-ntr.) sg. dat.-acc.: lasindfer; hisindluc; tresin-fuil. It should be noted further that the na forms are a contraction of the fuller (and quite common) inna.

From the above, the Mid. Ir. of our text differs in the follg. points:—1°, the d forms are much less common, as is 2°, the additional n of the mas.-fem. acc.; 3°, the ntr. sg. nom., a† has become in mas.; 4°, the mas. pl. nom., *in has taken the fem.-ntr. form na; 5°, the [s]naib of pl. dat. has lost the characteristic ending, and become [s]na; 6°, the na forms (i. e., fem. sg. gen., and all the pl. except the gen.) prefix h to follg.

initial vowel. We thus get the Mid. Ir. paradigm, (for dual, see da), as follows:—

SINGULAR.

| | mas. | fem. | ntr. |
|----|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| N. | in [t-] | in' | in |
| G. | in' | na h- | in' |
| D. | [s]in' | [s]in' | [s]in' |
| A. | [s]in† | [s]in† | [s]in†. |

PLURAL.

| | | m. f. [n.] |
|----|--------|-------------------|
| N. | | na h- |
| G. | | na n- |
| D. | | [s]na h- |
| A. | | [s]na h-. |

Here the inverted comma (') denotes: 1°, the aspiration of a follg. initial tennis [or f]; and 2°, the prefix of t- to the aspirated initial sh. (The aspiration marks are often enough omitted; but there can be no doubt about their being carefully watched in the pronunciation.) The following examples will show the relations with O. Ir.:—1°, the d forms are not so common; thus [a] *mas. In mas. sg. gen., the t- is occasionally omitted; cf. 2173 in shuiscelaig, 5146 in slaníceda; but in general the forms are very regular, only that the aspiration mark is often omitted; sometimes, however, the sh is omitted altogether, as in 5530. 6240; cf. omitted t- in sg. dat. of 4761. 7496.

In gen. pl., the final n will be transformed according to the ordinary rules, becoming m(b), ú(d), ú(g), omitted before tennis, e 1402; p 1365; t 524; liquida, l 2630; m 1284; n 1553; r 629; and s; but usually dotting the f (fh): cf. *na fh*² 1017. 1748. 2303. 3129, &c. (but also na f 437. 1577. 2312, &c.).

The ntr. is nearly extinct, and it is oft. difficult to ascertain the gender in Mid. Ir. of nouns ntr. in O. Ir., though there is a general tendency to make them fem.

In the use of the art., the follg. points may be noted:—it is omitted from the noun when in construction with a follg. noun in gen., if the latter is [a] a proper name, (Róim is used with the art., cf. 289. 321, 33, 67. 543, 55), or [b] is itself defined, 1^o, by the art.; [but it should be observed that in coimidiu always has the art., 4581 in coimidiu na údula: cf. 156. 1597. 1613. 4347. 4675. 4941. 5562. 5893. 6024, 99. 6120, 40, 73. 6369, 74]; 2^o, by a poss. adj. pron.; or 3^o, by governing another noun so defined; e. g. [a] 67 remfhéad De; 168 cluais Mhelcais; 169 eloidem Petair; [b] 1^o, 25 tital in libair; 49 lucht in baile; 52 secla na himaigine; 2^o, 41 cluais bar cride; 636 asslach m' oessa g.; 1061 a taig m' athar; 3^o, 526 clu erabuid in abbad; 548 ceud munntire in rig; 855 mullach chind a brathar, &c.; even in the case of a third noun in gen. relation, 6284 tossach mortha anma Michil, 'the beginning of the magnifying of the name of Michael': 7305 mallaead lucht saraigthe na n-aithned. [Not to be confounded with this rule are the cases in which a depend. gen. is used without ná, nách. the two words are used to express [a] neque; [b] quod non, ut non, &c., of the depend. clause; and [c] qui (si) non. Now, in [a], one distinction is clear: nach (= neque) is only used before vowels; in [b] it should be noted that na is always followed immediately by the verb, whereas nach often negates some other notion than the verb; [cf. the corresponding use of co n-id, &c., as in 4880 ro-fhetamar co n-id o Dia 7 nach o Diabul: cf. 693b, foot]; here, and in [c] the distinction depends on euphony to some extent at least, though no absolute rule seems attainable from the data to hand; but nach is preferred before a vowel, l, or s, while ná is genly. found before t, and exclusively before r. When an infix. pron. is met [never after ná], it can only take its place with the insertion of a helping vowel, thus nachu-m 6679. 6789; nachu-s 5330. 6087. 8092; nacha-t 4663. As nonne is exclusively nach, it demands the same helping vowel before the proclitic ro- of the pret.: 660 nacha r-legais; 662 nacha r-iuislig; 4957 nacha r-fhuaccras; hence in the depend. clause, 2920 nacha r-mac m.; 3178 nácha r-gabad.

ní. 'not,' simple negative: [rarely in questions, as in 3153; or in depend. clause, 1038. 1417;] aspirates tenuis, and f (not always marked); but does not prefix h- to vowels, e.g., 138. 1156. 1748. 2383. 2666. 3756. 3914. 4714. 6256. 7417. 7740. 7754. 8342.; except in pass. 4208. 5731, [cf. also 67. 1956. 2368];—sometimes with infix. pron. -s-, ni-s-fítr, 72; cf. 450. 627. 990. 1131. 3330. 4284. 5802. 7992. 8259;—before pret., ni occasionally shortens the prefix ro- to r-, 73. 318. 520. 554. 1544. 2659. 2664. 3011. 4044. (7826), [the ro- being not used before the forms chocnnaicár, (choemsat), derma, dermsat, fhacea, (acumar), fess, fetatar, fríth, fuaratár, thanic, tharut, thardsabair, see ro];—used before the follg. forms of the subst. verb; ní ba 1346. 3045. (3969. 6266 bu 6611. 6899); ní bat, 'non eris,' 2815. 3110; ní bí 7815; ní bia 2187. 4282. 4648, &c. (ni-s-bia 4284; ni-s-biad 8259); ní dat, 'non sunt,' 433. 2353. 2668; ní fhuil (fil) 1706, 66. 1930, 67, &c.; ni-t, 'non es,' 2816;—ní boi 850. 2861, 71. 6723. 7223, but ní r-bo 225. 517. 3078. 5112, 13. 6730.

[Here it will be convenient to illustrate the important principle embodied in Zimmer's law, viz., that the verb is accented on its first syllable, (or in cpd. verbs with more than one prep., on the first prep.) when it is in the imperative, or when it is preceded by [a] the negative; [b] the relat. cum prep.*, di-a n, ar a n, eo n, &c.; [c] the interrog. partule, in, [Lat. an, num]; otherwise the accent is on the second syllable from the beginning of the verb. Thus, we have [A] dorátsat, but [Z] ní tártsat. These are marked in the Gloss. by [A] and [Z], for the orthotonic and enclitic forms respectively. A few examples will make this clear, (the grave accent denoting the tonic syllable):—

* The enclitic form is often used when preceded by the pregnant relat. = id quod, cf. atbèrthi with is coir a n-áparthi 5268; thus 287 i ndèrna, 'id quod fecit'; 120 in ndènsat; 792 a ndèrnai; 2188 a n-ápraim; 2744 a n-ábair; 2858 a ndènat, &c.; but not always: cf. 1096 a n-atbèir; 6731 a n-atchlùn.

| Orthotonic. | Enclitic. |
|-----------------|--------------------------|
| dorònsat 108 | but [a] ni dèrnsat . 114 |
| dobèir . 753 | [b] di-a tàbair . 4109 |

Abundant examples of the principle will be found in the lists given in Glossary under the verbs, esp. under atberim, atchim, doberim, doim, do-rat, do-rala, tart, tarla, in which the forms are pretty fully quoted, partly with a view to this comparison.]

Its chief use is [▲] in connexion with verbal nouns, either [a] as predicate of the subst. verb, or [b] as forming a pteple of accompaniment: cf. [a] 2013 in tan boi oc ernaigthi, 'while he was praying'; [b] 4307 itbera friu ic a n-indarbad uad, 'he will say to them, as he is driving them away'; often also in clauses like the follg., 6724 cen a maigistir tairise oc a forecutl, 'without their trusty master, a' teaching them'; or in the prominent position after the introductory assertive verb, 4519 dia mbad oc debaid . . . fagebad, 'if he had found them . . . quarrelling,' &c. Some-time in idiomatic phr., 301 ro-gab ic molad Dé, 'he took to, set about, praising God' &c.: cf. also the passive use 1407 atu-sa ico-m mess o na rigu, 'I am being judged,'—contrasted with 1369 ata mog Dé ico-t gairm, 'is calling thee.' [These verbal nouns may, of course, have the art., but it is rare: cf. 76 atarb and ico'n ol; 1719 o mbatar ico'n cosnum-sin; 5048 dia mbatar ico'n choibfhleid, where the concrete usage is apparent.] The most of the instances of its use are here given;—acallaim 3702; accáine (376.) 4268; adamrugud 5562; adchossan 4520. 4646; adnad 842; adrad 61. 211. 1126. 1707 + 2; aentaíd, °tugud 2457. 3307; ainmniugud 7326; airtíud 1030; aisneis 4000. 5407 + 2; aitheód 2669; aithisiugud 3341; aithne 7926; ambrán 889; anóir 2616; aslach 3274. 6471. 6624 (fh); atach 4194. 6321 + 2; athi 3637; atlugud 1248; athnugud 1050; bennachad 4300 + 2; breith 3859. 7390; buain 7662, 92; caithem 5239; cantain 3756. 7700; casait 2752; celebrad 5078. 8029; cennaigeacht 4391; cocnam 7670; cói 975. 6388; coibfhleid 5048. 5170; comallad 4607; comrad 2968; cosnum 1719. 8125; crechad 7532; creice 1052. 4390 + 2; crochad 2469; cuinchid 3162. 3457 + 3; cungram 2804; cunnrad 4391. 4503 + 1; cur 7747; debaid 4519; denum 3267. 7441 + 11; deprecóit 6388; derbad 7485; dérchóined 6658; dínsium 4660; diten 5757. 6521; díulta 6163; dlomad 3634. 6163; dluide 1355; dul 2113. 6700 + 1; écaine 2441; ecnach 1126. 2196 + 2; edpairt 979. 1352; eráil 962; erdareugud 4418; erfhuacra 5956; ernaide 2468; ernaighthe 1008. 1161 + 12; escómlad 8139; essaentaíd 4519; estecht 3351; etarguide 4287. 7876 + 2; faecin 2164. 2911; faisneis 4304; fáitsine 3436; fanamut 2863; fédmándus 7709; fégdad 1053. 5604. 6596; fethuisib 890; fledugud 2372; fógnam 1140. 3465 + 4; fóided 3420; follamnacht, °nugud, °nas 5294. 6204; 7148; 4095. 5752; foluamain 2095; forcoimet 3321; forcéll 3676. 5335; forcetel 543. 876. 2415 + 5; foridin 5295. 6826; fortacht 5295. 5752 + 2; fresgabail 3706. 6721; fuigiull 1935. 4132; fulang 6355; fúr 806; furail 7393. 8278; gabail 7341; gairm

-s. infix. pron. of third pers., acc., of all genders and numbers. Its place is immediately after the verbal prefixes, ro, no, do, (fo), and the negat. ní, (nacha), with which alone it is found.

It is frequently pleonastic, the real acc. following the verb, as will be seen below. In some cases its meaning is difficult to ascertain: cf. 635 ro-s-cromus-sa, 'I bowed down'; here, unless we give to it the force of the Fr. conj. que, which is hardly tenable, or unless we regard it as a mere error for ro-m-cromus, we are driven to the assumption—either (1°) that -s- was used as a general reflex. pron., or (2°) that it is emptied of all meaning* whatever, and is simply an ornamental or euphonic form of ro. To the latter alternative I incline, believing that, in our text, it is often absolutely otiose, and that the prefixes may be regarded as optionally written ros, nos, dos, or nis. [In Mod. Welsh, the negat. has ended in this, for (Rowland's Gr., p. 182, § 684) any one of the three forms, ni ddaeth, nid aeth, nis daeth, may be used. In these the presence of a pronom. form is unmistakable, but it has no force now.]

taim. 'to be,' &c. Several root-forms are used in the conjugation of this important and difficult verb 'to be,' such as as, ata, fil, bu, bi; but there is no gain to the student in keeping them apart. Two sets of forms are used throughout, of the copula verb, and of the substantive verb; and these are again double, according as they are in the independent or in the dependent clause. We have thus four forms to consider in each tense, some of which, in the 3 sg., are tabulated below.*

[A] and [B] contain the copula-forms in the independ. and depend. clause; [C] and [D], the substantive verb, also in the independ. and depend. clause.

In the copula-forms, as it is essentially the bringing into prominence of the word folly, that is sought, we naturally expect only the 3 pers.; a few personal forms, however, have introduced themselves.

The distinction in usage is shown very clearly in sentences with proh. subj.; thus, contrast the follg.:—1°, (a) 1745 is mi-se mac Dé, 'I am the Son of God,' with (b) 2767 is discipul do Xt. tu-su, 'thou art a disciple of Christ'; 2843 is nemurchoitech me, 'I am innocent'; 1042 is erlam sinde, 'we are prepared'; cf. (a)

2090 is tu-sa in t-oen Dia, 'thou alone art Xt.'; 2448 is tú blath in talman, 'thou art,' &c.; 3104 is me-si in duinesin, 'I am that person'; but [b] 2688 is duine démnaedu he; 2689 is mac Dé he; 2712 is rig mé, 'I am a king'; 2711 is rig thu-su; 2902 is duine firen in duine ut; 3119 is cloidem cúis a n-oideda; 3230 is lóg fola he; 7870 is athair dún in t-athair nemdai. Very common is the heightening of the subject or obj. of the clause when a pron., 'e'est lui qui,' &c., 60 is e do-rigne in himaiginseo, 209, 10. 424. 679. 955, 89. 1419, 56. 1510, 23, 31, &c.; 700 is mé rogon Xt., 'it is I who wounded Xt.'; 2671 is sinne ata for firinne, 'we are in the right'; 1712 is sib tanic tria mair ruad, 'you crossed the Red Sea'; with relat. form of verb in pres. and fut., 3786 is i shollsiges dún; 3813 is e tóluisefes corp A.; 5797 is he erailles; 6271, 74 is e cathaiges, chathaigfes, &c. So far the construction is clear and familiar; but in the 3 pers. arises a peculiar duplication of the subject, viz. in the addition of the pron. immediately to the copula, is e, is í, is ed, is iat, in which cases the two words are often written isse, issi, issed, issiat. This is a construction analogous with the Fr. 'ee sont nos méthodes qui nous égarent,' 'that, which leads us astray, is—our methods,' where the adjectival clause is clearly referrible logically to the grammatical subject, and is only attracted into agreement with the predicate. In

* TABLE of variations of 3 sg. of the verb 'to be':—

| — | COPULA. | | SUBSTANTIVE VERB. | |
|------------------------------|-----------|------------|-------------------|-----------|
| | [A] | [B] | [C] | [D] |
| Pres. Indic., | is. | (co n-)id. | ata. | (co) fil. |
| Pret., | ba. | co r-b'. | boi. | co rabi. |
| Fut., | bid. | co mba. | biaid. | co mbia. |
| „ Rel., | bes. | | bias. | |
| Sec. Fut., | (ro-)bad. | co mbad. | (na-)beth. | co mbiad. | analogous cases Irish uses its formula, is iat, in a manner somewhat corresponding to the Fr., cf. 4614 is iat na súalchi bid fortamlai, 'ce sont les vertus qui,' &c.

But this pronominal construction in Irish extends much farther, as the language does not allow this copula form of the verb to be followed immediately by the definite article, so that such combinations as is in corp maith, is no chorp maith, is corp in duine maith, to express 'the body is good,' &c., are not possible. Thus, 'the man is good' is is maith in fer [e adds Mod. Ir.]; but if the word to be emphasised is the man, the construction must be is e in fer is maith.

The follg. rule and examples will make clear the principle involved: where both the logical subject and the logical predicate are definite, [i.e., accompanied by the art., by a poss. adj. pron., or by a depend. noun in genit.,] the copula must be followed immediately by a 3 pers. pron. in agreement with the noun following. E.g., 762 is e | do Dia-su | in t-oen Dia, 'thy God is the One God'; 1138 is e | m'ainm | Georgius; 1518 is e | ainm in t're-sin | Villa G.; 1538 is é | ainm in t're-sin | 'tír ina fer cathach'; 2073 is e | in fír-Dia | in t-í na haittrebann i cranda[ib]; 3600 is e | in cetna herdach | procept brethri Dé; 4006 is iat | séta in fíreoin | na deg-gnima, 'what are the ways of the righteous? his good works'; 4624 is e | in duine immechtrach | in animm ágdha; 4633 is e | ereicc na coluim | grada do thabairt; 4807 is e | bás in chuip | a déirge ó'n anmain; 4808 is e bás na hanma | a déirge o Dia; 5473 is e | in Spt. noeb | in tres persu na trinóti; 5720 is e | in duine cómlan | in fer 7 in ben, 'the complete man is, includes, the male and the female'; 5789 is é | cléthi in fhoretail | in deare, 'what is the keystone of the divine commandment? charity'; 5790 is i | in deare | suaig diles na Xtaide, 'what is

[With abstract nouns, or nouns without the article, whereby only the class is distinguished, not the individual, the pronoun is not used; thus with the above contrast the follg., 3862 (is) Dia trén in duine-seo, 'this man is a mighty God'; 4855 is amus for Dia do neoch, dia maide as a shúalchib, 'boastfulness is an attack on God'; 5908 is ainmm do Dia deare, 'charity is one of His names'; 5981 is lestar honorach do'n Ch. in corp, 'the body is an honourable vessel'; 6926 is uide dá mís bóí do na druidib; 7065 is ainmm do Xt. síth; 7597 is gadaige in t-í immros, 'the gambler is a thief'; 7870 is athair dún in t-athair na m-dai, 'he is a father to us'; 7906 is dán-utus mor do'n peddach, cuinchid flaithiusa Dé do thuidecht.] Similarly, if the word to be emphasised is a demonst. pron., (celui-ci, celui-là), 42 is he so

In Glossary, admocul is ntr., cf. MI. 22 a¹¹, b¹; gabul is fem., cf. forri 1316; grás has dropped out, p. 742, a. On p. 38 the numbers in margin [xxxii.] do not quite correspond; see Contents. Many questions are left over for investigation, which it will be the business of the Notes to discuss and solve if possible.

In transcribing the Latin, as a rule, I have preserved the graphic peculiarities in the Text; but in the Translation I have generally normalised the spelling, attaching the more salient variations to the corrected word. The usual variations occur passim, viz.: e for ae, oe; i for y; e for t (solaciium), or for ce (peator); ce for e (locco); f for ff; ff for f; h prefixed (libi), or inserted (pericenni), or omitted (ipocrites); ll for l (ollim); m for mm; mm for m; n for m (nanque); nn for n (cenmaculum); p inserted, mpn, (sollemnus, sompmo); r for rr; rr for r; s for ss; ss for s; t for tt; tt for t.
